Raise Sheep.
The Friendless Reds.
They Got Ahigiak.
Water Power Labor Power.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FLEISCHMANNS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Of many beautiful sections in America, none is more beautiful than this, with thousands of green and blue mountains and hills, rolling into the distance, beautiful fertile valleys, smooth pastures on the mountain sides, wide forests.

It makes a modern American feel tired, even a little faint, to look at the endless miles of stone fences built along the hillsides by old Dutch settlers and by Huguenots, whose French names survive in many villages.

IF YOU WOULD like to become acquainted with the earth on which you live, and the sky above it, come here and start a sheep farm. Mr. Thomas J. McCaulay, formerly of the Genesee Valley, now of Allaire, N. J., says this is the ideal region for raising sheep, and he knows more about sheep than the sheep themselves know.

You can find suitable farms, good meadow land to raise winter fodder, upland pastures for grazing, wood and brush land for browsing, enough for one hundred and fifty ewes, at low prices. Take good care of the ewes at lambing time, keep down cat briars that tear the wool, select a good grade of sheep, Southdown for the best mutton, a good shearing sheep, if wool interests you, or a good combination sheep, Cheviot, perhaps, for wool and mutton, plant a garden, a few fruit trees, keep chickens, ducks and two cows, get your pocket and store money from the sheep, and really LIVE instead of merely existing.

ON THESE HEIGHTS you could raise caracul sheep that produce the fur-wool, of which ladies' expensive fur coats are made. Only do not imitate the oriental catering to western cruelty and kill the mother to strip off the damask hide of the unborn caracul lambs.

Mr. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, will tell you about taking care of sheep. Armour and Company or Swift and Company of Chicago, or any big packer will tell you how to get the sheep, carload lots, at reasonable prices. You might write to Arthur D. White, care Swift and Company, Chicago, for advice. Be sure to raise a few four-year-olds for your own use. No mutton is as good as old mutton.

IT IS GENERALLY understood that the "Reds" are wicked, seeking to destroy our practically perfect form of government, and divide up all the money.

Nevertheless, you almost feel sorry for them, reading about the "drive," planned against them.

Michael F. Shannon, "grand exalted ruler" of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, says "the issue is between the Stars and Stripes and the Red flag." Love of country and flag is the Elks' specialty, and the grand exalted ruler will let loose 500,000 Elks against the "Reds."

THEN THERE are the war veterans, all against Communism, determined that those Reds shall not tear down what the veterans have preserved. And the Knights of Columbus, as well organized, as determined a body as there is on earth, and most intelligently led, are against the Reds.

There are also the Baptists, Methodists, Christian Scientists, Seventh Day Adventists, all anti-Communistic, not forgetting the capitalists, that thin, golden line around the corner of Broad and Wall streets, New York, small in numbers, but fierce in their resolve to hang onto what they have left.

How the Reds survive at all, how they can be such a menace to flag and country in the face of such odds is the puzzle. There must be able men among them.

THREE YEARS ago Ahigiak, Eskimo hunter of the Far North, thought his friend Aniurak too attentive to his, Ahigiak's wife, and Ahigiak killed Aniurak. Imagine the Eskimo surprise when white men came, flying hundreds of miles over the dreary wastes, just to get Ahigiak and jail him for five years.

Hundreds of Eskimos gathered, convinced that the whites must be coming to get fox skins. Even poor Ahigiak, who had forgotten all about Aniurak, had his fox skins ready, and the caribou herders had their herds ready for display.

What those Eskimos thought of white-man intelligence when they learned that all the fuss was to put one lonesome Ahigiak in jail, you would not like to hear. What else they would have thought, had they known that those whites had only just finished butchering each other

YOUNG WIFE LEAPS INTO NIAGARA

Tosses Away Cigaret, Then Plunges From Sightseeing Car

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The turbid waters of the Niagara gorge, 250 feet above the whirlpool rapids, held today the body of Mrs. Ruth L. Hyde, 20-year-old wife of a wealthy Bradford (Pa.) resident.

The pretty red-haired woman leaped into the swirling waters late yesterday from the steel basket of a sight-seeing car as it reached the middle of the river, the lowest point of its sagging cable.

Only two of the 14 passengers saw the spectacular leap. They were Arthur J. McKinley, of Niagara Falls, Ont., and his 5-year-old daughter, Catherine.

McKinley said the woman threw away a smoked cigaret, quickly stepped up on her seat and plunged into the canyon without a word.

Her body tumbled over and over as it plunged downward, there was a short splash and it disappeared. It was still unfound today after hours of grappling.

The woman's husband, William P. Hyde, more than 50 years her senior, was unable to give a reason for her act. She appeared in good spirits, he said, when she left the previous day for Brookville, Pa., "to visit relatives."

BRADFORD, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Bradfordites puzzled today over possible reasons for the suicide of Mrs. Ruth I. Hyde, pretty young matron, who leaped 250 feet into the whirlpool rapids of Niagara Falls from a sight-seeing cable car.

They pointed out that, since her marriage two years ago to a wealthy Bradford man more than 50 years her senior, she apparently had been very happy. The husband, William P. Hyde, refused comment.

Edgar Hyde, of Bradford, stepson of Mrs. Hyde, said he knew of no reason for her suicide.

REPUBLIC BOWS TO STEEL UNION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Republic Steel Company has advised the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers it will comply with the wages, hours and working conditions set forth in the union's scale for Warren O.

The American Federation of Labor said today it had received a copy of a letter to that effect, sent by Republic's district manager at Warren to the union's Trumball Lodge at Warren.

The letter said the agreement resulted from conferences between the company and the new Steel Labor Relations Board.

Late in June the company notified the union it would not renew contracts for its Warren plant. Republic officials said the growth of a "radical element in the union led them to refuse to deal further with Amalgamated.

Michael F. Tighe, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, said here today that the letter meant recognition of the union, adding:

"The letter is a contract. We often have that form. There is no question of recognition; it's not an issue."

Great Slice of Niagara Thunders Into Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—With a tremendous roar, a great slice of the Horseshoe Falls collapsed into the Niagara Gorge at 8:20 a. m. (E. D. T.) today. The collapse, which threw a huge column of water into the air, was witnessed by a number of Niagara State Reservation patrolmen and workmen.

The piece of the lip of the falls which collapsed left a large gouge in the contour of the crest. The piece broke off between the middle of the falls and the Canadian mainland shore.

The collapse was the second large one to have occurred at Niagara in recent years. On January 17, 1931, a piece 150 feet deep and 300 feet wide fell from the face of the American falls, bringing down an estimated 80,000 tons of rock.

PEG M'KECHNIE

GLAD TO PICKET FOR HER JOB

Peg McKechnie, chief woman picket at the New Kensington aluminum plant, does her job regardless of the weather.

She has worked at the plant nine years, starting as a girl of 16. Explaining that girls don't mind picketing, she said:

"They like it because they know it means their jobs. Everyone is willing to picket. We haven't got the girls all lined up but they will be in a day or two."

Miss McKechnie is a fitter's helper in the kitchen utensil mill and helps rivet handles on pans. She lives at 2003 Kenneth avenue, Arnold.

Clyde Beatty Rescues 4 Adrift in Niagara

FORT ERIE, Ontario, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The rope tossing ability of Clyde Beatty, noted circus animal trainer saved the lives of four men, adrift in a boat in the swirling waters of Niagara River yesterday.

The men, helpless in the strong current, were being swept in a small rowboat toward a jutting reef under the Peace Bridge when Beatty tossed a long line to the man in the bow.

Warship Crashes, Sinks Fuel Ship

MONTREAL, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—The British warship H. M. S. Dragon today struck and sank the refueling vessel Maplebranch. No casualties were reported on either vessel, and the warship proceeded to her berth.

BLOOD CURSE KILLS SON OF ALFONSO

Dies in Sister's Arms As Result of Rare Malady

International News Service.

VIENNA, Aug. 13.—Prince Gonzalos, 19-year-old fourth son of former King Alfonso of Spain, died in the arms of his sister Beatrice today in a little Austrian provincial hospital, bleeding to death from injuries received a few hours earlier in an automobile accident.

Death was due to a hemorrhage of the stomach. All of Alfonso's children suffer from hemophilia, a disease which does not permit blood to clot normally, and which often causes death from minor cuts.

Beatrice, heart-broken, sobbed to an International News Service correspondent in a telephone interview that her younger brother's death was due to his "weak constitution."

Princess Beatrice was driving the car in which Gonzalos met his death. Trying to avoid hitting Baron Richard Neuman, who was on a motorcycle ahead of her, she swerved the car too sharply and it hurtled down a precipice. Beatrice was doubly sorrowful because of her innocent part in the tragedy. Beatrice's voice was shaky as she said:

"I am heart-broken. Gonzalos' injuries were not serious, but his weak constitution would not allow doctors to perform an operation. He was unable to stand the loss of blood from his hemorrhage.

"Brother died in my arms. It was awful. No, I am hardly hurt at all."

Police Seize Quartet, Recover $2,100 Loot In Bank Robbery

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Police announced today the arrest of four men as the suspected robbers who held up the Manor National Bank at Manor, Pa., Saturday, escaping with $3,000.

They also disclosed that $2,100 of the loot had been recovered.

Details of the capture of the suspects and the finding of the money were not immediately revealed.

The men arrested gave their names as Raymond Baker, 24, of Irwin; Harold E. Doriot, 20, of Pittsburgh; George Klaus, 19, of Turtle Creek, and Francis Winters, 29, of Pittsburgh.

The Manor Bank was robbed shortly after noon Saturday. Three men entered, drew revolvers and ordered bank officials and customers to lie on the floor. They scooped up all the money on the counters and then worked on the vault, but finally gave up, the leader saying:

"We can't set in there."

They escaped in an automobile which had been parked in front of the bank, with an accomplice waiting at the wheel. State police recovered the car in the woods near Apollo a short time later.

Pirate-Red Clash Postponed by Rain

The final clash of the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati series, scheduled at Forbes Field this afternoon, was called off on account of rain.

The postponed contest will be played off as part of a doubleheader on Friday, September 21.

The Pirates open a five-game series with the Giants here tomorrow. A doubleheader will be played on Wednesday.

RESIGNATION MAILED TO M'NAIR

Too Busy With Parish Work, Priest Tells His Honor

In a letter to Mayor McNair, the priest asserted he could not devote the necessary attention to his parish work and at the same time carry out the duties of the position to which he was appointed August 4.

He was made an assessor on his return from Europe by the Mayor, who met him at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, escorted him to the City-County Building and sworn him in.

At the time the new assessor said:

"I hope it will not be a recess appointment, and that Council will make it permanent by confirmation later."

Apparently finding the work of the office more demanding than he anticipated, the priest wrote out his resignation yesterday. It was to become effective on receipt.

The assessorship was the second city job to be conferred on Father Cox by McNair. In May he was named magistrate, but his nomination was rejected by Council.

The priest's resignation is the fifth to arrive in the Mayor's mail in the past four days. Four assistant city solicitors sent in their resignations Friday.

BEAUTY DIES, MEN HUNTED

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13.—Hollywood police today sought for questioning friends of Mrs. Irene Ellert, 25-year-old beauty specialist, who died as the result of an illegal operation.

Already police arrested one man in connection with the beauty's death and names of three other men, two of whom were reported to be prominent, were found in an ornately bound autograph book in Mrs. Ellert's home.

The men, police said, were to be questioned concerning final events in the life of the girl who died in the home of Paul de Gaston, musician, film extra and musical research student, who was under arrest.

Century-Old Claim For Sea Loot Filed

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Six persons who say they are descendants of Charles Ross, Philadelphia shipowner of George Washington's time, are seeking damage for loot they claim was obtained from their ancestor's ship at sea.

Submitting old records concerning Ross, who died 116 years ago, they filed a request in Orphans Court yesterday for payment under an act of Congress known as the French Spoliation Award.

STATE RELIEF CRISIS DUE

By G. EVERETT DOYING

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 13.—A crisis in Pennsylvania's relief situation is expected this week, bringing either capitulation by the federal government or a special session of the Legislature.

Although the exact time is yet uncertain, Gov. Gifford Pinchot will go to Washington soon for conferences with President Roosevelt and Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, when he will ask that the federal government continue financing at least most of the state's relief load until the regular session of the Legislature can deal with the problem in January.

Upon the answer he receives in Washington is believed to hinge the Governor's decision of whether to call the Legislature into session.

The Governor is expected to offer a compromise settlement by which the state would spend about $1,000,000 monthly for relief from liquor stores profits.

Carpenter's Death Probed by Coroner

Coroner [illegible]. McGregor today ordered an autopsy to determine the cause of death of William P. Proctor, 67, a carpenter of 506 Gettysburg street, who collapsed and died this morning while at work remodeling a Liberty avenue restaurant.

The autopsy was ordered after relatives, who identified the body, declared they were mystified as to the cause of death. Proctor was said to be in perfect health an hour before he died.

Herr Hitler Goes To 'Passion Play'

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany, Aug. 13.—INS.)—Reichsleader Adolf Hitler attended today's performance of the famous "Passion Play."

Hitler was received as usual with the raised arm salute by the thousands gathered in this little village for the pageant.

U. S. to Buy Food Going To Waste

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt in conferences on the drought today ordered federal purchase of any foodstuffs which might otherwise go to waste and laid down an emphatic ultimatum against politics in the relief campaign.

He authorized Aubrey Williams, assistant federal relief administrator, and Secretary Wallace to draft a plan for government purchase of hay and fruits in small quantities which might not otherwise be harvested.

The President authorized Williams to dismiss immediately any federal relief worker who is a candidate for office this year or who prefers to participate actively in the political campaign.

10 Passengers Hurt As Bus Leaves Road

LEWISTOWN, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Ten passengers were injured today as a Pittsburgh-to-New York Greyhound bus skidded from the highway and plunged down a 20-foot embankment in the "Narrows," eight miles east of Lewistown.

Sahacore Angelilli, 50, of Pittsburgh, was removed to a hospital. The others were able to continue their journey.

Gangster's Armored Car Put on Market

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—George (Machine Gun) Kelly's "$10,000 armored car" and Kathryn Kelly's "$3,200 platinum wrist watch set with 176 diamonds" were offered for sale by an attorney in a want ad appearing today.

FIRST REUNION IN 17 YEARS

By HARRISON CARROLL

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13.—Most excited girl in Hollywood today is Ann Dvorak, for she expects to see her father for the first time in almost 17 years.

Edward McKim, who separated from Ann's mother and who didn't know until recently that his baby daughter had grown up to be a famous movie actress, is due to arrive here either today or tomorrow. He'll be affectionately welcomed by Ann and her husband, Leslie Fenton.

Reunion of the film star and her father will climax a search begun last December when Ann broadcast an appeal through the newspapers for her parent to get in touch with her.

She revealed then, for the first time, that her real name was McKim—not Dvorak, which she chose for screen purposes.

Dozens of phoney letters came in, most of them wanting money and some even signed with the name Dvorak. It was a month after the publication of the appeal that the star received the genuine answer, inclosing a strip of motion picture film of the baby Ann and her mother, Ann Lehr.

This aged film, taken by McKim, who was a director in 1916, was run off in a Warner Brothers projection room and the identification was dramatically effected.

Levine, Ocean Flier, Fined After Battle

LONG BEACH, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Charles A. Levine, wearing a gray wig, appeared in court after spending a night in jail and pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. He was fined $10.

Levine, one-time passenger on a trans-Atlantic airplane flight, was arrested Saturday night at the home of a widow, whose name police would not reveal, after he and an unidentified man engaged in a fight.

MOBS LYNCH 2 IN MISSISSIPPI

ASHLAND, Miss., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Two mobs in different sections of Benton County overpowered officers and seized and lynched two alleged Negro slayers early today, Sheriff R. H. Hudspeth reported here.

Robert Jones, one of the victims, was taken from officers who were bringing him here from Tupelo, and Smith Houey, the other victim, was seized from deputy sheriffs en route here with him from Holly Springs.

Concentrating near Michigan City, the mobs hanged Jones and Houey to a tree within 150 yards of the spot where Deputy Sheriff Mark Mason was slain more than a year ago during investigation of the murder of Connis Gillispie, later assertedly confessed by the Negroes who were lynched today.

The Negroes were being brought from the two jails to face trial for the Gillispie slaying at the term of Circuit Court convening here this morning.

Flock Hails Preacher's Snake Bite Survival

SYLVA, N. C., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Albert Teester, the rattlesnake evangelist of the mountains, exhibited himself before his flock yesterday as living proof that miracles exist.

A week ago Sunday Teester bared his arm to the fangs of a deadly rattler as a test of faith, and although the venom brought him down with convulsions of pain, his arm swollen and his tongue so thick he could not talk, he had virtually recovered, so much that he walked six miles to preach to his followers.

He credited his recovery, without medical aid, to the "greatest of all healers—Jesuse Christ." He said:

"I did not let the snake bite me for personal glory. I did it so people all over the world who need the word of God might see the light. God told me to pick up that rattlesnake and I had no fear. I'd do it again. I'd do anything that God told me."

Amid shouts of "hallelujah" and "praise the Lord!" the backwoods evangelist exhorted his audience to follow the "faith," and after the sermon, he led his "saints," the ranking personages of his church—in a "healing service." They swayed and danced until a number of them, overcome by emotion or sheer weariness, fell in their tracks.

WASHINGTON ACTS IN EFFORT TO END ALUMINUM STRIKE

VETERAN LABOR CONCILIATOR SUMMONED

Plants Remain Idle, Pickets Keep Lines Without Disorder

Action toward a settlement of the aluminum workers' strike was taken in Washington today when the Department of Labor, at the request of the National Labor Relations Board, summoned Fred Keightly, veteran labor conciliator, of Philadelphia, to the capital to discuss the strike situation with "interested parties."

Lloyd Garrison chairman of the Labor Board, made the arrangements for drafting Keightly, who was described by department officials as "familiar with the aluminum situation."

IDLE SINCE FRIDAY

The strike, which began Friday midnight when workers walked out of six big plants of the Aluminum Company of America and smaller independent plants, centered in the New Kensington district, where two meetings were held yesterday.

David Williams, district organizer for the American Federation of Labor, which had sanctioned the strike, was the chief speaker at both meetings held in New Kensington.

Warning the strikers to use peaceful means in the picketing, Williams told reporters after the meeting that action was expected to come from Washington.

WASHINGTON PARLEY

Since the strike is not merely local, Williams said the conciliator would confer with Boris Shishkin, American Federation of Labor economist, in Washington.

The company will be in a "receptive" mood to receive any suggestion the conciliator may have to offer, officials said.

John Bowen, labor board investigator who was in Pittsburgh last week endeavoring to prevent the strike, is now ill in a New York hospital, his illness preventing him from any negotiations toward a settlement at this time.

No disorders occurred during the picketing of the Aluminum company's three plants at New Kensington, Logan's Ferry and Arnold over the week-end, according to police reports.

Pickets, assigned in six-hour shifts, continued to guard the gates, but no attempts were made to operate any of the plants.

Unionized engineers, who are in charge of maintenance of the machinery, with approval of the union, have been instructed "to pull the fires" in the plants if any attempts are made to operate the plants, it was learned.

PEACE EFFORTS MADE

The strike was called after numerous attempts had been made to bring the aluminum workers' union and the company together, with Bowen acting as intermediary.

The union contends the strike resulted because company officials refused to negotiate with them, declined to agree to a "checkoff" system for dues, seniority rights for workers, a universal wage system and cease discrimination against union workers.

President Roy A. Hunt, of the company, said he was willing to discuss difference, that the union had demanded a closed shop, said he had replied to union demands and had not been notified of the strike beforehand.

Firemen Gathering At Mt. Pleasant

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Aug. 13.—Volunteer firemen from 36 towns throughout Western Pennsylvania were arriving here today for the annual five-day convention which will open tomorrow. About 3,000 firemen already had arrived today, although heavy rains had slowed up arrivals and interfered with the pitching of camp on the Mullen farm on the outskirts of this city.

400 to Get Jobs As Plant Resumes

HENRYETTA, Okla., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Pittsburgh Plate Glass plant lit the fires under a repaired tank here today following a one-month shutdown. About 400 men will go to work during the first week in September when the tank is heated properly.

to accompany Mischa Elman, the violinist, at a concert here caused cancellation of the engagement, denied today that the German minister or Nazi authorities had influenced his decision not to play with Elman.

The Herald quoted Elman as saying he was informed the German minister told Busch if he participated in the concert he would not be permitted to return to Germany.

Busch said there could be no question of reprisals as he was not appearing in Germany next season anyway, owing to contracts abroad.

Margiotti Associate Dies in Ridgway

RIDGWAY, Pa., Aug. 13.—John G. Whitmore, 69, attorney for the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh and Shawmut railroads, and solicitor for Elk County, died last night. He had suffered a stroke Friday. He was associated with Charles J. Margiotti, of Pittsburgh, in numerous legal cases.

JAPS LINK REDS IN DEATH PLOT

International News Service.

HARBIN, Aug. 13.—Discovery of a plot to assassinate the chief of the Japanese military mission, the chief of the Japanese police and all important Manchukuoan officials and representatives of the Chinese Eastern Railway at Suifenho, was announced here today.

Thirty Russians, said to have been involved in the conspiracy, have been arrested.

Soviet consular officials at Suifenho are alleged to have been the ring-leaders. Japanese military headquarters here claim that they have documents proving the Russian military headquarters at Kharbarovsk were implicated.

The "plot" disclosures followed by 24 hours official announcement from Tokio that the Soviet government had rejected the latest offer from the Japanese-controlled state of Manchukuo for the purchase of Russian interests in the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Moscow reports said diplomatic tension between Japan and Russia had increased since the collapse of the railway negotiations and that discussion of the possibilities of a Far Eastern war had been revived.

French Creek Bloc Fights Beaver Canal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Protests against the recommendation of the Pittsburgh-Beaver-Lake Erie canal route were filed today at the War Department by advocates of the Allegheny River-French Creek route.

The protests came from the Upper Allegheny and French Creek Improvement Association, of Franklin, Pa., and Erie Terminal and Allegheny River Improvement Association, of Erie.

gangland ride alive, fought for life today while police were searching for members of an auto theft ring believed responsible for the attempted slaying.

Griffin, in a serious condition from bullet wounds and loss of blood, gave aid to police hunting four men who thought him dead, but from whom he escaped while they sought spades to dig his grave early Saturday. Griffin described his would-be killers, but was unable to identify two suspects held by police.

A man named "Tony," head of a ring of auto thieves, gave orders for his death, Griffin told police he gathered from conversation while on the ride.

Only Griffin's determination to round up those who tried to kill him kept him alive, said doctors.

ARMISTICE ENDS NEW ORLEANS 'BATTLE'

Kingfish's Foe Begins Demobilizing 'Army;' Vice Flourishes

International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—It was believed today that some sort of an "understanding" had been reached in the long battle between United States Senator Huey Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, for political domination of New Orleans.

With both sides claiming victory, signs of an armistice were evident.

The army of police, including the special police hastily deputized and called to duty by Mayor Walmsley was being demobilized, while vice and gambling, which Long had sworn he would drive from New Orleans, again began to flourish.

No attempts were made to close the gambling establishments, which played to heavy patronage.

Long forces, guarded by militiamen, continued to occupy the registry office, while Walmsley men, guarded by 100 special policemen, remained in power in the city hall.

Police, ordered on 12-hour emergency duty when Long declared New Orleans under "partial" martial law three weeks ago and Gov. Allen ordered National Guardsmen into the city, returned to normal duty today.

It was reported the cessation of hostilities was the result of a pre-election peace pact. Registration for the September 11 congressional primary election closed Saturday. Both Long and Mayor Walmsley have candidates seeking nomination. The Walmsley party has long dominated the city politics, and the political war was declared when Long seized the registration office an announced that henceforth he would control politics in New Orleans.

Weather Conditions

Low pressure is centered east of Hudson Bay and a trough of low pressure extends southwestward over the Great Lakes and the Central Mississippi Valley to the Far Southwest. It has been causing a thunder storm condition over the country east of the Rocky Mountains during the last 48 hours. There is much cloudiness over the eastern half of the country this morning as a result of the low pressure and raining in scattered places. It is also raining this morning in Eastern Kansas and in Oklahoma. The weather continues warm over the Ohio Valley states, but it is considerably cooler over the Dakotas due to a high centered over that section. High temperatures occurred again yesterday over Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The highest reported is 106 degrees at Oklahoma City, Wichita and Goodland.

River Conditions

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is zero. Lock No. 7, Mon., 10.1; Pittsburgh, 10.9; Dam No. 4, 9.5; No. 6, 9.8; No. 10, 10.1; No. 12, 9.6. The dams are up.

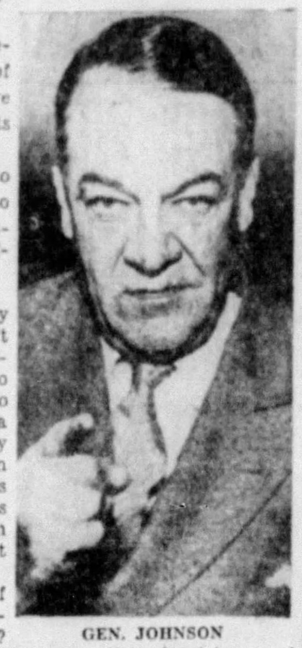
NRA to Levy Huge Tax On Nation's Business For Support of Codes

NRA is embarking on a new and gigantic task. This time there is no ballyhoo, no widespread publicity. For the job has to do with the raising of money—hundreds of millions of dollars. It is a new direct tax on American business to pay the cost of making business behave. Following is the first of a series of articles disclosing the amount, purpose and the complicated setup of this new tax which will be saddled on American business as long as NRA exists.

By PHILIP PEARL
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—From the pockets of all the business men under codes, NRA is now preparing to drain hundreds of millions of dollars to support its far flung police force—the code authorities.

This new tax on industry, according to best estimates available, will exceed $200,000,000 annually.



GEN. JOHNSON

Assessments already have begun. Budgets for about 60 of the 500 code authorities have been approved and the bills are flooding the mails.

NRA officials do not like to call it a "tax." They prefer to regard it as a "voluntary contribution by business for self-protection from chiselers."

MUST PAY OR LOSE EAGLE

But in the same breath they admit that if the money isn't paid voluntarily the full powers of NRA will be invoked to compel payment. Refusal to pay assessments constitutes a code violation punishable by removal of the Blue Eagle. In some codes there is express provision for such assessments and the code authorities can sue in court for the amount due.

Why has NRA armed itself to the teeth to assure collection of its tax on industry? Because unless it does collect it, the continued existence of NRA as dictator and watch-dog over American business is threatened.

The federal government does not intend to shoulder the cost of code enforcement. If it did foot the bill, many of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's problems would be solved.

For it is becoming increasingly apparent that the task of apportioning a $200,000,000 tax equably among the members of the 500 trade codes may involve more complexities than even the income tax.

BASIS OF TAX VARIES

The whole process is obviously cumbersome.

Take the form of assessments as an example. Practically every industry is suggesting a different basis of contribution. Some will have to pay a fixed amount, usually $1, for each employe on the payroll. Others a fraction of a mill for each unit sold. A third method is a percentage of net dollar sales.

When one considers the difficulties of balancing the various code authority budgets, and the measures that will have to be taken to check up their expenditures and straighten out their finances, the possibilities of error, confusion and injustice are readily apparent.

The complicated process of budget making and assessment under the new NRA tax system, as illustrated in the machinery set up for several large industries, will be explained in tomorrow's article.

SILVER NOTES RUSH PRESSES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Administration officials are taking a holiday from public discussions of their silver policies today, standing by their last reiteration of the belief that the plan would not cause appreciable inflation.

At the government printing office, Sunday meant no time off for the men who are printing the $80,000,000 in new currency. They were ahead of schedule but still far behind the demand.

As fast as the currency is being turned out, officials said, it is being paid on current running expenses by the Treasurer. Small batches also are being forwarded to Federal Reserve banks with a request for its immediate distribution.

Disease Takes Two More Circus Lives

DETROIT, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Two deaths occurred Sunday among employes of Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey's circus who have been confined to Harper Hospital with typhoid fever. Two others died previously.

Twenty-eight suspected typhoid sufferers of the 82 first brought to the hospital when the disease was discovered among the circus personnel here several weeks ago have been released.

JOHNSON TO GET AX AS 'ALIBI,' SAYS SCHALL

Predicts 'Theatrical' Roosevelt Gesture In Newsprint Row

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Senator Schall (Rep.), of Minnesota, predicted today that President Roosevelt may "fire" Hugh S. Johnson "to set up a White House alibi" in the newsprint code dispute.

Schall, persistent critic of NRA, issued a statement attacking a proposal for a special board with authority over newsprint prices—a plan which publishers have opposed as monopolistic.

Declaring the proposal a "menace to American publishers," Schall said:

"It is a foregone conclusion that, now that the Johnson NRA administration has been caught red-handed by the American publishers, Roosevelt will use the incident for a dramatic grandstand play. He may even fire Johnson outright to set up a White House alibi.

"He will doubtless use the opportunity to win the applause of the daily press by a theatrical gesture of discarding the newsprint code or at least, the proposed enlargements."

The Senator quoted from testimony he said was presented at a recent hearing on proposed amendments to the effect that "the newsprint trust, under the protective arm of the NRA and by suspension of the anti-trust laws, threatens American newspapers with a charge of $50 per ton for newsprint, which the protected combine sells to Europe at $30 and to South American publishers at $20."

HOOVER IDEAS SEEN IN NRA

JOHNSONBURG, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover received credit today for some of the foundation work of the NRA.

Dr. W. D. Ennis, head of the department of economics of engineering at Stevens Institute of Technology, told engineers at the summer camp that the former President's trade practice conferences laid some of the groundwork for the National Recovery Administration. He said:

"First as Secretary of Commerce, and then as President, Hoover's trade practice conferences between trade associations and the Federal Trade Commission suggested a partnership of business and government, called attention to the unduly restrictive effect of anti-trust laws, stressed unfair competition, and did valuable work in standardization of products and toward the introduction of adequate cost accounting."

MRS. PINCHOT FINDS NO NRA

SAYRE, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, says there is no NRA and "can't be one under Johnson."

Addressing striking Athens textile workers at a picnic yesterday, she expressed her support of NRA principles and termed H[illegible] S. Johnson, NRA administ[illegible], a "traitor to recovery."

She blamed industrial leaders for the depression and urged farmers and workers to unite against what she said was five per cent of the people who control 60 per cent of the nation's wealth.

She spoke of Andrew W. Mellon as "a small man" who "looks as though he had indigestion." Then she hurled this jibe:

"With an income of around twenty millions, he does not eat any more than you and I."

An 18-year-old Brooklyn girl and a 42-year-old Lothario from Akron were held by police for investigation today following the man's arrest on the girl's charges that he lured her to Pittsburgh on a false pretense of marrying her.

In Morals Court, Edith Cohen, 18, the girl, told Magistrate J. W. McGowan that Morris Rosenfield, the man, had sent her trainfare to come from her home and meet him here in a plan to drive to East Liverpool and be married.

Instead, she said, when she arrived, he told her he was already married. She called a policeman.

DEATH INVADES OXYGEN TENT

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—The three months' struggle of 7-year-old Russell (Buddy) Page with pneumonia today was ended.

Stricken with pneumonia in April, Buddy was left unable to breathe without artificial aid. In July the lad and his oxygen tent "home" were moved to the Jewish hospital here in a truck.

Surrounded with his toys, the boy alternately improved and sank until death reached into the rubberized canopy and Buddy's struggle ceased.

U. S. Marine Armada Flying From Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—A Marine Corps squadron of 11 airplanes, only two of which were seaplanes, took off at 5:30 a. m. today for Guantanamo en route to Miami, which the fliers expected to reach tonight.

The flight, under the command of Maj. James T. Moore, is part of the Marine evacuation of Haiti. The squadron has been stationed in Haiti since 1919.

Irish Farmers Storm Tax Sale, One Killed

CORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—One man was fatally injured and several hurt today in a riot during a sale of cattle seized by the sheriff.

The seizure was from two farmers who were unable to pay their land taxes. Neighboring farmers stormed the sale and detectives on duty fired on them.

YOUTH IN CELL BEMOANS FATE

Universal Service.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 13.—Robert Edwards, alleged "American Tragedy" slayer of Freda McKechnie, who was to have borne his child, spent his second Sunday in prison bemoaning his apparent desertion by the second girl who figures in his life.

If the youthful mining engineer actually blackjacked his sweetheart and left her to drown in Lake Harvey in a plan to do away with an obstacle to his love for Margaret Crain, East Aurora music teacher, it appeared today his deed will be unavailing, even if he escapes the electric chair.

For there has been no word from Miss Crain in nine days—not since she returned home shortly after he had been committed to jail on a murder charge.

Jail attaches admitted today that indications pointed to a fast declining romance with the attractive co-ed whom he met at Mansfield State Teachers' College, where both were students. One guard said:

"It's beginning to play on Robert's nerves."

Mindful, however, of the speed with which Miss Crain hurried to his side when she heard he had been arrested and of her assurances she would "stick with him to the end," the youth comforted himself by finding excuses for her.

Picnickers Hurled In Creek by Crash

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—John Yakim, Kingston truck driver, is being held pending the outcome of the injuries of 21 picnickers hurled from a vehicle which police say he was operating without liability insurance or a carriers' certificate.

The 21 were hurt, one seriously, as a truck carrying 40 persons got out of control on a hill and crashed into the stone siding of a bridge. The occupants were thrown into Harvey's Creek.

New Gold Strike Reported in Canada

OTTAWA, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Another great gold rush, rivaling perhaps those which made history in California and the Yukon, was visualized today following the receipt of wireless reports from the Great Bear Lake region of the Northwest territories, indicating that prospectors have made a sensational strike on the Yellow Knife River.

The strike was reported to have been made by a party of Indians directed by Maj. Lockie Burwash, noted Canadian geologist and explorer.

Blonde Begins Battle For Life Because of Story-Book Sheriff

By FRANK LEE DONOGHUE
International News Service.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Because a country sheriff read all detective stories, "Little Eva" Coon, blonde widow of 45, with machine-waved hair and a passion for flapper's finery, is to go on trial for her life today charged with the same kind of crime that land Anna Antonio and Ruth Brown Snyder to the electric chair.

The morning they found the body of Harry Wright, happy-go-lucky town character in a ditch 100 yards from Mrs. Coo's roadhouse, police closed the case as a hit-and-run accident.

But George H. Mitchell, sheriff of Otsego County, decided the case looked queer.

He visited a cemetery in Cooperstown and looked over the tombstone of the Wright family. He found that Wright's age on the stone had been chiseled off.

"LITTLE EVA" ARRESTED

Three days later he arrested "Little Eva," charging her with the murder of Harry Wright.

Wright, according to District Attorney Donald H. Grant was only one of five persons whose insurance policies named "Little Eva" as beneficiary.

Thrown off by a wife who could not stand for his philandering, Wright became a local derelict until the day "Little Eva" invited him to live in her roadhouse and to pay for his keep by doing odd jobs about the place.

Wright, however, was not the derelict that local reputation reputed him to be. He had $1,500 in the local banks. When that was dissipated after he joined Mrs. Coo at the roadside inn, she is said by the prosecution to have insured his life for $9,600.

On the night of June 19, Mrs. Coo and Martha Clift invited Harry Wright to go up Crumhorn Mountain—known locally as "Murder Hill"—to collect shrubs to be transplanted around the roadhouse.

Near an abandoned farm, Wright, according to the state, was killed when Mrs. Coo ran her automobile over the body five times, according to the indictment charging her and Mrs. Clift with murder.

GRISLY JOB FINISHED

The grisly job was finished when, from behind the "haunted farmhouse," a party of people from Oneonta appeared and, according to the evidence the state was prepared to present today, almost caught the two women red-handed.

Three of the unexpected visitors to the murder scene were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hunt and Mrs. Ira Fink.

Their grim work done, the two women, panic-stricken at the unexpected interruption, carried Wright's body down the mountain and dumped it in the ditch not more than a hundred yards from the roadhouse, the prosecution contends.

Suspicion aroused by the changed date of Wright's birth on the family tombstone, Sheriff Mitchell and Under-Sheriff Brady arrested Mrs. Coo and her alleged accomplice.

Under examination, the two women broke and confessed, the state will claim.

Underworld Searched For Diamond Thieves

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—A search of all known underworld haunts was under way today for the five bandits who held up and robbed William I. Ryan, a jeweler, of $30,000 worth of uncut diamonds in the vestibule of a midtown apartment house.

Bugs Baer Blames Mae West for Battle Of Fists (No Clubs) Between Sims-Jacoby

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
International News Service.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 13.—Pay no attention to Ely Culbertson's explanation of the Sims-Jacoby elimination tournament in this burglet-by-the-sea.

The great prophet Ely is up in Connecticut trying to finesse a celluloid deuce through forest fire.

The writer favors the Culbertson system of not being there when a fight starts.

But he couldn't help himself this time. He was right in the middle when the five-fingered waves started slapping up against the facial beaches.

Although we prefer rye we must squelch the rumor that we stepped between Sims and Jacoby. The only thing we stepped between was a pair of folding doors with an exit sign over them. Come shimmy, rain, wind or Sims, the mail must go through.

The trouble started when Sims says Jacoby called him a liar. Sims then led a black ace wrapped up in a red flag.

Mr. Jacoby went to the floor, which was the correct play. The second hand always played low.

The dummy then asked:

"What no clubs, partner?"

Jacoby reached for a chair leg to remedy the blank in clubs. The near-sighted Sims thereupon grabbed Jacoby by the ears under the impression that he had won another loving cup.

There was no defense for this Graeco-Roman coup. If Jacoby had only been London he would have come up smiling with a shave, shine and shampoo.

The committee rushed in to break the Sims grip up on the animated trophy. Tugging on Sims only increased the pressure on the Jacoby ears.

Only the presence of the lovely Mrs. Josephine Culbertson destroyed the illusion that a riot had broken out in a Wisconsin lumber camp.

We wish to state that Mrs. Culbertson took no hand in the scrap. She was too busy fanning the writer who had swooned in the nickel seats.

At the time the black birds started singing in Mr. Jacoby's pie, this interesting problem had developed in the play:

North was round shouldered from holding aces and kings. South had just turned his head to borrow a cigaret. East was cloudy and threatening. West was playing double dummy with a ventriloquist.

The whole thing was unfortunate and might have been avoided if Mae West had walked through the hall wearing shorts.

For the rest of the tournament Sims and Jacoby will play in barrels and lead their cards through the bungholes.

PAROLE ASKED FOR 'TIGRESS'

Universal Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 13.—Winnie Ruth Judd's latest move for freedom will be passed upon here today by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

The board now has before it a formal application from the Rev. H. J. McKinnell, father of Mrs. Judd, requesting that she be pardoned and liberated from the State Insane Asylum.

The plea is based on the contention that Mrs. Judd acted in self-defense in slaying Agnes Ann Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson.

WINNIE RUTH JUDD

Mrs. Judd was convicted of the murder of Miss Le Roi, but the second charge, that of slaying Miss Samuelson, has never been tried.

Sentenced to death, Mrs. Judd was later found to have been insane and committed to the state asylum where she is now an inmate.

OHIOANS 'TAKE' FAMED '4 ACES'

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Four bridge experts from Ohio today had eliminated the famous "Four Aces" from the team-of-four competition in the American Bridge League tournament.

Led by William F. Hopkins, of Cincinnati, the Ohioans ended the 40-board match with the eastern experts 1,060 points ahead. Other members of the team were Charles H. Porter, of Cincinnati, and Aaron Frank and Jeff Glick, of Cleveland.

Oswald Jacoby, of the "Four Aces," said after the match yesterday that their opponents played "marvelous bridge," a statement backed by his teammates, David Burnstine, Richard Frey and Howard Schenken.

The Ohio team and Mrs. Culbertson's combination will meet in the finals for the team-of-four trophy.

FIGHTER SLAIN BY GANGSTERS

REVERE, Mass., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Nate Siegel, former New England welterweight boxing champion and for 10 years one of the most popular fighters in this section, was slain early today by a rain of machine gun bullets that zipped through his living room window.

He was sitting in the room with his wife, when a window was quietly lifted and the nose of a machine gun edged above the sill. He slumped to the floor, his chest riddled, with the first rat-tat of the gun.

His wife ran to the window in time to see three men climb into an automobile bearing Maine registration plates and speed away.

Siegel, who was proprietor of the Cloverleaf Club on the North Shore road, had just arrived at his home. It was shortly after 2 a. m.

Siegel was 37 years old and began his boxing career as an amateur in 1913. Later he became a professional and won honors quickly. During the war he enlisted with the 82nd Division and saw service overseas. He won his New England title in 1920.

Thomas, Noted Playwright, Dies at 77

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Augustus Thomas, 77, dean of American playwrights, died suddenly yesterday at the Clarkstown Country Club, Nyack, of an apoplectic stroke.

In failing health for three years, Mr. Thomas died in his apartment at the club. Mrs. Thomas, the former Lisle Colby, sister of Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson cabinet, was with him at the end.

AUGUSTUS THOMAS

Mr. Thomas was chiefly famous for his American plays bearing state names. From 1922 to 1925 he was a leading figure in the theatrical world.

In that period, Mr. Thomas was executive chief of the Producing Managers' Association and became known as the "czar" of the theater, holding a position similar to that of Will Hays in the motion picture industry.

Mr. Thomas was born in St. Louis, January 8, 1857. He studied law. Subsequently he entered journalism and became a writer and artist on several newspapers in St. Louis, Kansas City and New York.

Fairbanks to Fly To Rite for Relative

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Margaret Fairbanks, 52, sister-in-law of Douglas Fairbanks, is dead following an abdominal operation last Monday.

Burial will be in Denver beside the body of her husband, John, who was business manager for the actor.

Douglas Fairbanks, arriving early this week from Europe, will fly to Denver for the burial service Thursday.

FEW MOURNERS AT FUNERAL OF NOTED ARTIST

Painter's Simple Faith And Humility Eulogized

John Kane, the painter of freight cars and "primitives," was lowered into a grave in Calvary Cemetery today in a driving rain.

His widow and two daughters—all that's left of his line—a few friends well known in the art world he cracked seven years ago, and a few old friends of the family huddled under umbrellas while the Rev. Father James Fallon of Epiphany Roman Catholic Church, read the burial ritual.

Previously, Father Fallon had sung a requiem mass in the church on Washington street, where the artist spent many a morning in the last three years. After the "Requiescat in Pace" that marked the last of the mass, Father Fallon, who had tended "Old John" in the last few years and during the illness that brought his death last Friday, gave a brief sermon.

He spoke of the man's simple faith, of the work he had done, of his humility, and added:

"The coming years may see his name and his art move through the rest of the world."

Manifred Schwartz, New York dealer in pictures, attended the funeral. He had been a friend and agent for Kane. O. D. Thompson, downtown broker, and Mrs. Thompson, John O'Connor, Jr., and Jack Nash, of Carnegie Institute of Fine Arts—friends and sponsors of Kane—were also there.

Kane, who came here from Scotland and worked as a laborer, mill hand, freight car and house painter, first won note as an artist when his canvas, "Scottish Highlands," was accepted by a jury in the 1927 Carnegie International. He was 67 then. His fame spread during the past seven years. Now many collectors of paintings and museums have his pictures.

CREEK YIELDS EX-BANK TELLER

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 13.—The body of Robert A. Cunningham, 32, former head teller of the Forbes National Bank, Pittsburgh, indicted on a charge of embezzling funds from the bank, has been recovered from Connoquenessing Creek, in which he was drowned Thursday.

The former bank employe met death when he attempted to recover a mushball batted into the flood-swollen creek during a game at a vacation camp. Cunningham fell into the torrent and was swept away before friends could rescue him.

A search for the body, directed by state troopers, proved futile until early yesterday, when the body was found near Zelienople, two and one-half miles from the camp.

A few months ago Cunningham was charged with having taken approximately $26,000 from the bank.

WALES REFUSES HERO MEDAL

BIARRITZ, France, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales has refused a lifesaving medal offered him by the French government in recognition of heroism, it was learned today.

Prince Edward aided in saving a boy from drowning in a swimming pool here a week ago.

Although he has received hundreds of laudatory letters and telegrams, the heir to the British throne modestly declined to accept France's offer of a gold medal.

A long document in parchment from Paris asked him to accept the decoration and praised him for his heroism in rescuing the youth, who was caught by a huge wave and lifted from a beach into the pool.

The Prince, at the time of the incident, refused to be made a "hero." Wales is spending a vacation at a villa here.

Spree of 'Alcohol Nose' Combats Hay Fever

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—A method of producing an alcoholic nose which drowns hay fever is reported by Myron Metzenbaum, M. D., of Cleveland, in The Laryngoscope.

Alcohol injections anesthetize the sensitive areas which cause sneezing and tears.

In effect the nose goes on a prolonged spree, in which the effects of one single dose of alcohol may last weeks, or even a year or two. During that time the nose becomes somewhat immune to the suffering of hay fever, rose fever, hay fever asthma and to some forms of autumn colds.

Dr. Metzenbaum has given the alcohol injections from a week to three months in advance of expected attacks. He reports:

"The patients have varied in age from rather young children to the chronic sufferer of middle age. In all cases there has been some amelioration of the patient's irritating symptoms and their extreme nasal discomfort."

Byrd, Weak and Worn, Saved From Lone Vigil

A weary tractor party of three succeeded in reaching his solitary weather observation post, 123 miles to the south, yesterday after a three-day battle against elements of the Antarctic.

They found Byrd, commander of the second Antarctic expedition, worn and weak, but cheerful.

The terse news that the little band of three, balked twice before, had pushed through, was an immense relief to headquarters here. Deep concern had been felt over Byrd's situation.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, leader of the tractor party, reported by radio:

"Admiral Byrd is quite weak. But he will be all right in a moment."

"Tell my friends not to worry."

This was the message he slowly tapped out.

Byrd had not seen a human face since March 28. His hair was long and shaggy, Dr. Poulter reported.

PASTORS JAILED IN NEW NAZI DRIVE

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A "finish fight" between Adolf Hitler's Nazi government and rebellious Protestant pastors over the state's church program appeared imminent today.

Authorities lost no time in clamping down on clergymen who defied laws rushed through the National Synod last Thursday giving dictatorial powers to Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, ardent follower of Hitler.

Reliable reports said a number of ministers were arrested over the week-end for expressing open opposition from their pulpits to Mueller and denouncing the Nazi program. Church circles appeared dismayed.

The Mueller program included an oath of fealty to Hitler, to which some pastors objected, claiming it placed the Chancellor ahead of God and the church.

A manifesto drawn by dissident pastors at Hamburg Friday is interpreted by some as an open "declaration of war" against Mueller. It declared proceedings of the "so-called national synod" invalid and called upon congregations not to obey them. It also stated:

"Whoever obeys them commits a breach of the church constitution and church law. We refuse to obey the call upon congregations and churches to make themselves guilty of the same breaches of the law."

The church controversy flares with the plebiscite in which the nation will vote on approval of Hitler's assumption of the powers of President to be held next Sunday.

Nazis are active in a campaign to get an overwhelming pro-Hitler vote. Newspapers, billboards, motion pictures, the radio and government officials have been enlisted in the drive.

HITLER INTERNS AUSTRIA NAZIS

International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—Eight thousand Austrian Nazi legionnaires, who had been concentrated in Bavaria, near the Austrian border, were ordered removed to Prussian labor camps today by Reichsleader Hitler, in pursuance of his campaign for friendlier relations with Austria.

The Austrians who had fled or been exiled from their native country had formed military groups and were prepared to cross the frontier to assist in a Nazi revolutionary movement.

Hitler ordered the dissolution of the "hampfring" or fighting unit of the Austrian Nazis and instructed the police of Bavaria to close its offices.

The Berlin leader of the Austrian Nazis, Dr. Hans Hauswirth, has been arrested. Dr. Theodore Frauenweld, commander of the Austrian Nazis in Germany, has escaped to Switerland, the police admitted, but his brother was seized.

OTTO ARRIVES IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Archduke Otto, claimant of the defunct throne of Austria, arrived here today by automobile and was expected to remain several days.

The expected arrival of Archduke Otto in Sweden sets at rest for a time reports that he was about to go to Italy for a conference with his mother, the former Empress Zita, and other members of his family on the prospects of restoration of the monarchy in Austria and according to the belief in some quarter, in Hungary.

One report given wide circulation was that marriage of the archduke and Princess Maria, youngest daughter of King Victor Emanuel of Italy, was being considered.

Special trains from throughout the country are bringing thousands of mourners daily to the massive tower of the Tannenberg war memorial where the late President was placed last Tuesday.

PASTOR LAUDS HINDENBURG

Warning against a renewal of international hatred, such as precipitated the World War, the Rev. George Schuster praised Germany's late President, Paul von Hindenburg, at memorial services yesterday in St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Fortieth street. City officials, headed by Mayor William N. McNair, attended.

Declaring von Hindenburg was not a militarist at heart, the Rev. Mr. Schuster said:

"The departed hero of the Germans desired and actually sought peace. In 1916 when he was appointed to command of the armies he sent word back to the Kaiser that peace should be brought about as soon as possible."

CITY'S PURSE PERILED IN LAW CRISIS

By MILTON V. BURGESS

There is no department of city government where the taxpayers' money can be lost more rapidly than in the city solicitor's office.

If incompetence or carelessness is found there, the city treasury is as much at the mercy of thieves as if the locks on the safe were permanently out of order.

One big verdict against the city as the result of a case poorly handled by city attorneys might easily cost the city as much as the department's entire payroll for a period of years.

Furthermore, the city solicitor is the attorney for every city official and the success of the administration's activities in all lines depends largely on the advice received.

MORE GRIEF

The picture of Mayor McNair lightly taking up these duties with wisecracks and laughter worries many officials in his administration who have been giving their best efforts toward improving government.

The majority of the McNair appointments have been serious minded persons who are working, and in some cases have made outstanding progress. But one day recently the Mayor said:

"I am going down to run the law department myself for a couple weeks and save a little money."

That remark sent cold chills chasing up and down the spines of persons thoroughly familiar with city business. For the best informed opinion is that the city cannot run without a good law department.

Consider the type of cases which the city solicitors are continually called upon to defend and prosecute.

BIG PROPERTY DAMAGE

Big property damage cases result from many street improvements. An outstanding recent one was the Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse case where a verdict was awarded against the city for $151,000. An appeal has been taken.

City officials must decide soon whether to appeal the adverse decision on the meter tax. If the city loses that litigation, the possibility of collecting $650,000 on meters of public utilities is gone.

There may be other public utility properties which can be taxed, but considering the high class of lawyers hired by the corporations, the city will require the best of talent to make its rights of taxation clear to the court.

Another important pending case is that of the city against the W. and H. Walker Company, accused by city officials of diverting city water to a plant on Herr's Island. The company is being sued for $500,000.

Several years ago a truck fell through the floor of a bridge at Herr's Island, carrying two men into the back channel of the Allegheny River. The families of the men sued and recovered substantial damages from the city, which is now suing the Pennsylvania Railroad for $70,000 on the ground that the railroad had agreed to help keep the bridge in repair.

DELUGE OF APPEALS

The city is continually bombarded with damage cases. There are 455 personal injury cases awaiting trial now. In addition there are 182 appeals from the decisions of the Board of Viewers, many of which involve large sums in property damage.

There has been a deluge of appeals from city real estate assessments, and many have been refused by city assessors sitting as a board of review and will come up in court soon. Should the appellants succeed in breaking down assessments, the city's credit may be endangered.

Recently a member of the city Law Department succeeded in persuading attorneys for important financial interests that the city should be given credit for two-thirds of its delinquent taxes in computing borrowing power.

TIDED OVER CRISIS

When this decision was made, the borrowing power of Council was almost at the vanishing point. The new margin helped the city tide over a dangerous financial crisis shortly before the first of this year.

What to Do With Savings Now Big Question for Public, Declares Richard W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

WHERE MAY WE PUT OUR SAVINGS?

There is a group which cannot save. There is another which will not save, but the majority population of the United States has the instinct to save.

Is there a fad to condemn any saving for the accumulation of wealth? In spite of such a fad the bare fact remains that some saving is NOT selfish—not "greedy individualism." Most savinng is not only a benefit to the individual, but means the welfare of the WHOLE LOT OF US.

Mr. Child

When there is no saving and the bad breaks of illness, death, unemployment and depression, exposure of womanhood or childhood to poverty, come upon the unprotected, then you and I and the rest of the taxpayers can do one of two things—we can let the unprotected go hang or we can foot the bill.

We are doing that now, and, as long as we are humane, we always will.

IN THE emergency, Roosevelt bravely, and in a spirited manner which some of his lieutenants imitate badly, has called upon the taxpayer—not only upon the present taxpayer, not only upon the rich taxpayer, but upon the future taxpayer and the consumer of necessaries who in the last analysis is the peer of all taxpayers—to foot the bill.

There used to be a hue and cry to make the world "safe for democracy." Now it is asked only that we make AMERICA safe for democracy.

WHY NOT ALSO MAKE AMERICA SAFE FOR SAVINGS?

It is a serious matter when an entire population has to think:

"If I work and save, and after vacious government agencies have taken their per cent in direct, or INDIRECT, taxes I have something left—'WHERE WILL I PUT IT?'"

IT IS no joke of course when "bankers" eager for commissions put it in the wrong place. But it is also no joke when prohibitionists against putting it in the wrong place prevent you and me FROM FINDING any place to put it AT ALL!

If we have no promise of a place we can put savings to work for us, we have very little urge to save.

If we have little urge to save, we have little urge to work harder than enough to get a hand-to-mouth subsistence.

The whole game becomes a fly-by-night civilization.

REAWAKENING OF INDUSTRY CANNOT TAKE A NORMAL COURSE UNLESS IT CAN DRAW UPON THE SAVINGS OF THE PEOPLE FOR PARTNERSHIP, OR FOR LOANS AND CREDIT.

Savings, to be worthwhile not only to the saver but to society, have to GO TO WORK. They can't just sit in a till and draw next-to-nothing interest.

THE MARGIN of extra brains, extra industry, extra personal planning and ambition which appears when saving are safe NOT ONLY FROM PRIVATE PIRACY BY BANKERS, BUT FROM PUBLIC PIRACY OF GOVERNMENTS WHICH ROB PETER IN TAXES TO PAY PAUL IN IMPROVIDENCE, IS THE MARGIN BETWEEN A PROGRESSIVE CIVILIZATION AND A CIVILIZATION GOING TO ROT.

Today our army of natural savers is asking Washington: "IF I SAVE IT, WHERE WILL I PUT IT?"

Unless Washington is prepared to say today, "Savings is a piece of old-fashioned nonsense. Industry can get along without investment. Foresight for protection of the dependents is a Tory trick!"—then Washington must begin to help normal recovery by preparing an answer to the national voice, yelling louder and louder: "IF I SAVE, WHERE WILL I PUT IT?"

O'TOOLE IN RACE HELD THREAT

Senator James J. Coyne will be pleased by the proposed candidacy of James L. O'Toole, former City Solicitor, for Congress, Mayor William N. McNair said today, commenting on the new development in Pittsburgh politics.

He recognized in it a threat to his candidate, Theodore L. Moritz. He said:

"Sure, that will split the Democratic vote and let Muldowney (M. J. Muldowney, incumbent and Republican nominee) win again."

O'Toole is one of the Democratic assistant city socilitors who quit when Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully left the Law Department.

7 Transfusions Fail to Save Girl

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Death today had eased forever the sufferings of 2-year-old Pauline Vandermass, who for the last three months had been fighting the ravages of lymphatic leukemia.

The disease, which is characterized by pallor, anemia and general weakness, according to Dr. Jacob Helms, who treated the child, was first noticed in Pauline in May. She was taken to the University of Michigan Hospita at Ann Arbor three weeks ago and within a week had undergone seven blood transfusions.

M'NAIR NAMES SELF TO FILL SCULLY POST

Mayor McNair today formally named himself City Solicitor in a letter to City Council.

The Mayor's action came shortly after he had announced he would seek a special meeting of Council Thursday to confirm an appointment to that post.

The Mayor's letter, with copies to the City Controller, Civil Service Commission and the Law Department, read:

"There being now a vacancy in the office of City Solicitor, I, being an attorney at law and thus qualified under the requirements of the city charter act, will act as City Solicitor until such time as the appointment of a City Solicitor is made with the approval of Council.

"Of course, I will act as City Solicitor without the pay of such position."

Cornelius D. Scully resigned as City Solicitor last week under pressure from the Mayor. The office carries a salary of $8,000 annually.

Scully's resignation was followed by five members of his staff, who quit as a protest against their chief's ouster. Ward Bonsall, the Mayor's personal counsel, already has been named special assistant solicitor in charge of utility litigation.

MAYOR'S CLUB FLOUTS LAW

East End police could look out the windows of the police station today and see evidence of the violation of a city ordinance.

For on the Euclid street sidewalks—city property—were painted signs:

"Make Pittsburgh a Free Port."

The signs are just outside the branch propaganda office of the Henry George Club conducted by Harry A. Eigenrauch, Jr., one of Mayor McNair's admirers.

However, Eigenrauch denied ordering the signs painted, even if he and the Mayor are in favor of a free port.

Burns to Death After Gay Party

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Climaxing a gay weekend drinking party, the tragic death of attractive 28-year-old Mrs. Beatrice Carr, whose burned body was found in flames which swept her home, was being investigated today by police and county authorities.

Firemen, breaking down the kitchen door to the two-story flat where she lived with her husband, two children, brother and aged parents, found the charred body behind the door as flames swept the room.

McNair 'Saves' 4 Stranded Youngsters

Four small boys "thumbing" rides at Bigelow boulevard and Fifth avenue yesterday afternoon seemed to be "thumbing" in vain. Nobody wanted them.

A man approached and learned they were stranded and wanted to go home. He gave them a quarter. One of them informed him:

"But there are four of us."

So he gave them half a dollar and asked:

"Know who I am?"

The spokesman answered:

"You look like the Mayor; yep, you're Mayor McNair."

The Mayor was pleased, stopped a street car and saw them aboard.

NEW AIR ROUTE INCLUDES CITY

With Pittsburgh included as a regular stop for both east and westbound, a new overnight coast-to-coast plane service will be started by Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., on Wednesday.

The new service does not mean that the controversy over fees at the airport has ended, company officials said.

River Swimming Meet Postponed

Swift currents in the Monongahela River yesterday caused postponement of a swimming meet scheduled to start at Point Bridge and end at South Thirteenth street, a distance of about two miles. The meet will be held next Sunday, it was announced. Twenty swimmers were to have taken part in the event.

by the millions in the big war it would be hard to guess.

SIX ALUMINUM plants have been closed by strikes. It is expected that 15,000 men will go out. They may, unfortunately, be out a long time. The aluminum business has not been good. The makers own and use gigantic water power, aluminum being chiefly a power product. That the power might not go to waste, the manufacturers have been turning out and storing aluminum they could not sell, tens of millions of pounds of it. Ten million pounds of light aluminum is a good deal. Some time ago, more than sixty million surplus pounds had been stored away, for the hoped for better times.

IF THE POWER plants are shut down by the strike, it may be a long time before they reopen. It seems to be an issue of power against power, the power of water against the working power of men. Pity that both should go to waste in times like these.

It might be well to let prosperity peek a little more distinctly around the corner before calling too many strikes, on the assumption that since NRA the country belongs to organized labor.

THE CURRENT strikes are to be accompanied by a powerful drive in favor of the union label, a mark showing that the product is one of union men only. Goods not labeled would be subject to boycott. When such a drive was proposed in a labor gathering some years ago, embarrassment was caused by investigation of the delegates' hats, so many lacked the union label. That, doubtless, has been changed, under Mr. Green's management.

Nevertheless, union labor, if wise, will assume complete control gradually. That is what capitalism did, and how successful it was, up to 1929.

IT IS A pleasure to hear from the United States Chamber of Commerce that there are "only" seven millions out of work in this country. Mr. Green, union labor head, says ten millions, but the chamber says that is "exaggeration."

On the other hand, statistics show that one family in every ten in New York City is "getting home relief," which is our substitute expression for the dole. In New York 671,866 persons are on the dole, 7,939 more than the previous highest record. That does not indicate diminished unemployment.

PLANS MAPPED FOR WINTER RELIEF

Working on the government's new plan of created work for the needy, heads of the local Relief Work Division are developing a comprehensive work program for six months which would carry through the winter.

The new program is designed to correct the "evils" of the hastily formulated Civil Works Administration and Relief Work Division, Eric H. Biddle, executive director of the State Emergency Relief Board, pointed out. Federal funds must be made available before the program can be started.

The new program will be launched about September 15 in Allegheny County, RWD Director James L. Stuart declared.

Officials here have already communicated with heads of the larger political sub-divisions in the county and asked them to prepare preliminary estimates of a six-months' work program in their communities.

NEED HARRISBURG O. K.

These plans will be passed upon by local officials, Philip H. Lantz, deputy RWD head, said, and then will be sent on to Harrisburg for final approval.

Lantz said the program will be started slowly, so that mistakes may be corrected at the very start. He said he could give no estimate of the number who will be employed but added that it would be "comparatively few" of the 14,000 who have been employed recently.

Biddle pointed out that in the CWA and RWD programs, emphasis was placed on speed. The new work plan is expected to avoid "clashing of gears" that characterized earlier efforts, he said.

Biddle's announced program includes these changes:

A program for professional projects formerly known as "white collar jobs" to get under way the latter part of this month.

WORK FOR WOMEN

Women are to receive the same consideration as men in the matter of assignment for work.

Transfers from direct relief to work relief will be kept at a minimum.

Applications for projects definitely linked to long range city or regional planning will be favored.

Local work directors have been instructed not to recommend projects unless satisfied there is a sufficient available supply of labor on local relief rolls.

Slum clearance, construction and repairs to roads, schoolhouses, public buildings and hospitals will be among the projects favored under the new plan.

'AMOS' SAILING FOR HOME

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—After three weeks of fishing, hunting and cruising through Southeastern Alaska "Amos" of the "Amos 'n' Andy" "Amos" of the "Amos ' Andy" comedy team, left here last night on the Campbell Church yacht Caroline for Prince Rupert, B. C., where he will board a train today for Chicago.

Gosden and his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. William Dewey, of Chicago, plan to "return next year and do everything all over again," they said.

Fishing and hunting were good, they reported. They caught hundreds of trout, salmon and porpoise and both Gosden and Dewey shot a bear. A bear cub which they captured was to be shipped to an exhibition zoo at Chicago, they said.

River Bank Death Probed by Coroner

Morgue officials today investigated the death of Harry McLaughlin, 36, of 2001 Cherry way, McKeesport, found lying on a river bank near the Riverton Bridge.

He died in McKeesport Hospital of a fractured skull, the morgue reported.

REGION CHIEFS IN HOME REPAIR DRIVE NAMED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Regional, state and district directors were named today to inject impetus into the Federal Housing Administration's campaign to modernize millions of homes and commercial buildings.

At the same time, James A. Moffett, housing administrator, told reporters he did not "look for any general reduction whatever" in prices of building materials. He said:

"There has been the general impression that to start the campaign a bargain price might be named. With few exceptions I believe prices are reasonable and generally below the 1926 level."

PLAN LOCAL ACTIVITIES

The new directors, the administrator said, were selected primarily for sales promotion activity. They will contact local communities through chambers of commerce and women's and civic clubs to tell home owners how and why they should borrow for home modernization, Moffett asserted:

"It will be purely a local effort, steered by the directors."

Moffett implied that political considerations did not govern the choice of the directors, pointing out that "a lot of financial institutions are run by Republicans and many Republicans are home owners."

In some places, he said, he thought Republicans were needed to "loosen up" the program.

Thirty of the new directors are state directors also of the National Emergency Council. The appointments were made by Donald R. Richberg, head of the NEC, with the concurrence of Moffett.

While they get their pay—from $4,500 to $6,800 each—through the NEC, the funds are supplied by the housing administration which retains full authority over the directors.

BANKS START EARLY

The modernization program was launched formally last Friday with the issuance of rules and regulations for financial institutions participating. Moffett said, however, a great many banks had started the program in anticipation of the rules.

The new directors will receive only one salary and in numerous instances the directors who are also officials of the NEC will handle both jobs.

Ten regions were established. New York state is a region by itself. The other regions and directors include:

No. 3—Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania: Charles Edison, West Orange, N. J. Edison is a son of the late Thomas A. Edison, inventor.

No. 6—Ohio, Michigan and West Virginia: Benedict Crowell, Cleveland mining engineer and contractor.

County's PWA Fund Grant Held Largest

Allegheny County's allotment of $24,500,000 from the new $400,000,000 Public Works Administration budget to be used in improvements here, more than tripled the next largest grant, it was announced today in Washington. The nearest to it was a grant of $8,000,000 given the District of Columbia.

U. S. MORTGAGE HOLDING GROWS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The government holds the mortgages on more than 430,000 American homes, a survey showed today, and before the activities of the Home Owners Loan Corporation are completed the total may reach nearly 1,000,000.

The HOLC's bonds, guaranteed by the government, have been exchanged for mortgages totaling $1,300,000,000. This leaves the corporation with $1,700,000,000 in bonds it can still put out.

Besides the 400,000 homes already aided, another 400,000 cases are nearly ready to go through the HOLC mill. Almost 700,000 more home owners have applied for loans.

A good many probably will be rejected. The law says an applicant must have been in distress before the middle of last year, except in unusual cases.

The relief sought by home owners so far totals $5,130,000,000, but the corporation's fund is only $3,000,000,000. It appears certain most of it will be expended by the end of the year. Congress will have to determine if more money should be furnished.

C. O. Thomas Named Bank Official in West

GREEN SEES AID FOR 2,000,000

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Expressing labor's "enthusiastic support" of the home modernization campaign, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, estimated today it would benefit 2,000,000 persons in many industries.

Green said the program would probably give employment to 1,000,000 building trades workers. He added:

"The American Federation of Labor has indorsed and approved the plan and is calling upon the building trades in every city, town and village to organize to further it."

THERE'S VARIETY OF TASTY DISHES

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Two of today's prize-winning recipes contain that inexpensive, healthful and nutritious dairy product—cottage cheese. Mrs. Sam Goldenson of Hays street uses it as a baked filling in a delicious first prize winning recipe. "Cheese Blintzes," while Miss Eileen Myler of Turtle Creek combines it with celery, peppers, chili sauce and pickles as a salad stuffing for tomato cases. Chilled and sliced on lettuce leaves, they are sure to attract both eye and palate.

I am glad to report that not a one of today's prize-winning recipes was written on both sides of a sheet of paper. One or two had their names at the bottom instead of at the top of the sheet on which the recipe was written, but my repeated pleas to write on only one side of the paper is beginning to bear results. Remember, you can send in as many recipes as you like, only please, name and address at top of each recipe and do not write on both sides of the paper. That's all for today. I know you are anxious to see the prize-winning recipes.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. SAM GOLDENSON,
5046 Hays street.
CHEESE BLINTZES

One cup flour.
One cup cold water.
Two eggs (beaten).
One-quarter teaspoon baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One egg.
One and one-half cups cottage cheese.
Salt and pepper to taste.

Add salt and water to eggs (well beaten). Add flour slowly until batter is smooth. Pour batter on heated and greased iron pan, tipping the pan on all sides to cover bottom with thin layer of batter. Bake one side only until the thin cake blisters, then tip out in one piece on board. Now mix the cheese, eggs, salt and pepper and place filling in center of each cake, folding over opposite corners to form a rectangle or square. Fry on both sides in butter, until golden brown. Serve with powdered sugar or sour cream. May be baked in oven for crispness.

Five $1 Prize Winners

310 Larimer avenue, Turtle Creek.
TOMATO RINGS

Two large red tomatoes.
One cup cottage cheese.
Four tablespoons salad dressing.
Two tablespoons chopped celery.
Two tablespoons chopped green peppers.
One tablespoon chili sauce.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
One tablespoon chopped pickles.
One teaspoon granulated gelatin.
One tablespoon cold water.

Wash and peal tomatoes. Remove seeds and pulp. Soak gelatin in water five minutes. Dissolve over boiling water, cool and add cheese and relishes. Stuff tomato cases. Chill two hours or longer. Using sharp knife, cut into one-inch crosswise slices. Arrange on lettuce and surround with more salad dressing.

MRS. GEORGE E. AMENT,
804 North Seventh street, Apollo.
PECAN TARTS

One cup brown sugar.
One-half cup water.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Two eggs lightly beaten with one tablespoon powdered sugar.
One cup milk.
One-half cup whole pecan meats.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup cream, whipped.

Prepare medium thick syrup by boiling sugar and water together. Set aside to cool. Add flour and salt to beaten eggs, add milk and mix well. Cook this mixture in double boiler until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. To this add half of the brown sugar mixture and vanilla. Remove from fire and cool. Put one large tablespoon of mixture in each baked tart shell and place four pecan meats on top. Use the remaining syrup to cover the pecans. Put a teaspoon of sweetened whipped cream in center of each tart. Chill thoroughly at least four hours and serve. This makes 10 tarts.

MRS. NONA STALNAKER,
62 Charlotte street, Akron, O.
FISH COCKTAIL SAUCE

One-half cup tomato catsup.
Juice of one lime, strained.
One-quarter teaspoon onion juice.
One-half teaspoon prepared horseradish.

MISS BARBY JANE CRISSMAN,
Kittanning.
MUSHROOM SALAD

Two cups or two cans mushrooms.
One cup peas, or one-half can.
One-third teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon butter.
One cup chopped celery.
Three-quarters cup mayonnaise.

Drain mushrooms and fry in butter with salt until a delicate brown. Cool mushrooms, drain peas and mix all together with celery and mayonnaise. Serve on crisp lettuce.

MISS MARY KANDALIK,
1104 Warner street, North Side.
CHOCOLATE CARAMELS

Four squares chocolate.
One cup corn syrup.
One-half cup brown sugar.
One tablespoon butter.
One cup milk.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup granulated sugar.

Cut chocolate and add to milk. When dissolved add corn syrup and sugar and cook until it forms a hard ball in cold water. Add butter when nearly done. Remove from fire and pour into an well oiled with butter. Chopped nuts may be added. Mark in squares when cold.

Chaplin Gives Yacht To Paulette Goddard

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Charles Chaplin's 50-foot cruiser, Panacea, will be anchored at the new Santa Monica yacht harbor, it was learned today. The boat is listed in the name of Paulette Goddard, the comedian's fiancee and leading lady in his next film.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

LITTLE TIN BOX OF WALKER'S LOCATED

Universal Service.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—In a copyrighted article the Boston Sunday Advertiser says the closed Federal National Bank of Boston was ex-Mayor James J. Walker's "little tin box."

The information is said to have been given a federal grand jury in New York by a former official of the bank.

The transactions of the dapper New York ex-night club Mayor and now husband of Betty Compton is supposed to have approximated $250,000 with the bank.

The eventual fate of the money, according to the Sunday Advertiser's informant, may determine the government's course toward "Jimmy."

Two assistant United States attorneys and an investigator for the federal income tax bureau are in Boston and their presence is understood to be a result of this information.

Again and again during the testimony before the Samuel Seabury committee in New York that ended Walker's political career, Seabury sought to learn what Walker had done with the profits he made from various private transactions while he was New York's playboy Mayor—one of them a $261,000 stock deal.

"Where was Walker's little tin box?" became a famous sally.

If the federal information is correct the Boston bank may be the answer.

Beds in Icebox In Day Make Nights Cool

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 13.—For the benefit of those who have been wondering how Missourians sleep with the temperature 100 and better 24 hours a day.

A woman in St. Joseph, Mo., wrote a friend here that they pack their pillows and bed clothes in the ice box from early afternoon to bed time, then they make their beds hastily and try to go to sleep before the bed warms up again.

Patricia Pitt

When the Swedish-American liner Kungsholm docked in New York Friday, after a North Cape cruise, it brought back to the States a party of Pittsburgh social registerites.

Aboard were Mrs. Thomas A. Mellon and her daughter, Patsy; Mrs. Francis Sellers Guthrie and her daughter, Kathleen, and Ellen McClay, daughter of Mrs. Samuel McClay, of Devon road, whose travel companion was Mrs. F. W. Mirkil, of Philadelphia.

Miss McClay

Mrs. Mellon and her daughter arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday. The Guthries' household wasn't sure just when their travelers would be back when I called Saturday.

Ellen McClay will visit friends in New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and won't be home probably until early September.

On their cruise they visited Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Russia. They had two days in Leningrad and two in Moscow. The trip through Russia was by chartered train.

Saw Midnight Sun While in Norway

At North Cape, Norway, they did a bit of climbing to a mountain top to view the midnight sun.

Two of the voyagers, Patsy Mellon and Kathleen Guthrie, are shown aboard ship in the picture at the right as they appeared at a fancy dress ball.

The Playhouse plays are given in the Arnold School Theater, Braddock avenue.

Mr. Mellon was one of the judges.

News comes from the fashionable summer resort, Watch Hill, R. I., that William S. Moorhead was elected a member of the Watch Hill Chapel Society at its annual meeting Saturday.

Social Registerite Young Campers Going to Lake in Canadian Wilds

The wilds of Canada, on O'Sullivan Lake, 200 miles from the nearest railroad, will attract a party of social registerite young compers.

Edward O'Neil II and George Potter O'Neil, sons of the Chauncey O'Neils, of Sewickley, has left already. And Saturday James Miller McCready, Evans Rose, Malcolm Macfarlane, John Foster and others will leave to join them.

Indian guides will accompany the young men on their trip in the O'Sullivan Lake district.

Another highlight of the week will be the wedding of pretty young Peggy Berger, daughter of Mrs. William A. Berger, and Thomas Reed III, son of the Philip S. Reeds, of Paris, France, to take place Wednesday at 5 o'clock in Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

Rockledge Members Away

Vacation trips of various kinds have taken members of the Rockledge Garden Club to many parts of the country. Other members have been content to remain at home and enjoy the gardens for which they have planned and worked all spring. Among the latter are Mrs. Sidney Chalfant, Mrs. J. G. McAbee and Mrs. S. R. Alman, who prefer to leave their gardens for trips in the South when the colder weather arrives.

Mrs. Alexander P. Lindsay has spent the larger part of the summer reconstructing certain parts of her garden amid doing a great deal of reading. Mrs. Frank D. Newbury, president of the club, has been at home most of the summer, but will drive to New York soon to return with her daughter, Miss Constance Newbury, who has been doing medical work in that city.

Mrs. Frank H. Davis and family will drive to Geneva next week, where Mrs. W. J. Hager has been spending her vacation. The family of Mrs. J. H. McCrady, Jr., has been spending the summer at Conneaut, O.

Mrs. S. M. Young will drive to Barry's Bay, Canada, with Mr. Young, shortly. Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Leavenworth have been vacationing at Muskoka Lake. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Brinton expect to drive east later in August. Mrs. Brinton has been at North East, Pa., with the children during July. Mrs. J. Lee Barnes is at Cape May with her parents, while her daughters, Miss Adelaide and Miss Georgeanne, are visiting at Berkeley, Pa.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Koch recently returned from a month at Osterville. Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Rogers expect to drive to Sherwood Forest, Md., for a visit. Summering near Pittsburgh are Mrs. S. K. Cunningham and Mrs. W. B. Laufmann, who have summer homes in the Fox Chapel district. Mrs. R. M. Ewing has also spent many week-ends at a country place nearby, as has Mrs. P. G. Lambert.

Southern Club Women Out Of City

Mrs. C. C. Hartman, of the Southern Club, together with Dr. Hartman and their daughter, Jane Aileen Hartman, is spending a fortnight in Atlantic City. They motored East last week.

Another member of the Southern Club, Mrs. James McFall, a past president, is accompanying her husband on a fishing trip through Nova Scotia. They are motoring and move about from place to place to find a variety of fish. They expect to be gone for the whole month of August.

Mrs. J. W. Rese, publicity chairman, and Mr. Rese are home from a trip to the Century of Progress Exposition.

Mrs. Edwin P. Griffiths and her family have gone to Canada to remain until after September 1.

Swissvale Group Will Have Picnic

Swissvale Service Star Legion will have its annual picnic at Kennywood Park all day Friday. Mrs. Albert Oskin heads the committees.

Miss Amos To Address Women

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

With a number of outstanding speakers listed from time to time, the Woman's Club of Regent Square may look forward to another year of interest and variety. For instance, Miss Thyrsa W. Amos, dean of women at the University of Pittsburgh, is to be the speaker for president's day on October 16 when Mrs. John Allison, who continues in office, will be honored. Miss Amos' subject will be "The Fine Art of Living."

When the women have their husbands and friends as guests at an evening meeting in November the speaker will be Judge Gustav L. Schramm and club scouts will give part of the program. Mrs. Allison is to be leader for the Christmas season to which the members will bring gifts for the needy.

With music by Frederic W. Lotz, a talk on "Personality," by Dr. Florence M. Teagarden, of the University of Pittsburgh, the Swissvale Woman's Club will find worth while entertainment when it is entertained by its Regent Square neighbors in February. A business meeting and entertainment in March, a program in charge of the altruistic committee, a tour of McCann's and a talk on "Food," by C. H. Lehmann, then the annual luncheon and another season will have come to an end.

Serving in Mrs. Allison's cabinet are Mrs. Hurst Fonda, vice president; Mrs. Edwin G. Olds, recording secretary; Mrs. George Shallenberger, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. F. Heinman, financial secretary, and Mrs. A. E. Mildon, treasurer, who with the committee chairmen, compose the executive board.

Naturalists Announce Lectures

The Naturalists' Society of Pittsburgh has announced two more lectures in the summer series being given in the log cabin of Frick Park, near Braddock avenue and Forbes street.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, Dr. Leroy Henry, of the herbarium of Carnegie Museum, will speak on "Edible Berries and Fruits."

The following Tuesday evening, August 21, Dr. Warren Witz, of the botany department of the University of Pittsburgh, will speak on "The History of Gardening."

These lectures are open to the public without admission fees or collections.

Lacovin Club Has Dinner

Members of the Lacovin Club are meeting informally each week throughout the summer. Last week they had dinner at the Italian Gardens and followed it with a theater party at the Penn.

Miss Aileen Rosen and Miss Sari Gelman were in charge of arrangements.

Miss Carson Weds Wilmot N. Staniek

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Carson, of Gallion avenue, Brookline, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Eleanor F. Carson, to Wilmot N. Staniek, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Staniek, of Thompson drive, Evergreen Estates, which took place Saturday.

Pittsburghers Atlantic City Visitors

Vacationing at Atlantic City, N. J., where they are stopping at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, are Mrs. C. R. McNaughton and her daughter, of Davis avenue; Mrs. H. M. Love, Termon avenue; Miss Edna and Miss Margaret McCann, South Atlantic avenue; Mrs. Mary S. Murphy, Baycourt street, and Miss Ellen C. Hogan, Locust street, Mt. Oliver.

Others are: Mrs. J. A. McCoy, Malvern avenue; Mrs. O. M. Rainbow, Malvern avenue; Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Kvatsak and Robert Kvatsak, of California avenue; A. O. Whitney, of Wood street, and Harmar D. and William J. Bell, of Beverly place, East End.

Oakdale Girl Weds Ohio Man

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Fulmer, of Oakdale, Pa., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice Barcroft, to Dr. Ralph E. Wharton, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wharton, of Johnstown, O., which took place August 6 in the Fulmer home. The Rev. H. A. Mosser was the officiant.

Three Ministers to Figure In Johnson Nuptials

No less than three ministers will figure in the marriage of Miss Esther Johnson, of North Bryant street, Bellevue, at her wedding tomorrow.

The Rev. Norman O. Schribner will be the bridegroom, her father, the Rev. C. S. Johnson, will officiate, and her brother, the Rev. Robert Johnson, will be best man.

Miss Johnson and the Rev. Mr. Schribner will be married at noon in the home of her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Johnson. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Schribner, of Baltimore, Md.

Miss Johnson was graduated from DePaw University at Greencastle, Ind., and from Carnegie Institute of Technology. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma national collegiate sorority.

The bridegroom-elect was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan and received his master's degree from Boston University. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

After their wedding trip the Rev. Mr. Schribner and his bride will be at home in 1105 Fourth street, southwest, Washington, where Mr. Schribner is in charge of the Gorsuch Methodist Episcopal Church.

Pittsburghers Visit New York

Jewish Women Will Visit Gardens

A visit to Fox Chapel gardens will feature the next meeting of the Garden Club of Pittsburgh section, National Council of Jewish Women.

The members will meet at the home of the club chairman, Mrs. A. Cass Sunstein, Bennington avenue, on Wednesday at 2 o'clock, and under the direction of Stanley W. Leonard, landscape architect, will be taken on a tour of beautiful Fox Chapel. The tour is open to friends of members, too.

Scott Family To Have Reunion

The twentieth annual reunion of the Scott family will be held at Mingo Church Wednesday, August 29. The Women's Guild of the church will serve luncheon.

Miss Sally Klee Is Bride of Ohio Man

Both the bride and her maid of honor wore boucle suits at the wedding of Miss Sally Klee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Klee, of Canonsburg, and Bernard B. Weinstein, son of Mrs. Sarah Weinstein, of Steubenville, O., which took place in the study of Rabbi A. M. Ashinsky, Sunday, August 5, at 4 o'clock.

The bride's suit was of white silk boucle and that of her maid of honor, Miss Helen Weinstein, sister of the bridegroom, was yellow. Both wore matching accessories with the bride having a corsage of orchids, and the maid of honor carrying yellow tea roses.

Boats Favored By Season's Travelers

Cruises are much favored as vacations this season.

Miss Margaret Caldwell, Miss Margaret and Miss Elizabeth Mathews, of Pittsburgh, will arrive in New York today on the new Grace liner Santa Elena, which is returning from British Columbia, California, Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Panama, Columbia and Havana.

Miss Ann Burns and Miss Betty Foster, of Biltmore avenue, Dormont, sailed August 4 on the Duchess of Richmond from New York to Quebec and Montreal. On their return to the East, they will visit Mrs. James W. Leis, of Passaic, N. J., an aunt of Miss Burns.

Miss Bertha Smith, Miss E. M. Rittinger, Miss Anna Krieger and Miss Tillie Krieger sailed Saturday on the Munargo of the Munson line, bound for Nassau, Miami and Havana.

Someone's been playing fairy godmother again! Someone has a magic touch . . . or a wand, one or the other. Otherwise, how could such linens as these ever in the world appear at such a price as $3.95 for a set of 8!

The linen is fine and soft . . . wonderfully even and clear . . . with hemstitched fringed edges all the way 'round! And dainty tendrils with buds hand embroidered around the edges in colors—gold, peach, blue and red. Quite a set, we thought for the money—8 good sized napkins, 8 mats, and a long runner.

The coming Tilden, are you? Then how does this news about the complete set—racquet, canvas cover, press—strike you, for $3.95? We could scarcely believe our old eyes when we rounded a corner and blinked at the tableful of these.

The racquets are well constructed and balanced . . . with reinforced throats . . . Pennsylvania ash frames (you know how sturdy that is) . . . and are silk strung. Medium and lightweight. Good assurance that your serves will be the best.

For one of the stores has taken their regular $1.95 synthetic (acetate) crepe frocks . . . the whole kit and posse of them . . . and marked them 59c apiece to be sold out! Shirtwaist types with short sleeves . . . in pastel stripes, or plain color. Sizes 14 to 20.

So that you can keep something in your cupboard other than the skeleton . . . we present the new assortment of racks and other hang-uppable chrome gadgets that we have found. Beginning with . . .

Trouser hangers at 25c. Neat, and right size to slide the cuffs of the trousers through and leave them hanging there with the "press" intact! And necktie racks at 50c . . . and shoe holders, adjustable ones 18" to 32", priced at 90c.

Then there is a clothing carrier that we fell in love with—that you fasten to the under side of the shelf, hang your clothes, and when you want them again, just reach in and pull the whole rod-full out toward you. Selection is easy this way . . . there is no chance of their collapsing to the floor (which is usually what happens to us at crucial moments!) Their size is 12" to 30" and prices range from $1.00 to $4.00.

How about extension rods that will fit any closet 18" . . . 30" . . . 48" and priced at 75c to $1.50? And hat stands that fasten to the shelves—none of these tip-overable types! 75c. Really . . . you just have to see them to understand what a capacity your closet CAN have!

The place to rest your weary head is upon one of these smart-looking pillow cases that have made their appearance in one of the shops.

Of fine muslin with fancy scalloped edges and really a beautiful 2" initial embroidered in solid and seed stitch. The initial alone would cost you $2.50, we understand, if done at this time . . . so you can see what a buy these are at $1.95 THE PAIR! (P. S. We bought them for linen at first . . . and then loved them so much that we wouldn't part with them for anything!)

NEW DEAL EYES PRIMARIES IN 4 STATES

By ARTHUR HACNTEN
Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Four states — Ohio, Nebraska, Idaho and Arkansas—hold primary elections tomorrow, with national political leaders eyeing the first three or straws indicating sentiment toward the Roosevelt "New Deal."

Results of bitter Democratic senatorial races in Ohio and Nebraska were of chief interest.

Nominees for 58 seats in the national House of Representatives will be selected in the four states along with a host of state and local offices.

Idaho's gubernatorial race was expected to give an inkling to the effect of Senator Borah's sledgehammer assaults on the NRA, AAA and other "New Deal" agencies.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, one-time Democratic vice presidential nominee, in his race for the Democratic senatorial nomination against Representative Edward R. Burke, of Omaha, is sorely threatened.

It has been a red-hot fight with Arthur F. Mullen, former Democratic national committeeman, backing Burke.

Senator William H. Thompson, Democrat, appointed by Gov. Bryan to the seat vacated by the death of Senator R. B. Howell, Republican, did not enter the race.

Five candidates are after the Republican nomination, with former Representative Robert Simmons given a good chance for victory.

Democrats in Ohio are in a three-cornered fight, with ex-Gov. A. V. (Vic) Donahey, Gov. George White and Representative Charles West at loggerheads. West has been dubbed the Roosevelt administration's "fair-haired boy."

The administration took a beating in West Virginia's senatorial primary when Clem Shaver was defeated by Rush D. Holt, 29-year-old State Legislator.

Senator Simeon D. Fess was believed certain to be renominated by the Ohio Republicans. Jacob B. Coxey of "Coxey's Army" fame, is running against him with three comparatively unknown Republicans.

SHE WON'T WED FOR $25,000

CINCINNATI, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Widowed Mrs. Josephine B. Patton, "around forty" by her own reckoning, revealed today that she must be married again by October 28 or lose a legacy of $25,000, but insisted:

"I have no hopes of claiming the money."

For one thing, she's too interested in her work of beautifying other women to worry about finding herself a man. She explained:

"It wouldn't be worth the money to marry someone you did not like."

The legacy, she said, was left her by an old admirer 11 years ago, five years after the death of her husband, a Cincinnati dentist. She refused to reveal who the legatee was but admitted she has been "engaged" within the 11 years that have passed, adding:

"Something always came up and I didn't go through with it. Once I thought so strongly of it I went to Omaha and looked up a sweetheart of years ago. He was so changed I stayed only three days. Men I could have had during all these years I didn't want. I'm particular, I guess."

Wilkinsburg Man Stabbed in Fight

Stabbed during a fight at South Diamond street and Sherman avenue, Fred Carver, 29, of 1412 Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, was in a serious condition today in Presbyterian Hospital. A young woman was arrested after reporting the fight as police continued their investigation into the mishap.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS :-: By PAUL MALLON

New Deal's Future Depends on Aid of Progressives

Mr. Mallon.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—President Roosevelt's original campaign was for the forgotten man. By now, however, the forgotten man is supposed to have been remembered. In the Green Bay speech, Mr. Roosevelt opened a new campaign for the average man.

That drew a lot of applause from the political strategists in the Roosevelt camp. These strategists probably would applaud whatever Mr. Roosevelt did, but they had a particularly good private excuse for cheering this time.

Nearly everyone masquerading as a politician here is sure that the future of the New Deal at the polls lies in an alliance with Western Progressives, either covertly or openly.

One of Mr. Roosevelt's reactionary advisers (there are one or two left here) commented on the Green Bay speech privately:

"He will have to carry the Progressives along until after the November elections."

Most impartial observers will add:

"And a lot further."

For this reason, if for no other, the wise boys expect the administration to make few compromises with the conservative element in the formation of policies anytime soon.

The bridge behind has now been cut away.

FOOD

The AAA crowd is inwardly fearful that the country may get stirred up about a food shortage. They have decided to stress publicly, in every possible way, their belief there will be plenty of food to go around, despite the drought.

When all the figures are given out you will find that crops are between 60 per cent and 35 per cent normal. The AAA technicians have figures showing a 50 per cent normal crop, generally, is enough to prevent a food shortage.

There will be shortages in production of certain basic foods, such as wheat and corn, and, to a lesser extent, in meats. Profiteers may use this condition as an excuse to get operating again for the first time since the war. If they do, the AAA has adequate powers to take the situation in hand. It will.

SILVER PROFITS

Smooth marketeers avoided that 50 per cent tax on silver profits. At least 60,000,000 ounces (one-third of the domestic stock) were sold after Mr. Morgenthau's list of silver speculators was sent to the senate and before the tax went into effect.

Others avoided the tax by holding on until nationalization was announced. The government had to decree (for legal reasons) that the seizure of silver stocks under nationalization is not in effect a sale. Hence, the profits made by private holders are not taxable.

The prophetic wisdom of silver operators was even more remarkable two days prior to nationalization. They divined that nationalization was coming, and the market went up two cents an ounce. There was no leak, apparently. They merely heard about the consular invoice announcement 48 hours before nationalization and assumed nationalization would follow.

GUNNERS

One class quietly gunning for Mr. Roosevelt is the school teachers. They believe the New Deal has not done right by them in the way of relief. Particularly offensive is the requirement that they virtually prove pauperism before they can get aid in the federal educational relief program.

Teachers who have life insurance policies or any articles of value have been denied relief jobs on occasions.

One inner cause of the teachers' failure to attain proper recognition in Washington is the inadequacy of their lobby. Another is that the group is split on religious and other grounds.

CREDIT

The big invisible hand of the government was seen in the government bond market recently by those who have an eye for such business.

The marketeers suspected that the government bought around $75,000,000 in governments in the open market, the day after silver nationalization was announced. The purchases supposedly were made out of the stabilization fund. There is plenty more in that fund to take care of even deeper dips.

NEW YORK'S SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN IS BECOMING INTERESTING. SENATOR ROYAL S. COPELAND ANNOUNCED SOME TIME AGO THAT HE IS A CANDIDATE FOR REELECTION. NEXT CAME MR. T. F. CONWAY, OF PLATTSBURGH, AND NOW COLONEL HENRY S. BRECKINRIDGE APPEARS ON THE SCENE AS AN INDEPENDENT.

COLONEL BRECKINRIDGE IS 48 YEARS OLD; A GRADUATE OF PRINCETON, 1907; HARVARD, 1910; ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF WAR UNDER WILSON; SERVED IN FRANCE DURING THE WAR; ORGANIZED THE FIRST NAVY DAY, LAWYER AND ADVISOR TO CHARLES LINDBERGH SINCE THE LATTER'S FAMOUS FLIGHT.

'American Beauty' Gets Pollard Estate

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—To Marguerite Fischer, actress known in the early days of the movies as the "American Beauty Girl," went the bulk of the estate of her husband, Harry A. Pollard, film actor and director, it was revealed today with the filing of his will for probate.

STATUE LIGHTED BY POPE'S HAND

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—A 20-foot statue of the Madonna, overlooking the far-away Strait of Messini between Sicily and Italy, suddenly was bathed in electric light last night as Pope Pius pressed a radio control button in the study of his summer villa.

The statue, erected to "Our Lady of the Letter," stands on the Messina waterfront. It is regarded as the "crowning work" of reconstruction which has been going on at Messina since the earthquake of 1908.

Following the illumination, the Pope transmitted by radio a benediction, in Latin, in which he invoked the protection of the Virgin for Messina.

Wants Intelligent Men For Companionship

Doesn't CRAVE MARRIAGE. But wants a BETTER TIME! Everything is stogey . . . Beautiful, but unappreciated . . . like the flower that blows in the desert air . . . that is Lucille's problem . . .

Wants to meet NEW FRIENDS, preferably of the OPPOSITE SEX . . .

But she says her HANDS ARE TIED . . .

I wonder if it is lack of INITIATIVE, Lucille?

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 28 and am dying of rot. Three years ago I lived. Now I vegetate. I lived in a distant city for over six years with relatives and enjoyed life very much. I was happy then.

Miss Brunot

At that time I had a very nice boy friend and we were engaged to be married. He spent money liberally and was good to me. We swam, danced and golfed. I drove his high-powered car. Then we broke up.

He could have given me a splendid time. But his ideals were made of tinsel, and I wanted to better them. However, do not think I am pining for him. For I am not.

DOESN'T WANT MARRIAGE

Be that as it may, I came home, to die socially. Repeatedly I have been called beautiful by both men and women. And yet I never go out any more but to stogey bridge parties or with a few straggling friends of my sister. They are all younger than I. Most of the girls I used to chum around with are married. I alone am the loser. I do not care for marriage, but I want a better time. I want intelligent men friends.

What I want to know is how can a girl meet desirable men friends. I used to cry my eyes out over the futility of working daily and then coming home to reading, making hooked rugs or playing bridge. Or visiting gushy and silly girls. For I had mingled with people who really did things. There isn't the ghost of a chance where I work, as the men are all married. No one takes any thought of me.

This worried me formerly more than it does now. I am beginning to accept the inevitable. Even so at times my peace of mind disappears, and then I suffered the tortures of the damned.

CAN'T FLIRT

Probably you think I am making a mountain out of a molehill. But you have never lived a lonely existence, and you can thank your lucky stars, for it is a terrible disease.

I cannot bring myself to flirt with idle passersby. Surely at 28 one should not be so doomed. Should I stick it out here, or go elsewhere. With labor problems so topsy-turvy, I fear to do anything radical. My hands are literally tied. I want to meet men friends.

Sincerely trusting you, I am,
LUCILLE.

You say I have never been LONELY . . . How can you say that . . . What proof have you . . . True, I live actively . . . I keep busy mentally and socially. I make friends rather rapidly, and hold a good many of them . . . But is this EVER an ACCIDENT . . . I say, no.

To have friends, we must be a friend . . . To be active, we must KEEP ACTIVE . . . Never must we let sloth crawl in . . . Never must be accept the inevitable . . . Never must we drift along, and then in the quiet of remorse suffer the tortures of the damned.

We are our own destiny, and half the ills that come to us we could have checked, if we had taken them in time.

CAN WIN ANOTHER

We look about, observe, but do we profit? You won one man's love and he gave generously . . . You can do so again, Lucille.

Why see nothing pleasurable in reading and making hooked rugs and in playing bridge . . . Why say that there is no one attainable in your office force . . . Tomorrow there may be a change there . . . Someone else may come to work, a man, interesting and single. Who can say . . . LOOKING ahead, and for happiness, it usually comes to us . . .

LIFE INTERESTING

LIFE is ALWAYS interesting . . . there are always things behind and things ahead and things happening that fascinate, if we but see them that way . . . Death may be the GREAT ADVENTURE. Yet before death comes life . . . And who wants to lessen its value even for something more vast?

If you want to associate with big men, men of intellect and action, you must have SOMETHING to attract them. And this SOMETHING is not the memory of a past suitor who was important, it is not the carping at events as they are . . .

I wouldn't stay a minute anywhere that made me miserable. . . . I wouldn't allow, day after day, an unpleasant environment to creep in around me. . . You, yourself, are too important for that. Drifting along is acknowledging that you have not the self-assertiveness to do anything else . . . Wasting beauty and talent is a sin . . . one that fate takes toll for. . . .

Perhaps this aid I am giving you is a trifle abstract . . . It may be too philosophical to be a direct aid . . . Yet try to digest it . . . And then formulate your plans . . . But don't slide about any longer . . . FEAR NOTHING . . . there is nothing to fear . . . Not even the depression. . . .

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

FAY KING CAUTIONS VERY YOUNG PEOPLE TO DELAY MATRIMONY

By FAY KING

When one is very young, one may marry for such silly reasons. Young couples have eloped just to surprise their friends.

A girl will marry a young man she doesn't care so much about because she wishes to show two or three other girls who are in love with him that she could marry him.

Another girl will marry Jim just to prove to Joe that she is not heartbroken because he has fallen in love with Jane.

Other girls will marry any one they can just to get away from home.

It is only when one is very young that one falls in love and marries a young man who is popular, a good dancer, a smart dresser, or so handsome.

FORECASTS OF WINTRY HATS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

ONE ENTERPRISING American designer has brought out her own adaptation from French style sources—but she chose the Louvre instead of the Rue de la Paix. The Gobelin tapestries and the general elegance fostered by Louis XV took her eye this summer, and the result is a most wearable collection of soft, snug hats in lovely Gobelin grays, blues, sulphur yellows and coppers and rich browns.

THE TOP and bottom hats sketched below are two of them; they are the perfect bonnets to set off soft dressmaker gowns intended for afternoon parties and informal restaurant dining, models which gravitate toward delicate or splashing jewelry and subtly colored hats for their complements.

ANY WOMAN who has seen the advance frock models realizes that the Russian influence has overtaken cloth dresses to such an extent that nothing but a Russian or Mongolian hat looks sympathetic with them. The flat peasant cap is lurking beneath the bird-trimmed model below, and we all recognize Russia in the Cossack model.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Top, a soft brimmed brown velvet toque, saucer shape, with a huge chou of copper and beige velvet smack at the crown front. Center, a Cossack cap of brown silk astrakhan, stuck with lemon and melon ribbon quills. Below, a cuff toque of black velvet with tiny black and white penguins and a halo veil for trim.

Troopers Clear Road for Car

I bit back a smile at the way in which Jimmy and his comrade straightened themselves to their full height as my father asked them if they could engage to keep traffic away from the road until we were well on the way. Palpably he had touched their pride as state troopers—dispensers of the high justice, the middle and the low, as far as traffic was concerned—and they were quick to assure him of their puissance.

"Can we engage to keep traffic off this road?" Jimmy countered. "We can clear all roads to wherev r you want to go, no matter how far it is. Capt Jackson's note, if it means anything, means that we're to go the limit for you, and whatever he says goes with us."

The tall young trooper was moving his lips as if he were saying a prayer, and, listening carefully, I heard an echo of his comrade's boast.

CLEAR THE ROADS!

"Can we clear the roads?" he was muttering. "Oh, boy! I'll tell the cock-eyed world we can!"

"We will need you only until we are well started," my father told them. "I simply wish to make sure that no one sees us coming out of this place, or comes so near here on the road that he may guess we have been here. You know the roads better than we do, so you will have to plan how to manage it."

He paused, and Jimmy answered him promptly.

"That's easy. Which way do you want to go when you leave here—to the right, or the left?"

"To the right," my father answered.

"Then," Jimmy said slowly, his eyes narrowed in speculation, "Joe, here, will go down the road to the left until he's well around the bend, so that nobody coming from that direction can possibly see what's going on here. I'll take the car and go down the road to the right.

"You folks wait 10 minutes exactly after we leave, before you come out of this path. After that, it will be as safe as a church for you. There won't be a soul on the road except yourselves and us. Whenever you get to the point where you think it's safe to go it alone, just speed up your car and pass me, then I'll turn around and beat it back to Joe."

"And we'll guarantee you won't get a ticket for speeding," Joe said with his irrepressible grin. It was his farewell gesture to us, for the next second he had turned and his long legs were taking him away from us at a rate that soon lost him to sight.

Jimmy waited only until Joe had gone, before turning to my father.

"Is 10 minutes all right with you, sir?" he asked.

"Perfectly," my father said, taking out his watch. "In exactly that time we shall leave here."

"The road will be clear, sir," the young trooper said, and with another salute to my father he strode down the path out of sight.

'TIME'S UP'

When he was well away I stepped close to my father.

"Is it all right to call to Bob?" I asked. "He probably came back to the glade, saw the troopers and thought he would better keep out of sight."

"Wise boy," my father commented. "Of course, call him." I walked over and sent across the glade a call of "Bob! Bob! It's all right. Come in now!"

I did not have to sound the call twice. The last words had hardly left my lips before Bob emerged from the glade and ran lightly toward us.

"My heart was sure using the roof of my mouth for a billiard table when I saw those troopers in here," he said as he came up to us. "I was just out of the brush when I spied that first one—it's a wonder he didn't spot me—

"By the way, Hank and Bill must be nearly at the farm house by this time. They was riding those bicycles as if they were polo ponies when I last saw them."

"That's good," I said, then took pity upon the eager, unspoken curiosity in Bob's face.

"I suppose you would like to know what this all means," I said, and forthwith plunged into the narrative of what had happened since he had left us. I was on the last sentence when my father snapped his watch shut and took a step toward us.

"Time's up," he said. "Let's go."

Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Problem in Discarding Losers

(This is one of a series of articles in which Mrs. Culbertson explains certain principles of the new Culbertson System of Play. The examples and rules given by Mrs. Culbertson in these articles have never been published heretofore and are exclusive in Pittsburgh with the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

There are many rare plays in Bridge which are difficult neither to understand nor to execute. Practically any fair player is capable of making a number of good plays which in actual practice he does not make because it does not occur to him to do so. So many people play Contract Bridge too rapidly or without paying careful attention to all the possibilities offered by the cards they hold, that they will overlook these plays indefinitely unless something happens to bring them to their attention. As soon as they once learn the play it is theirs for life.

Mrs. Culbertson

Time and again I have known fairly good Bridge players to develop a winning card by careful and correct play, and then when they lead this card and have an opportunity to discard on it, their grasp of the situations seems to desert them and they make a play which spoils all the good work they have previously done.

The hand below is very interesting and adequately illustrates an important means of developing extra tricks. I believe that a careful study of the hand will prove more instructive than any description of this type of play which I could give.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ K J 10 ♡ 9 7 ◇ K 7 6 5 ♣ A K J 9
♠ 7 4 ♡ K J 10 6 ◇ J 10 9 ♣ 10 7 6 5	North West East South	♠ 9 8 ♡ Q 5 4 3 2 ◇ Q 8 4 ♣ Q 8 2
	♠ A Q 6 5 3 2 ♡ A 8 ◇ A 3 2 ♣ 4 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 N T	Pass
5 N T	Pass	7 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

I hold no brief for the bidding which was highly optimistic. South bid at least three times on the same values. While the six-card spade suit justified him in going to six spades if North showed strong support, the Grand Slam was a distinct overbid. North's double Raise was also an overbid, considering his poor distribution.

West opened the Jack of hearts, which South won with the Ace. South now appeared to have two sure losing tricks, and even a club finesse would furnish him only one discard except in the improbable event that West held both the Queen and Ten of clubs and two finesses could be taken. At least so it seemed to the man who played the hand, and he dolefully drew trumps and then, leading a low club toward Dummy, finessed the nine. East, of course, won the Queen and cashed a heart trick, setting the contract two.

Proper play woud have made the hand, and while so over-optimistic a contract really does not deserve to succeed, if a man is a good card player he is often justified in bidding more than is warranted by the actual strength of his hand because of his ability to gain extra tricks in the play. South should have gone about his seemingly hopeless task in this manner:

First, two trumps should be led, which reveal the fact that spades are evenly divided. Next the Ace and King of Clubs are played from Dummy, and when Dummy's club nine is next led the Queen falls and is ruffed by South, establishing Dummy's club Jack for a discard.

At this point the player must overcome a serious psychological tendency to discard the most pressing loser immediately. If South returns to Dummy and discards his heart on the Jack of clubs, the hand will still be defeated because there will be no way to avoid losing a diamond trick.

But if South sees the hidden possibility of establishing till another winner in the diamond suit he can make the hand. After ruffing the third club South should lead the diamond Ace and then a diamond to Dummy's King. South's third diamond is now discarded on the Jack of clubs.

When a diamond is led from Dummy and ruffed, it is the third round of that suit and exhausts East and West of diamonds, so that Dummy's last diamond is established. Now the spade King furnishes an entry to lead that diamond and get rid of South's losing heart.

You will notice that it was first necessary to ruff out one suit on which to discard a loser of a second suit. This sets the stage for ruffing out the second suit, upon which a loser of a third suit can in turn be discarded.

This is somewhat of a double-barreled arrangement similar to a rocket within a rocket, but once a player has mastered the technique of the play he will be surprised at how many "hopeless" contracts are really easy to make because the opponents' sure tricks are not really tricks at all.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If hair breaks when it is brushed or combed as sometimes happens after repeated permanents, use brilliantine freely. This preparation has a good effect upon the undulation, making the pattern larger and more fluid.

The best investment the housewife can make is a pair of rubber gloves. No magic ointment will put hands in form if they are constantly subjected to grime and dust. Use talcum powder before slipping on the gloves. Keep a bottle of hand lotion in the bathroom, another one on the kitchen shelf. Use freely and often. Hands require as much care as a spoiled child—almost.

Indoor Chives.

Chives can be potted and successfully grown on a kitchen window ledge; and it is possible in warm and sheltered corners to keep little plants of borage going right through the winter months—for these delicate things do not "store" in the manner of ordinary herbs.

Fruits for Baby.

Apple sauce or prune pulp passed through a sieve or strainer may be given a child for supper beginning at the tenth month. Prunes should be soaked all night and cooked until soft enough to mash through a strainer.

Use for Wrappers.

Save your butter wrappers, and when making suet puddings wrap the pudidngs in paper before putting them into a cloth. This helps to keep the pudding light and takes the first heavy grease from the pudding — thus making the cloth easier to wash.

Renewing Leather.

Faded leather can be given a fresh look by giving it several coats of water-color paint the shade of the leather and then rubbing the surface well with a good furniture polish after the paint is thoroughly dried into the leather.

Wedding Message

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine has invited me to her wedding which is to be held at the Blank Hotel. As it will be impossible for me to be there, I have decided to send a telegram. Will you kindly suggest a few appropriate words, and also how should I address it? P.

Time the sending of your telegram so that it will arrive as soon as possible after the ceremony has been performed. Address it to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith. And your telegram might be worded: "Every good wish for your happiness now and always and devoted love", or "May you walk with happiness always", or "You have been in my thoughts this happy day and I am sending you every good wish."

How to Keep Well

Science Has Eradicated Malaria

Dr. Copeland

Scientific Research and modern sanitation have resulted in the eradication of many diseases, with consequent decline in the death rate. For example, few today have occasion to fear malaria, and the disease is rarely encountered except in those sections where filth, unhygienic conditions and inadequate protection against mosquitoes continue to exist.

The story of the eradication of malaria is fascinating. It means much to us because for many centuries this disease plagued mankind. It had been discovered that quinine was curative of malaria, but the means of preventing the disease did not become known until the nineteenth century.

In 1880, a French army surgeon, Dr. Laveran, discovered that malaria is caused by a parasite. Sir Ronald Ross determined that this parasite is carried by a certain specie of mosquito, the Anopheles. When a malaria victim is bitten, the parasite is passed to the mosquito, which in turn passes it on to the next victim of its bite.

The value of preventive medicine and sanitation is well illustrated in the present day control of malaria. This has been done within the past quarter of a century by the elimination of the offending mosquitoes. This was accomplished by doing away with mosquito-infested areas, such as marshes and stagnant waters, and the correction of faulty sanitation. The enforcement of hygienic measures, the screening of homes in malarial districts, and the isolation of malaria patients, have helped rid certain sections of the world of this formerly dreaded disease.

In former times the Panama Canal Zone was beclouded by mosquitoes carrying the malarial germ. This handicap prevented the French engineers from completing the building of the Panama Canal. Fifty thousand men died of malaria and the undertaking was abandoned. When the project was taken over by the American government energetic measures were used to rid the Canal Zone of the mosquito. This was accomplished by extensive draining, oiling and sprinkling of mosquito breeding places. Today, this portion of the American continent is comparatively free of mosquitoes and, of course, of malaria. The completion of the Panama Canal was made possible by the work of physicians and public health officials.

Malaria occasionally appears in some sections of the country. In most cases it can be traced to negligence or lack of proper sanitation. It is often carried to a community by the inoculation of the local mosquitoes by someone who has recently returned from a malarial district.

The victim of malaria first complains of a chill. This is soon followed by high fever and sweating. The chronic sufferer from this disease tires easily, is anemic and has no desire for food. As a rule, he has many other mild but persistent complaints, such as headache and backache and inability to work.

Contest Picture No. 57 Will Appear in Tomorrow's

OH YES! YOU TOO CAN PLAY PIANO

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—You, too, can play the piano!

Sigmund Spaeth, an authority on the subject of music, says so.

Maybe Bach or Brahms won't be so easy—but what you can learn to do, despite any lack of musical training or background, he says, is to accompany a song passably well with one of two chords.

Teachers and musicians and music-lovers generally, says Spaeth, have been entirely too snobbish about music, and thus kept it away from what might be termed the vast public. He exclaims:

"What does a music teacher do when a businessman says he wants to learn to play the piano? Ha! He puts him to finger exercises and makes the whole thing unpleasant."

Spaeth would teach the busy businessman chords, easy ones, and let it go at that.

The subject came up because Spaeth just recently finished penning "Music for Everybody" for the Leisure League of America. It's designed to show those who have the leisure for it can tap the great resources of music for self-amusement. Spaeth said:

"It's a pity that after a hundred years of development the greatest orchestra in the world—the Philharmonic—can't attract an audience unless it employs the world's greatest conductor."

As to the snobs of music—"There's bunk in them thar highbrows"—Spaeth hasn't any patience with the people who pretend to enjoy everything that isn't tagged popular, and pretend to dislike anything that is. He hasn't any patience either with the careful avoidance of showmanship for anything classical.

All prizes and ravings to the side, he mentions "Cat and the Fiddle"—Jerome Kern, and "Of Thee I Sing"—George Gershwin, as truly great American operas.

Pens Wife Farewell, Leaps From Bridge

AMBRIDGE, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Police and firemen are dragging the Ohio River for the body of Perry Hoffman, 35, of Harmony Township, believed to have committed suicide by leaping from the Ambridge-Aliquippa Bridge.

In a note found by Hoffman's wife, Mrs. Ellen Hoffman, the man said:

"Dearest Ethel: I'm sorry, but this seems to be the best way out. I am not worthy of you, and I feel sure you will get along a lot better without me."

Mothers, Children To Be Guests of Sun-Telegraph

WILLIAM CATALDO

Master William, just 3, 924 Gerrett street, who'll smile in tomorrow's Pretty Baby contest.

Mothers and children will spend the most of the day at the park, and the evening, too.

The last entries are in, and a real competition is assured from the large number of entries.

In the three classes of babies, grouped by ages, 2 to 3, 3 to 4, and 4 to 5, prizes will be given the winning boy and the winning girl in each group. Six prizes in all.

In the competition among twin boys and twin girls, between the ages of 1 and 5, two prizes will be awarded.

The first baby in each classification will be awarded the additional honor of a blue ribbon, second a red ribbon, and third a white ribbon.

The judges of the contest include Miss Adalou McKenery, of the McKeesport public schools, and Miss Margaret Ruse, widely-known Pittsburgh artist. Each will judge the babies from her own point of view. The third prize will be named today.

The judging will begin at 2 p. m. at the dance pavilion, where there will be plenty of seats and protection from rain or sun. Medical and nursing attendance will be provided. Dr. J. B. Seeley, of McKeesport infant specialist, also is serving as a member of the contest committee.

Today's Sun-Telegraph contains the last coupon which may be exchanged for free strips of amusement tickets. To be sure of having enough of these tickets, make sure that you clip at least two coupons and turn them in at the nearest exchange station listed.

Only a limited supply of free tickets will be available. The strips are good for eight rides each, on any of the park's amusement devices—the merry-go-round, whip, skooter, miniature railroad, frolic or seaplanes.

Window Smasher Steals 2 Radios

A thief tossed a brick through a window of the Philip Drug Company, 1400 Beaver avenue, yesterday and stole two radios valued at $60, according to a police report.

OCEAN AIRMAN HURT IN CRASH

HAMBLE, England, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Leonard G. Reid, who flew the Atlantic Ocean from Canada with James R. Ayling last week, was slightly injured as the ocean plane, "The Trail of the Caribou," nosed over after touching a hedge on landing here yesterday.

Reid was piloting the plane and was accompanied by a woman. She was unhurt.

The big plane, gliding to a landing, topped the hedge and buried its nose in the earth. The propeller and the wings were damaged.

Milkmaid Shows Speed to Win 'Crown'

International News Service.

CARLISLE, Pa., Aug. 13.—How much milk can a comely Cumberland County milkmaid get in two minutes?

If you ask Mrs. Ruth Ott, of Carlisle, today she will say 14.3

pounds, which is about seven quarts. Mrs. Ott won the women's milking contest at the annual Cumberland County dairy cattle show, setting a new record for the exposition to defeat 14 opponents.

Policeman Held In Fatal Shooting

Patrolman Ben Manson, 28, of Braddock, was being held today on a District Attorney's detainer following a fatal shooting at Eleventh and Hallet streets, Braddock, late Saturday. A shot fired by Manson in an attempt to disperse a gang, struck William Jefferson, 20, Negro, of 1214 Monroe way, Braddock.

TASTE THIS GOOD BREAD!

It's a big surprise to a good many people when they get National Bread. "Why," they say, "what a difference!" National Bread looks good, smells good, tastes good. Try a loaf and you'll know why it has been Pittsburgh's favorite for many years.

AN ENSEMBLE LIKE THIS IS CHIC AN DPRACTICAL

Pattern 1943

Sun-Telegraph 15c Pattern

It is, as you see, an ensemble consisting of skirt, blouse and jacket. Make it up of black satin and wear it on very hot days without the jacket. The contrasting bodice frill and collar are delightfully fresh looking and becoming.

When it is a bit cooler the trim linked jacket is a stunning addition—and with the first Autumn chill the whole smart affair goes with the best possible grace under a top coat.

Of course it would be a very nice thing in wool as well.

Pattern 1943 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes 3½ yards 39 inch fabric and 1⅛ yards contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 cents in coin or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

And while you are writing, why not include an order for a fascinating book, crammed from cover to cover with stunning illustrations and captivating descriptions of new fashions, fabrics and other things that make a woman chic . . . THE SUMMER ISSUE OF THE PATTERN BOOK. PRICE 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh-Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West 17th Street, New York City.

POUR milk or cream on a bowlful of Kellogg's Rice Krispies. Then listen as they snap and crackle their story of delicious crispness.

You've never tasted anything so good. Serve for breakfast or lunch. An ideal food for children. Light and easy to digest. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GEN. CRONKHITE ON KDKA :-: 80th Division Leader On Radio Tonight :-: GABRILOWITSCH CONCERT

A.E.F. Hero Addresses Veterans

In a special program arranged by station KDKA, Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, war commander of the 80th Division, speaks over the Pioneer Station tonight at 8:30.

Gen. Cronkhite is the highest ranking military officer in the Pittsburgh area, holding the highest decorations from the United States, British and French governments.

He delivers a message to the men of the 80th Division in connection with the fifteenth annual national reunion of 80th Division veterans which is being held at Conneaut Lake Park on August 16, 17, 18 and 19, at which one of the largest gatherings of men who formerly served with the 80th Division will be present.

Georgie Price, stage and radio headliner, makes his second guest appearance as singing star and master of ceremonies of "Summer Interlude" on the CBS-WJAS network tonight at 9:30.

He is co-starred with Andre Gluskin and his orchestra, Henrietta Schumann, pianist and the Three Marshalls.

TENNIS MATCHES

John R. Tunis, one of the country's best known authorities on tennis, will analyze the play of the women stars in daily resumes over NBC-WCAE network beginning tonight at 6. The tournament opens today.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony, is scheduled as guest conductor of the Weekly concert from the National Music Camp at Interlochen Lake, Michigan, heard tonight at 10 over an NBC-KDKA network.

The Gothic Choristers, a group of singers, each a recognized soloist, are heard in a revival of some of the finest examples of church music of all ages, in their presentation over an NBC-WCAE network tonight at 10:30.

MISS PERKINS

The first woman member of the official Presidential family, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, is the speaker during a series being presented each Monday night at 10:45 over an NBC-KDKA network.

A special program of Stephen Foster melodies as sung by a group billed as the "Surprise Quartet," is presented over WWSW this evening at 9:30.

The mixed quartet is made up of readily recognizable names of church singers in Pittsburgh.

Press Agent Misleads Editor

By AIRCASTER

In the struggle for success or survival, a great many of the radio artists have resorted to intensive press agenting; that is they have employed bright young men adept in adjectives and fertile in imagination, to submit stories and stunts to the public prints, which are designed to keep the performers, good and bad, in the public eye.

A disappointing result of this is that much of the intensified exploitation succeeds only in keeping the artists in the public hair.

A favorite stunt, although it is an old one, of the exploiters of dance band leaders is to issue an announcement that the baton waver is looking for a singer.

The band leader usually gets his name in print because soft-hearted guys like myself figure that maybe after all, the band might need a singer, and why not help some jobless warbler into a job?

PHONEY IDEAS

Several times personally, I have mentioned that so and so was looking for a vocalist. Each time, alas, I have discovered the search was phoney and designed merely to get the maestro's name into print.

Many's the disappointed candidate for the job who has come back to me to ask if maybe I wasn't wrong.

A similar deception occurred in Brooklyn recently. Some unoriginal chap who wished to exploit a dance maestro, announced (not here) that the conductor was auditioning for a male vocalist.

The scribe went, registered, and waited, and then left without taking it—but later he received a card, printed a week before, stating:

"Sorry, but your voice did not measure up to our standard. Don't let this discourage you. We hope you will be able to connect elsewhere."

APPLAUSE!

The Pickens sisters will join that same broadcast September 30.

The diplomatic pot is boiling in Washington over the ever-increasing amount of propaganda being wafted this way from foreign hot beds via short waves . . . and officials are huddling to find means of neutralizing or banninb it.

The Boswell sisters are back from Galveston . . . on their final night there, they sang, in a resort, "River, Stay Away From My Door," whereupon a Texas cloudburst inundated the building and kept them marooned four hours.

THIRD FLOOD IN FIVE DAYS WREAKS HAVOC HERE

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Diary: Up and a phonograph record of the "McIntyre smile" Meredith Wilson sent, calling in several neighbors to hear. So abroad and passed the surgeon John Erdmann. Home and a fine letter from Perry Crosby and word that my companion Lloyd Scholl out in Cincinnati is retiring to travel.

At my typing until Ted Woodyard dropped by to tell of the string of Long Island papers he acquired, now owning more country journals than anyone in the land. Henry Sell, just in from Rome, came and sat awhile, too, and Frazier Hunt. Then out to call on Dick Berlin's mother and to Buff Cobb's tea.

With my wife to Locust Valley and dined on a cypress arbored porch of the Stage Coach Inn afterward looking at the Japanese pheasants. And along the roadside a Buddy Rogers looking ice cream seller said he made $82 clear last week. So to bed swotting up on Shakespeare's "As You Like It."

The bar now attracting Americans in Paris is a new one opened at the Crillon, a few steps from the U. S. embassy. It was planned to call it the Embassy Bar but a tiny bistro nearby, hoping to get all the trade of the diplomatic corps chauffeurs, beat them to it. It's named "Bar de l'Ambassade des Etats Unis."

A diversion of the Broadway cafes is called "double-talk." The practitioners interpolate ordinary conversation with a mumbo-jumbo of blurry words so skillfully a stranger is thoroughly bewildered. The victim, jockeyed to a table, will hear something like this: "I noticed Alfred Lunt allegatat modernix on Park avenue today." To which the accomplice will blandly reply: "He bobidared ogglefoosh the last few times I've seen him." It grows goofier and goofier with everybody apparently understanding perfectly but the pop-eyed comeon. The most accomplished double talkers are Fred Keating, Lu Holtz and Al Ritz, of vaudeville.

Mark Twain was once framed by a variant of the double talk. After a stiff highball, the conspirators asked if he would listen to a brief essay just written by Oscar Wilde. It was a lilting string of words without meaning but with beautiful cadence. Twain, puzzled, listened and asked it be repeated. The third time, he pushed back his glass, looked about hopelessly and exclaimed: "I'm sorry, but I'm drunk as a fool!"

LIGHTNING SETS STEEL MILL ON FIRE

Hundreds of Workers On Way to Jobs Marooned in Storm

Pittsburgh was soaked again today when rain fell for the fifth consecutive day.

Hundreds of cellars were flooded, thousands of workers were held up and traffic was disrupted.

In Greenfield a Jones and Laughlin pattern shop was set on fire by a bolt of lightning.

In 35 minutes .59 inch of rain smacked down on thousands hurrying to offices and jobs. For the day rainfall was .77 inch.

Second avenue in Greenfield, as usual, was hard hit, the water rising three and four feet in the street. Here a bus, with seven passengers, and four autos were marooned in the flood.

Eight trolleys, bound either way, were held up by the water and the mud washed down from the hillside.

Cellars of houses not only in Greenfield, but in South Hills, Castle Shannon and Carnegie were flooded. In Mt. Lebanon's Castle Shannon road several motorists were marooned.

BRIDGE WASHED OUT

Along Sawmill Run boulevard, a mile east of the Liberty Tubes, half of a small foot bridge was torn away and the remaining half was submerged.

A slide splattered down over the Castle Shannon street car tracks and several trolleys were rerouted.

At Duquesne Junction, East Pittsburgh and Hays trolley service was disrupted.

In McKeesport the water rose above street level and flooded the No. 2 Fire Company quarters. The firemen moved their apparatus to a nearby garage. At McKeesport's Cycler Park part of the fence was blown down.

BOLT FIRES MILL

In Carnegie, the police reported the rainfall more severe than the floods of last Thursday and Saturday. High water backed into the basement of the Carnegie National Bank at Chartiers and Main streets and numerous cellars were flooded.

The pattern shop of Jones & Laughlin, at Second avenue and Marion street, was struck by lightning and fire followed. Damage was slight.

Hundreds of downtown office-workers were justified in telling their bosses they were held up en route to work. In Forbes street and Fifth avenue, Oakland, long lines of street cars waited for the streets to empty of water.

"BREAK" FOR FARMERS

Not for a long time has Pittsburgh had rain on five successive days. Saturday's 1.34 inches was the heaviest. Thursday's 1.25 inches was next.

Weatherman Brotzman reported that the total rainfall for the first 13 days of August, 4.69 inches, already exceeds the total for either July or June. Normal rainfall for the entire month of August is 3.23 inches.

However, if the storm upset thousands in the city, farmers enjoyed this break for the crops. And, the weatherman pointed out, the late corn on the cob should be all the better for it.

STORM BALKS HUNT FOR BODY

Today's downpour thwarted the efforts of searching parties to recover the body of William Arnold, Jr., 14-year-old Pitcairn boy, who was thrown into the swollen waters of Turtle Creek Saturday.

Lifting of the massive water gate at the Trafford plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, a mile below where the boy was drowned, failed to lower the water level to permit dragging for the body, because of the heavy rainfall.

Young Arnold was the only victim in the collapse of a suspension bridge in Trafford City, that endangered the lives of 12 boys who were on it at the time.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Arnold, Sr., of 435 Eleanor street, Pitcairn.

Girl's Left Turn Injures 3 in Autos

Miss Clara L. Graham, of Braddock avenue, Wilkinsburg, suddenly turned her motor car left from the Sugar Creek highway towards the French Creek Cottage Colony, near Franklin, yesterday, and caused the injury of three persons and damaged three automobiles, according to police. Miss Graham escaped injury.

Following Miss Graham's car was a bus in which Mrs. Alston Forest, of Conneaut Lake, sustained head injuries. Donald Uren, brother of Merle Uren, of Dubois, driver of the third car, was cut about the face.

5 DIE, 2 SCORE HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Crash Costs Girl's Life; 13 Injured in Same Accident

Week-end automobile accidents took a toll of five lives and two score persons were in hospitals.

Rose Martin, 17, of 758 Fairlson street, Sheraden, died early today from injuries received in an accident in which nine members of a family and four other persons were hurt.

Two men were killed when their car plunged over a 75-foot embankment near Dorseyville yesterday. The body of Alfred L. Hassinger, 55, of Glenshaw, was removed from the wreckage, and James Swanson, 18, of Russelton, died later in St. Francis Hospital of injuries suffered in the crash.

John Ciarletta, 48, of 7522 Kelly street, Homewood, was fatally injured and eight others hurt in an auto accident at Carson street, near Corliss tunnel. A truck carrying homeward-bound picnickers crashed into the car, police reported.

Struck by an auto while crossing North Negley avenue at Stanton avenue, Frank Crantz, 67, of 5424 Avondale place, died in West Penn Hospital of a fractured skull several hours later.

Three Pittsburghers were injured, one severely, when their machine hit another car near Albany, N. Y., during a vacation trip yesterday. Miss Dorothy Shapera, 29, of 610 North St. Clair street, suffered a possible broken leg and Mrs. Fannie Ulanoff, 35, of Wightman and Hobart streets, and Lewis A. Goldman, of Murray avenue, were cut and bruised. Goldman was driving the two women east when the machine hit another machine.

JOB RISK SEEN IN TURNER FETE

"Fear of reprisals" may prevent some members of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh from attending a dinner in honor of the departure of Dr. Ralph E. Turner, dismissed member of the faculty, scheduled for the Hotel Schenley tomorrow night.

This was announced yesterday at a conference of students and alumni of the university to investigators of the American Association of Universities Professors, probing into the events which led to the dropping of Dr. Turner by Chancellor John G. Bowman. Richard A. Calhoun, in charge of reservations for the dinner, announced that about 300 persons are expected to attend.

Members of the investigating committee made no reference to their findings, but it was said they had been unable to find any students willing to testify that Dr. Turner had ever scoffed at religion, as was asserted in the charges which led to his dismissal.

North Side Man Slugged, Robbed

Attacked by three men at Madison and River avenues, yesterday, George J. Behle, of 206 West Ohio street, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital where five stitches were required to close a head wound.

He was slugged over the head with a blackjack and robbed of a $20 ring.

SUFFERS SHOCK IN GAS BLAST

H. Thomas, 35, of 227 Glenmore avenue, today was recovering from a heart attack precipitated by a blast that rocked the downtown district yesterday when gas in Diamond street conduits exploded, hurling three manhole covers into the air.

Thomas, a special patrolman, collapsed after turning in a fire alarm, and was taken to Mercy Hospital suffering from shock. His condition was reported as not serious.

A short circuit of electric wires in the conduits may have caused the blast, police and gas company employes asserted.

MRS. C. E. GIBSON AND HER LOVEBIRDS . . . LAST OF FOUR

Love-birds, bird lovers say, of all the birds of the feathery kingdom, best symboline wedded bliss. Legend has it that if one dies, its mate will pine and wilt unto death.

But a case has become known which seems to prove that jealousy and grim tragedy can creep into even the love nest of a love-bird.

Eight years ago, Mrs. C. E. Gibson, of Duff avenue, off Frankstown road, owned two pairs of the ever-loving birds. Their history since can best be told in verse, as follows:

"Four little love birds drinking milk and tea,
One died of asthma and then there were three.
Three little love birds wouldn't bill and coo,
Another committed suicide and then there were two.
Two little love birds had a lot of fun,
One died of old age and that leaves one!"

"Bobby," the remaining bird, has been happy alone for three years, Mrs. Gibson says, with only a canary for company.

And strangely enough, after the death of one of the females, leaving only the three birds, it was not her mate who committed suicide, but the other female.

The strange suicide was accomplished when the forlorn bird pulled out its own claws and quietly bled to death.

She was jealous, Mrs. Gibson believes, of the admiration the two males had for each other. Anyway, the two male birds didn't seem to mind their loss. They lived happily together for several years until one of them died, and since then, the lone male has been happy all alone.

Miners Hold Picnic At Kennywood Park

Miners from two communities today were holding picnics at Kennywood Park. Several hundred were attending the first annual outing of District No. 4, United Mine Workers of America, coming from Mather, Waynesburg, Fredericktown and Masontown.

The Fayette City miners and community annual outing drew several hundred from a number of locals in that district. District No. 4 activities were under direction of James Hall, and those of the Fayette City group under Hugh Chalfant.

Hurt, Can't Explain Cause of Injuries

Police today sought to determine the manner in which a man who said he was C. C. Collins, 43, of 1513 Dagmar avenue, Beechview, suffered an injury to his head. He was found near the South Hills street car junction and taken to South Side Hospital. He was unable to explain to police how he was hurt.

Trio Rob Victim Of Money, Watch

Edward Lauther, of 324 Pram street, East End, was robbed by three men while walking in Tioga street near Braddock avenue, last night. The trio fled on foot after taking $2 and a $15 watch from their victim.

POLICE EXAMS 'TAINTED,' BELL TOLD

Civil Service Officials Charge Test Papers Were Destroyed

Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell found himself on a figurative battlefield today firing some heavy shots in favor of the police position at which his superior, Mayor MacNair, has been sniping and being the target for a bombshell tossed by the Civil Service Commission.

The bombshell was the commission's charge that the examinations taken for lieutenants' jobs last year was "tainted" and was null and void and would have to be taken over again.

Bell's support for the Police Research Commission probe was contained into an announcement that the commission would enlarge its investigation to encompass a complete and drastic survey of the police bureau.

SUBJECT TO CALL

He ordered all employes held subject to call for testimony.

He pledged implicit co-operation and commanded that all police records, past and present, be thrown open to the probers until the investigation is completed.

After a conference with Dr. Albert Wisse, chairman of the Police Research Commission, Bell said:

"Every assistance will be given by the present administration to help the commission to prepare its final recommendations for the interest of all concerned."

Bell added:

"It has been suggested, and has full approval of the Mayor and Director, that Dr. Wise and Miss Emma B. Heldman, as representing the commission, be offered office space in the building which the help of Police Bureau stenographers, clerks, etc., and the City Law Department, if desired, and free access to all police records, past and present, until the investigation is completed."

PAPERS DESTROYED

In charging that the examination for police lieutenants' jobs was "tainted," the Civil Service Commission declared that the papers had been destroyed by the former commission in violation of the laws and that therefore the examination was illegal.

Director Bell announced that former Inspector Anthony Block, who had been demoted on August 1 from inspector to sergeant, is "out of the service" until he can be placed again, probably as a city detective.

The Civil Service Commission refuses to certify Block's pay as a sergeant until he takes the required examinations.

BEERMEN FIGHT 'CHISELERS'

Wholesale beer distributors of Allegheny County were moving today to eliminate price cutters in their business, who are said to be selling a case of beer at a nickel profit.

At a meeting in the Elks' Club yesterday the group agreed that 25 cents should be the minimum profit on a case, and decided to maintain a standard of prices through co-operative effort until the problem is settled by the new beer code, which goes into effect September 1.

Under the code every beer distributor in Western Pennsylvania will be required to apply for a permit from the Beer Regional Board. The permit will entitle the holder to buy beer at the brewerries' lowest posted price, but if it is revoked, he will be compelled to pay the retail price.

Members of the Beer Regional Board are to meet with brewers today to work out details of the provisions and to plan the routing of "chiselers" from the trade.

Start Picking Sea Shells, Money Goes Back to Wampum

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

We ain't worrying about this silver business unless it's a code violation to let your latch keys jingle in your pocket.

The U. S. government is the goose that ate the golden egg. Silver is merely the cracked corn of currency.

If the Treasury gobbles that, look, we will be down to nickel and copper. That means the bank robbers will have to trade their guns in for shovels.

Nothing much happened when gold was yanked out of sight. Not one of us had ever got a bad case of sunburn from looking at it.

So, we will probably get along without any metal at all. So start picking up sea shells along the beach. They're turning the money clock back to wampum.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes.

Dear W.: Welcome home and all that sortathing. . . . The item about Warner's paying $5,000 just for the title to "Dames" isn't so. They paid the author that much for fifteen short stories—"Dames" being one of them! . . . Here's a thought: What with so many principals in "Thousands Cheer" having rows over this chorus girl or boy—or makthem unhappy, or quitting for a rest, etc., the only principal who never demands her "rights," is Ethel Waters.

Away back in the Spring you urged Mayor LaGuardia to do something about a youngster named Murray Spaet of Brooklyn. Who, because he lived across the street (or five yards out of bounds) couldn't take a certain course at Erasmus High . . . Well, a letter just came from the Mayor saying the youngster will have his wish . . . It's little things like that—that make big men like LaGuardia . . . Len Golos was in. He said the Dempseys had a girl and Jack wanted a boy so the kid could fight Tunney's youngster. Dempsey still can have his wish—by having his daughter marry Master Tunney!

Now that you're back the crowd probably will start phoning. They sure forgot I was alive while you were on the Coast . . . Among the things all screen editors should teach their writers are the following: There is no such word as "complected"—and therefore one cannot be either light complected or dark complected. And that there is a difference between the words "implication" and "inference." For example, I imply something, and you infer whatever you choose.

Now that you're back be sure and see Paul Draper's nimble hoofing at the Casino de Paree and the doings at the Music Hall . . . After that—I assure you of a dull time—for Broadway is lifeless . . . Oh, I forgot. You've been in Hollywood—so it probably will all seem veedy, veedy exciting . . . The Yacht Club lads are at the Westchester Simplon Casino . . . There are only four shows left—the better ones, of course . . . There's the Long Branch Kennel Club if you like dog racing. It is getting a swanky play . . . Personally, I'm having myself a time devouring every article in any of the detective mags . . . And from insiders of the trade—I learn that the detective story mags are really "tops," distancing the screen fan mags by miles—but no wonder—with the sappy stuff you get in the latter—month after month, yet!

Mr. Kelley of the Washington papers doubts that "Manhattan Melodrama" grossed that much in one day . . . I told him an opposition film firm spread that news, and can you imagine anyone giving a rival company the best of it? . . . Can I get into that controversy about "ounces" being shortened to "oz" and "mfgs" which has no "g," etc. . . . Then howz about "pounds" which is abbreviated "lb"?

I see that Jean Harlow says that only two things are necessary for a girl to make good in the pictures . . . One is "ambition" and the other is being a good girl . . . Oh, sure! . . . That imitator you scolded (who does Givot's entire routine), has a neat answer. He points out the fact that Givot himself does Harry Richman! . . . So go stand in a corner.

At an amateur baseball game the other day in which several columnists were striking out, as usual, when one lad swung his bat for the third strike—the bleachers yelled in unison: "We want Winchell! We want Winchell!" . . . It got a laugh . . . Jessel says his long struggle for recoguition hasn't been funny, at all. He cites this example for heart torture: A theater manager in a tiny town once said to him: "Please don't keep saying to the audience 'ladies and gentlemen.' They resent it. Just say 'hello folks' because that's what they're used to."

That "donkey baseball" which is so popular in H'wood will be done at Irvington, N. J., this month . . . Thomas A. Edison's son is working in the National Education Council's office in Washington . . . Lawrence Tibbett will not appear for that tire firm on the air next season. He has a choice of three big sponsors . . . Rube Goldberg would appreciate a mention of a new song called "You're Everywhere," which he wrote with I. Caesar and Joe Meyer . . . Adams Roosevelt Dall (in response to queries) said: "I'm not engaged to anyone and I never read the gossip columns!" . . . Frank wishes she would be explicit and state which gossip column she doesn't read.

Seein' Stars :-: By Feg Murray

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13.—Hello! Hollywood's funny that way . . . I mean, all a person has to do (in some cases) is to disappear for a while. Then some one gets a bright inspiration that the 'certain party' is just the one for a role—that's when the big search starts. Reri, the native girl of the South Seas, "discovered" by the late F. W. Murnau when he was directing "Tabu" (incidentally, one of the most beautiful of the combined travelogue and drama movies) on one of the mid-Pacific islands, is now being sought by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer bosses for the native girl in "Mutiny on the Bounty," the super-special which Frank Lloyd will direct for Irving Thalberg Productions.

Reri

Following her appearances in this country, with the "Follies" and a Fanchon and Marco unit, Reri disappeared and is believed to be somewhere in Europe at the moment. Anyway, the scouts are after her.

In advertising the Marie Dressler home for sale, the classified ad stated that "only those writing for an appointment would be considered." This was done to shoo off the curious and flock of tourists, all merely sight-seers.

An actor approached Director George Stevens in his office at RKO. Handing the megaphonist a manuscript, he said

"I'd like to submit a story of mine."

"Okay," replied George, "but I'm very busy just now. Won't you please throw it in the waste basket yourself?"

Alice White is bowing out of her Universal deal when her present picture comes to a finish.

Charles Boyer, heralded as a new foreign sensation, is pointed in the direction of France, Fox having failed to renew his contract . . . Universal Scenario Department is in a mild sort of uproar trying to locate a yarn to fit Baby Juanita Quigley, said to be Shirley Temple's only rival . . . Sari Maritza, whose temperamental outbreaks failed to crash front pages and only got her in bad with studio bosses, is now trying to ogle her way in at Fox.

Frank Mitchell has to pinch his partner, Jack Durant, on the leg in the middle of scenes to give him dialogue cues, which must be under the heading of "Black and Blue News."

There's a chap around town with a midget elephant (it stands less than three feet in height) that has Charley Chaplin positively intrigued. Charley wants to buy it as a pet for Paulette Goddard, but the owner wants to crash pictures instead . . . It's green-eyed monsters for Renee Gadd 'cause Sally Blane is going places with Hugh Williams.

Miss Goddard

The Mont Aire Club devoted an evening in honor of Gertrude Michael — and that means Nick (John on the screen) Foran was by her side . . . Mina Gombell steps into one of the featured roles with Lee Tracy in "The Lemon Drop Kid" at Paramount. Yep, she's doing tough-and-fast-chatter stuff.

William Anthony McGuire has announced his intentions to produce independently "Three Musketeers," the colorful ditty he wrote for the late Ziegfeld.

Although Bill claims he hasn't any studio connection on the deal, the "inside dope" is that Universal will be in on the thing when actual shooting starts—if it does.

Since M-G-M tossed over the idea of starring Mala ("Eskimo" hero—he's really Ray Wise, former Fox assistant cameraman) in "The Red Man," Phil Goldstone with Lotus Long, also in the icy picture, in "Typee," a South Sea Island yarn.

Chat About Theater Folk

By KARL KRUG

Green Room Gleanings: Pittsburgh theater managers are buddling with the musicians and stage hands again . . . The stage hand situation is pretty well settled, but the return of flesh-and-blood entertainment in the cinema cathedrals hangs on the outcome of the conferences with the tune tooters . . . Another get-together is scheduled for Tuesday afternoon . . . The opening of the Alvin will increase the city's employed population by between 50 and 60 workers . . . It will be Joe Skirboll's Majestic Pictures exchange that will release those new color cartoon shorts from UB Iwerks in the Pittsburgh territory . . . The first will be "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" and the second, "Rip Van Winkle" . . . Is Walt Disney to have competition for his Silly Symphonies at last?

Speaking of Disney, a little undercover information tells me that his first feature-length cartoon will be "Snow White" . . . The hundreds of thousands of drawings necessary to make it will require a year of production time and the cost will be in the neighborhood of a quarter million.

After all that rumpus you heard about a talent hunt for an unknown to play the lead in "Tailspin Tommy," the role goes to none other than a young acting gentleman named Jackie Coogan . . . The cigar-smoking Penner has joined three other comedians who are lost without their "weeds" in front of the cameras or on a stage . . . They are Groucho Marx, Robert Woolsey and Bobby Clark . . . As the Alvin and Fulton remain dark, the Fox first-run releases are piling up in this territory . . . Among the more important things from this company that haven't been seen here yet are Will Rogers' "Handy Andy," with which the Fulton is expected to open, and Warner Baxter's "Grand Canary" . . . That Fulton opening announcement should be coming through, now that the Alvin's premiere date is public.

The Dracomtra Players, making up their new season's schedule, will put on Shakespeare's "As You Like It" next June 17 to 22 in the Washington Road school, Mt. Lebanon . . . This ambitious production will be dedicated to "one, George Seibel, whose encouragement has been a constant source of inspiration to many little theater groups in the Pittsburgh district."

Local Play Premiere Tonight

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Chester Wallace, professor of drama, Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be among the cast supporting Judith Anderson, Broadway artist, in the Civic Playhouse production of Alfred L. Golden's "Female of the Species," which will have its premiere in the Arnold School Theater, in South Braddock avenue, tonight. Mr. Wallace directed "Second Man" for this group last season, but this will be his first appearance with it as a performer, although he is a professional actor, and at one time he headed his own stock company. He has staged many productions at Tech.

Playing opposite Miss Anderson will be Lee Dasbach, who has appeared on Broadway and has toured with Otis Skinner and Maude Adams.

If there are scouts present tonight— and some are expected—they may find something besides the play to interest them. Meaning talent. Daniel Frohman, veteran theater magnate, on vacation in Ogonquit, Maine, said all summer theaters are being scouted for new talent, and that a paperhanger, policeman or washerwoman who becomes an actor has as good a chance as anybody to see his name in Broadway lights eventually.

The need is that the player fit the part, he said, adding that a producer would as soon have a laundress in the role of a laundress as an actress who did not know the laundry art.

His advice to young players included admonition to get all the varied experience stock offers because later on they'll probably be in a rut, as producers, if they like a certain actor as a certain type, will keep him playing that type for years.

"It isn't as it used to be," he said. "It is no worse, just different. Adapt yourself to the new method."

He thought the automobile to be responsible for the growth of the summer theater movement, and expressed the opinion that such theaters offer splendid training for novices in the theater. Besides, he thought there was a need for country theaters.

Calls Gary Singer

"Yes, my boy's a good actor, but I think he's just wasting his talents by not taking up singing."

So Gary Cooper's mother expressed herself on a visit to Paramount, after watching her tall son go through a tender love scene with Carole Lombard in "Now and Forever."

Fans Frown At Cupid

MARY BRIAN

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11.—Feminine fans of Dick Powell seem determined to prevent his marriage. Since publication of a story predicting an early wedding between the singing star and Mary Brian, more than 600 girls have written letters urging Dick to remain a bachelor.

The start naturally must be in a quandry. On the crest of a popularity wave, he has unlimited possibilities on the screen. Yet his friends will tell you that Dick and Mary are very much in love. And there is the concrete evidence of the house, which is supposed to go into construction any day. And a house with four bedrooms, mind you.

Maybe Dick will yield to the will of his fans. At any rate, he still insists:

"I am not engaged to anybody and have no present intention of getting married."

'The White Parade' To Star Boles

The leading male role in "The White Parade," the Rian James story which Fox is preparing for filming, has been assigned to John Boles, who is completing scenes opposite Gloria Swanson in "Music in the Air," now in work. Irving Cummings will direct the picture, whose story about nurses in training has been adapted for the screen by the author of the novel, Rian James, and Jesse L. Lasky, Jr.

All in a Day

Power of Suggestion

WE WERE sitting together of a recent evening: Jack Lait, George Jessel and a number of others. The talk turned to Jack's powerful story on the Dillinger slaying—and we spoke of the manner in which cheap crooks are sometimes hurled into international fame by paper build-ups.

Then Jack remembered a tale that goes back to the Chicago of twenty years ago. Nobody tells a newspaper story quite so well as Jack, and I have my nerve with me when I attempt to pass it on to you. But perhaps he will forgive me just this once. So:

It was about two o'clock in the afternoon on a dull Sunday. The year, about 1914. The police reporter—Jenkins by name—was wandering from station house to station house in an effort to find something of value for the first edition the next morning.

The effort, though earnest, had little chance of success. These were dull days, and foreign news was occupying most of the space.

Jenkins kept trying. If he could only find a small lead that might be twisted into a good story, he'd be more than satisfied. But he couldn't find the small lead. Lieutenant after lieutenant informed him that there was nothing on the blotter. So Jenkins kept walking and walking.

He stepped into his sixth house.

"Lo, lieutenant," he nodded. "Anything stirring today?"

The officer yawned.

"Not a thing, Jenkins," he said. "This place is as dead as Kelcey's. We picked up one guy this morning that we thought would amount to something, but he turned out just a bum. We're letting him loose now."

"Who is he?" asked Jenkins.

"Feller named Smith," shrugged the lieutenant. "Joe Smith. O'Reilly caught him hanging around Moore's warehouse where that safe was blown the other night. Thought he might have had something to do with it.

"But he hadn't, of course. He's just another poor bum that doesn't mean a thing. So we're tossing him out with a warning.

"No use talking to him, Jenkins. You'd only be wasting time."

At that moment, Joe Smith was brought in from the detectives' room and turned loose. Jenkins was thinking rapidly. A bum. Held on suspicion of safe-cracking. Turned loose by police. Maybe. Maybe. Maybe—

"Thanks, lieutenant," he said. He turned to the bum. "How's about a cup of coffee?" he asked. "Think you could stand one?"

The bum—and he answered that description from head to foot—nodded gratefully.

"Sure, cul," he nodded. "Tickled silly. For a cup of coffee, I'm your friend. For a shot of rye, I'm your pal."

Jenkins hooked his arm in Joe Smith's.

"Let's go, Joe," he said. "We're pals." . . .

Some thirty minutes later, the reporter and the bum sat together in the back room of a saloon. The bum had had four drinks. The reporter—well, he was strictly on the job. He had had five.

"Listen, Joe," he asserted, "you're not kidding anybody, me least of all. I know who you are. You're Joe Smith, the greatest safe-cracker that ever lived."

"Who?" asked the bum, wide-eyed. "Me?"

The reporter waved a hand.

"Don't play innocence with me, Joe. I know the racket. And I take my hat off to you. It isn't every crook that can fool the police into letting him loose after a big job."

Smith gulped.

"I—er—well—er," he stammered. "I guess—er—well, they didn't have nothin' on me."

Jenkins, of course, knew that this poor bird was strictly petty larceny. He knew that a $10 haul would have been the millenium for him. But he also saw his story in the offing. So he kept talking.

"I want to tell you, Smith, that I take my hat off to you. In my line, I meet the smartest crooks—and the best. But you're something different. You're real class. Imagine talking the police into releasing the best safe-cracker in America.

"Smith, you're there!"

The bum tossed off another rye. He picked a butt from the floor and lighted it gracefully. Then he sat back with a smile.

It ran for columns and columns. It described Smith as a man who, under various aliases, was wanted for jobs from coast to coast. It told of his gigantic exploits in his field of crime, and how he had outwitted the police of some of the greatest American cities.

And then it wound up with his latest success. Jenkins did a swell job of it, and his fanciful imagination described graphically how Smith had robbed the Moore warehouse—and how the police had finally found him.

But Smith had outwitted them once more. He had convinced them that he was just a poor bum and a nobody. And they had released him without looking into his record.

The story was a sensation. The police were wild. Rival papers called it a pipe dream. Jenkins got a bonus. Everything was lovely . . .

Just two days later, Joe Smith broke into a laundry. He had read the story, and the power of suggestion was too much for him. It was his first attempt at safe-cracking, and he used enough nitro-glycerine to wreck the building.

The safe contained just $12—and Joe Smith was blown to pieces. . .

Chicago Gets Millions for Teachers

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Chicago's long-sought loan from the federal government to pay off back wages of its thousands of school teachers has finally been officially authorized by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

As soon as the city government of Chicago goes through the necessary formalities—the City Council approving the bond issue tomorrow afternoon and a subsequent 10-day period of waiting—the RFC will purchase $22,300,000 worth of 20-year 4½ per cent bonds out of which the delinquent salaries will be paid.

Thus, the money will become actually available Thursday, August 23.

The RFC action, announced by Chairman Jesse Jones, climaxes a fight of almost two years for a federal loan for Chicago's school employes. Several times the loan appeared to be immediately forthcoming, only to be thwarted by some unforeseen circumstance.

The Chicago city council, which must approve the bond issue, will meet tomorrow afternoon for that purpose. During the subsequent 10-day period of waiting, the actual printing of the bonds will be accomplished and, it was indicated today by School Board President James B. McCahey, the actual checks will be made out, ready for delivery the instant the funds become available.

McCahey, in a statement, said:

"Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, ordered all red tape out and directed full speed ahead on this loan."

BARONS 'WELSH' ON NUMBER

The numbers lottery barons were staggering today from the effects of Saturday's "hit" on No. 101.

Accustomed only to counting the profits of their sure-thing racket, they were so surprised at the necessity to pay off that some didn't.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

RAIN PREVENTS FINAL CLASH OF BUC-RED SERIES

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Big Job to Stop Tigers Making Amazing Record
Tough Trip Now Faced

Ball Aids Good Pitchers
Rider Sticks to Stable
Trojans Defend Scouting

The way those Detroit Tigers keep smashing all opposition, either steam-rollering the foe from the start or coming from behind to win by sensational rallies in the late innings or extra frames, makes Mickey Cochrane's fliers look more and more like the American League's club of destiny for 1934. A first-place team that is able to reel off 12 straight victories at this stage of a race rarely is stopped from going through to the pennant. It gets the impetus of a stone rolling down hill. The terrific pace at which the bounding Bengals are traveling is shown by the fact that in their 12 consecutive wins—four of them shutouts—they have made the astounding club batting average of .362—105 runs and 166 hits in 459 times at bat. That's an average of almost nine runs and 14 hits per game.

Mickey Cochrane

And Dettroit's record for the season as a whole is such that no one can dispute its right to be up there. It has won more and lost fewer games than any other club in either of the big leagues. It is the only club in the majors hitting above .300. It has made more runs and hits than any other team. It has been shut out only once, and it never has lost an extra-inning game, winning five all told.

The Tigers' task now will be to avert a slumping reaction when the present winning streak is broken and to maintain their stride during the tough trip starting tomorrow, on which they must play 23 straight games on the road, starting with a string of five against their only rivals, the Yankees. The double-header in the series at New York, incidentally, is likely to set an attendance record for the season. If the Jungaleers get home from that trip without losing their lead they'll be as good as in, as 19 of their 23 games afterward will be played at home.

CAN'T SUCCEED WITH ROOKIES AT MIDWAY

In the early spring the average baseball fan wondered where Joe McCarthy had got the idea that he would have a chance to win the American League pennant with his Yankees while playing a couple of rookies side by side in the important midway sector—Red Rolfe at shortstop and Don Heffner at second base. Many a time since, McCarthy himself probably has wondered where he got the notion. To put the Yanks back in the race after losing a lot of ground he had to lift the two kids eventually.

The changes caused no surprise in experienced baseball circles. The presence of two green recruits at second and short was one of the obstacles which most fans saw originally to any chance of pennant success for the Yanks. You just can't win major league flags with a couple of kids playing out there. Remember Vaughan and Piet?

SOME PITCHERS HELPED BY LIVELY BALL

Discussions as to the harmful and helpful effects of the lively ball continue. That air-tight pitching still is possible in spite of the rabbity qualities of the agate is proved by the fact that no fewer than 11 one-hit games have been hurled in the majors this year. Waite Hoyt pitched one of them for the Pirates. Lonnie Warneke has two such games to his credit. The Yankees had four of the performers in Lefty Gomez, Red Ruffing, Johnny Broaca and Jimmy Deshong. The others were Earl Whitebill, of the Senators; Bob Weiland, of the Indians; Flint Rhem, of the Braves, and Schoolboy Rowe, of the Tigers. In the main, however, the average number of hits and earned runs allowed by the flingers for the season will be higher than last season, at least in the National League.

Hal Schumacher

Strangely enough, the latter fact is the reason why some of the better pitchers have won more games than usual; why the number of 20-game winners will be exceptionally high. At least that is the opinion of Hal Schumacher, who will shoot for his next Giant victory in the series opening here tomorrow. Schumacher says the lively ball actually has helped some moundsmen to win games by making their work easier. Hal has yielded many more runs than in 1933, and has been hit much harder, yet he already is within one game of his total of 19 victories for last season because the Giants have scored many more runs for him. He explains that whereas it was necessary last year to win 2 to 0 and 3 to 1, he can now win 8 to 4.

JOCKEY SLEEPS WITH HORSES HE RIDES

Silvio Coucci, one of the greatest jockeys in the current crop, and who twice recently rode three winners in a day, has started something at Saratoga which none of the other riders appears very keen to take up. Coucci sleeps with the horses he rides in the races. Frank Graham comments that sleeping with horses may not be the popular conception of an ideal way in which to spend these August nights at the Spa, but it is a sign of commendable earnestness on the part of the little fellow who climbed from the sidewalks of New York to glory in the saddle.

The chief danger that any jockey, and particularly a young one, has to combat is that of getting too far away from the stable. Sudden fame and big money often lead a boy into soft living, and one day he comes to a painful realization that he cannot live soft and ride hard.

TROJANS ADMIT SCOUT BILL RUNS HIGH

Hunk Anderson's blast that Southern California has been spending $10,000 annually for scouting alone in order to beat Notre Dame is pronounced an exaggeration on the Coast. But the Trojans do not deny that they run up quite a scouting bill at that during the course of a football season in getting information for Coach Howard Jones about coming opponents. It is admitted that when you add up the salaries of Sam Barry, Clif Herd, Gordon Campbell and Aubrey Devine, and then total their expenses chasing Notre Dame, Stanford, California, Washington and others, you will have more money than the average small college spends on its entire year-round athletic budget.

Howard Jones

But they take the stand that it's part of the football business and that all other colleges do the same thing. Granting that U. S. C. may spend more money scouting than any other school, the defense of the Trojans is that their opponents are very tough and they haven't a strong rival within 400 miles of their campus. They cite that Big Ten teams, for example, are all within a radius of a few hundred miles of Chicago, and that a Big Ten team scouting just as many opponents as Southern California won't have to travel one-tenth as far to do it.

OPEN TOURNEY POSTPONED

By TOM BIRKS

The West Penn Open golf championship, a 36-hole medal play affair, which was scheduled today at the Edgewood Country Club, has been postponed until next Monday because of the soggy condition of the course. A heavy downpour left the course in poor condition and officials decided to postpone the event one week.

Vincent Eldred, of the Highland Country Club, is the defending champion and will be among the favorites to tee off next Monday. The tournament will be of two 18-hole rounds, the first in the morning and the second in the afternoon.

Pairings and starting times for the West Penn amateur tournament, which opens Wednesday at the Pittsburgh Field Club, were announced today by George A. Ormiston, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association. The pairings and starting times follow.

Sandlot Pitcher Twirls No-Hit, No-Run Game

CADIZ, O., Aug. 13.—Bus Van Fossen, of Piedmont, a few miles west of here, was the town's hero today. Bus yesterday pitched himself into baseball's Hall of Fame, beating Kenwood, 5 to 0, and hurling a perfect game.

Van Fossen fanned 18 of the 27 batters to face him, did not walk a man, hit a batsman or permit a ball to be blasted out of the infield. The victory was Van Fossen's seventeenth of the season.

Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

The fans are all excited about the possibility of Gehrig beating Babe Ruth's great home run record. Well, it's anybody's guess whether he will do it or not, and, as a lot of people ask me what I think, I'd better put in a vote. It would be nice to be able to say, "Well, maybe he will and maybe he won't," but that won't do, either. So I'm going to guess Lou will knock out 61 homers this year. Now let's see how far off I am!

WALKER READY FOR CORBETT

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Two battle-scarred and famous veterans of the ring, Mickey Walker, the "Toy Bulldog" from Rumson, N. J., and Young Corbett III, the Fresno (Cal.) southpaw, growled ferociously today.

They growled that they wanted to fight—were anxious to have at one another for the world middleweight title. Their desire to fight will be gratified tomorrow night in the baseball park of the San Francisco Seals in a 10-round bout, but there seems to be some argument from here and there about the title, namely from Vince Dundee, who says he has possession of the crown.

U. S. SWIMMERS WIN IN JAPAN

Tokio, Japan, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Albert Van De Weghe, star of the Newark (N. J.) Athletic Club, reinforced his hold on the world back-stroking laurels today by winning the 200-meters title in the Japanese national swimming championships in 2 minutes 33.2 seconds, bettering the long course record George Kojac set at 2:35.2 in 1930.

Van De Weghe also won the 100-meters back-stroke championship yesterday as Jack Medica, Seattle distance star, lost the 1,500-meters final.

Medica came back today, however, in the competition with Japan's Olympic champions and won the 400-meters free-style championship in 4:47.8, outswimming a fast field. Shozo Makino, runner-up in the Olympic 1,500-meters, finished second, and Hiroshi Negami, Japan's new star, was third.

Arthur Highland, of Chicago, last of the three-man American team, was nipped by inches in the final of the 100-meters free-style, losing to M. Yusa in a great finish.

Yusa, timed in 59 seconds flat, came with a rush in the last few yards to nip the American. Y. Sakagami finished third.

Reizo Koike, runnerup in the Olympic championships, won the 200 yards breaststroke in the slow time of 2 minutes, 45 seconds. Harmura was second and Shigeo Nakagawa third.

A crowd of 15,000 including Prince and Princess Chichibu, attended the meet.

BILL BONTHRON BOWS AGAIN

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—For the third successive time, Jack Lovelock, New Zealand's crack middle distance runner, has conquered Bill Bonthron, beating the burly Princeton ace by five yards over the 1,500-meter route in an international track and field meet in the Olympic Stadium yesterday.

A crowd of 4,000, half-filling the stadium, saw Jerry Cornes, of Great Britain, set the pace for the first 1,300 meters of the feature race. Then Lovelock stepped to the front, closely pursued by Bonthron. Princeton's Bill could not match the New Zealander's closing sprint and Lovelock won comfortably in 3:53. Bonthron was clocked in 3:54.1, and Cornes, in third place, in 3:54.9.

Lovelock had defeated Bonthron at Princeton last summer, setting up what then was a new world record of 4:07.6 for the mile. The New Zealander beat Bonthron again in this year's meet between the combined forces of Oxford and Cambridge and Cornell and Princeton.

Except for Lovelock's triumph and a double sprint victory for the Dutchman, Christian Berger, Americans captured a major share of the day's honors.

Jack Torrance, Louisiana State, easily defeated John Lyman, of the San Francisco Olympic Club, in the shot put with a toss of 16.25 meters, or 53 feet 3 25-32 inches.

Ben Eastman won the 800 meters run in 1:53.3, beating Cooper, of England, by 3.1 seconds, and Glen Hardin, of Louisiana State, galloped off with the 400 meters in 47.9 seconds. Cornelius Johnson, of Compton (Cal.) Junior College, annexed the high jump, clearing 1.95 meters, 6 feet 4¾ inches.

Laffoon, Sarazen Win in Exhibition

DANBURY, Conn., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Ky Laffoon, of Denver, paired with Gene Sarazen to win a best ball exhibition golf match at the Ridgewood Country Club yesterday from George Ferrier, home club professional, and George McLachlan, the club champion, 6 and 5.

Laffoon, playing in a steady rain, turned in the best card for 18 holes, shooting a 68 on the par 71 course.

PIRATES AWAIT BATTLES WITH GIANTS HERE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

A heavy downpour, which made Forbes Field unfit for play, today prevented the final clash of the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati series and added another doubleheader to the Pirates' program. The two clubs will play off the postponed game as part of a double bill on Friday, September 21.

Tomorrow the Pirates open a five-game series with the league-leading New York Giants. A dual bill is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon.

GRIMES DISAPPOINTED

The untamed Wisconsin Wildcat, owner of more major league victories than any pitcher in the game today, (approximately 270) was all primed for a slab duel this afternoon when the rain interfered.

This is by way of saying that the perennial Burleigh Grimes, from the lumberjack country of the Badger State, had the pitching ticket for the scheduled clash with the Braves. And was Burleigh rearin' to go!

Grimes recently sampled American League feed and it did not aid his digestion a bit. But he thinks he is ready to prowl again in the National League cities for his fighting blood is aroused and his spitball is exploding again.

YEARNS FOR RING

Perhaps you don't know that Burleigh's one regret in an athletic way is that he did not go in for the ring game. Said Grimes:

"You know a fellow is on his own once he bounces through those ropes to tie into some other bozo. If you take the count there you can't blame it on the bad hops or some infielder. It's a case of everybody for himself and no teamwork when you start swapping punches, and sometimes I think that should have been Burleigh's game."

Another scrapper of the pitching species pulled the Pirates through in great shape as they made it three out of four over the Reds yesterday on the wet soil of the Oakland Orchard.

WAITE SHINES AGAIN

Waite Hoyt rushed to the aid of the faltering Heinie Meine in the sixth inning, and the oldtime Yankee held the winning run at bay and then carried on to a pleasing success. The score was 9 to 6.

The contest was marred by very loose fielding, some of which was occasioned by the wet loam. The Reds jumped off to a three-run lead in the first, but Paul Waner started his bat didoes early, and largely on account of Paul's four hits the Bucs overcame and outdistanced the foe.

The Pirates scored the winning

EDDIE ZIVIC PUSHES NEW YORK CAMPAIGN HERE TONIGHT

MARCHESE FOE OF LOCAL STAR IN MILLVALE

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Eddie Zivic vs. Frankie Marchese, 10 rounds; Jimmy Vaughn vs. Charley Baxter and Dick Ambrose vs. Teddy Smith, 8 rounds each and Nick Malloy vs. Jack Trammel, 5 rounds, Hickey Park, Millvale.

Ted Yarosz vs. Bud Saltis, 10 rounds; Mose Butch vs. Ross Fields and Len Sheppard vs. Charley Burns, 8 rounds each, and Ray Eberle vs. Keith Goodrich, six rounds, East Liverpool, O.

Henry Hook vs. Jimmy Perrin, 10 rounds, New Orleans.

By JAMES MILLER

Back in the deeper recesses of Luke Carney's mind is an idea which he will pursue further tonight in the interest of Eddie Zivic, his local lightweight boxer.

Eddie recently knocked out Joey Costa, a good little fighter, from New York, twice, once at Hickey Park, Millvale, and the second time at Greenlee Field, following his successful invasion of California with his brother, Fritzie.

Tonight, at Hickey Park, Eddie meets another New York boxer, Frankie Marchese, who has boxed Kid Chocolate and other topnotchers. If his man gets safely past Frankie, Luke will try to induce the local promoters to bring other Eastern boxers here for Eddie. You see, his idea is that the shortest cut to recognition in the big money centers is by beating the fellows who are well known there. He doesn't think they are any tougher than the men around here, but a boxer gets more credit for beating them.

TRAINS AT CONNEAUT

Eddie has been training at Conneaut Lake, where Brother Fritzie meets Young Joe Firpo, of Pennsboro, N. J., next Saturday afternoon. He is in good shape and Manager Carney will be very much surprised if he doesn't show to fine advantage.

Jimmy Vaughn, of Cleveland, meets Charley Baxter, local knockerout, and Dick Ambrose boxes Teddy Smith, of Akron, in two eight-round bouts, while Jack Trammel, of Cleveland, and Nick Malloy, heavyweights, furnish the five-round opener tonight.

YAROSZ MEETS SALTIS

Ted Yarosz engages in his final warmup fight before meeting Vince Dundee for the middleweight title when he battles Bud Saltis, of Chicago, in the 10-round main bout of a benefit show to pay off a stadium at East Liverpool, O., tonight. The show originally was scheduled for last Thursday and was postponed.

Mose Butch boxes Ross Fields and Charley Burns meets Len Sheppard in two eight-round bouts, and Ray Eberle, of Ambridge, also is on the card.

Many fans from the Beaver Valley will attend to see their favorite, Yarosz, perform.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Vince Dundee, the middleweight champion, whose match with Ted Yarosz here next month still is hanging in the balance, and who was beaten by Tommy Ross at Leiperville, Pa., last Thursday night, boxes another non-title tuneup bout against Tony Brescia, of New York, at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., this Thursday.

Bunny Buntach has arranged to have Mike Barto and Jack Daicherone, his boxers, do their training in Pittsburgh for the next few weeks. They will drill at the Pittsburgh Lyceum.

Jack Perry, former local welterweight boxer, is recuperating from an anemic condition in his home in Los Angeles, following a five months' siege in a hospital. He has Guy Salerno back in action again, boxing as a light-heavyweight.

REGATTA MAKES RACE HISTORY

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Two new champions, a lithe young oarsman from Princeton University and a knife-prowed speedboat owned by a Montclair (N. J.) sportsman, made water race history as the Maryland tercentenary regatta closed here yesterday.

Winthrop Rutherfourd, the Princetonian, won the national singles scull championship from the defending champion, Al Vogt, of the Penn Athletic Club, Philadelphia, by a few feet gained at the very end of a heart-breaking mile over choppy water. His margin of victory was his superior stamina.

Betty V, a new entry into the unlimited, single-motored powerboat field, won the annual race for the national sweepstakes trophy after the fastest lap, run in excess of 60 miles an hour, made in the race history.

George Reis' El Lagarto, last year's winner of the sweepstakes and this year's holder of the Gold Cup, was not in the race, due to an accident several days ago. Consequently, Betty V had but little competition from Ernie Chase's Pep III, the only other entry left in the finals. But the time in the one two-and-one-half-mile, double-turn lap, in which Crooks did open wide, indicated to water sportsmen that El Lagarto was slated for some stiff competition in the future.

Manager Drops Dead During Game

BUFFALO, Aug. 13.—Jimmy Digman, manager of the Blue Coals, took his baseball seriously. He took it so much to heart that he dropped off the bench dead yesterday afternoon when what appeared to be a perfect double-play ball took a high bound over his second baseman's head with the bases filled in the ninth inning.

The Blue Coals were so heartbroken by the death of their manager they left the field without further play, and forfeited the game and the league championship.

WALD TO MEET WESTERNER IN PARKS PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 13.—Harry Wald, Pittsburgh's entrant in the National Public Parks tennis championships here this week, was scheduled to begin his campaign for laurels by meeting Fred Harzsheimer, of Rochester, Minn., today.

Mrs. Jean Artzberger, Steel City hope in the women's singles, drew a bye through the initial round and will engage Elizabeth Kesting, St. Paul ace and second in the girls' national ranking, in stanza two.

Mrs. Artzberger may not be called upon to play until Wednesday, as the feminine section of the tournament will not start until tomorrow.

If Wald comes through his inaugural encounter, he will joust tomorrow with the survivor of a tilt between Bill Lurie, of New York, and Gordon Reeder, of Tulsa.

A triumph for Mrs. Artzberger in her opener will pit her against either Helen Germain, New York hope and 1932 premiere, or Betty Butler, star of Des Moines. Miss Germain defeated Mrs. Artzberger in a torrid quarter-final fray last year. The seeded lists follow:

Men's singles—1, Arnold Simons, Louisville; 2, Ted Drewes, St. Louis; 3, Billy Schommer, Minneapolis; 4, Barnard Welsh, Washington; 5, Jess Millman, Los Angeles; 6, Dooley Mitchell, Washington; 7, Bowet Rexinger, Chicago; 8, Walter Smigel, Cleveland.

Women's singles—1, Mrs. Ruth Bailey Prosser, St. Louis; 2, Helen Germain, New York; 3, Lydia Kaczer, Buffalo; 4, Mrs. Andree Russell, Cleveland.

Men's doubles—1, Britzius and Schommer, Minneapolis; 2, Kronman and Pavkoff, Buffalo; 3, McKiernan and Welsh, Washington; 4, Norton and Heuermann, St. Louis.

TENNIS QUEEN PUT ON SPOT

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Helen Jacobs set forth in pursuit of her third successive United States women's singles tennis championship today. Sixty-three others, including three British invaders and all of this country's ranking stars except Helen Wills Moody and Alice Marble, will try to head her off in the forty-seventh championship at the West Side Stadium, in Forest Hills.

Her victory over Mrs. Moody in their now historic meeting in last year's final and her fine showing in the Wightman Cup matches should have served to make Miss Jacobs a standout choice to retain the title, but she w..s not.

DEFEATS RECALLED

Against her impressive performances in the Wightman Cup series when she and Sarah Palfrey carried the Americans to victory over Great Britain, the experts pointed to her defeat by Margaret (Peggy) Scriven for the French hard court crown; by Dorothy Round, at Wimbledon, and, more recently, by Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, in the fina's of the Seabright tournament, the only competition in which she has been entered since her return from abroad.

Miss Palfrey, the gallant little fighter from Brookline, Mass., Miss Babcock and the leader of the British contingent, Betty Nuthall, are figured as Miss Jacobs' most dangerous rivals. Katherine Stammers and Frieda James, useful players both, completed the British challenge, while Elizabeth Ryan, the veteran Californian who has made England her home for many years, was still another formidable rival.

IN TOUGH BRACKET

The luck of the draw placed Miss Jacobs in the lower, and tougher, half. Her first round opponent today was the clever Boston lefthander, Marjorie Sachs.

In the upper half, Miss Palfrey is to meet Ruby Bishop, of Pasadena, in the first round and then, if form prevails, will tackle Mae Ceurvorst, of Wichita, Kan.; Dr. Esther Bartosh, Los Angeles; Miss James, and either Miss Nuthall or Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., in the semi-finals.

LITTLE WINS TITLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Lawson Little, British amateur champion, swept through a strong field yesterday to win the 1934 Northern California open golf title with a 72-hole total of 288. The husky young San Franciscan outdistanced his closest competitor, Henry Cottrin, of San Francisco, the defending champion, by four strokes.

FINE HURLING AIDS BIRDS

Whatever else the Huntington Red Birds may lack, it isn't good pitchers.

Tommy Brown and Red Lynn turned in two masterful pitching performances yesterday, as the Birds, taking both ends of a double-header with Charleston, shunted Johnstown from second place in the Mid-Atlantic League. The scores were 2-1 and 1-0.

Springfield helped the Red Birds dislodge Johnstown from second place by downing the latter 2-1, after a wild pitch by Harve Thompson with the bases loaded in the ninth inning.

Zanesville's first place lead was cut slightly as the Greys dropped a 4-3 encounter to the Beckley Black Knights, but the Greys still remain far in the van.

Dayton and Wheeling divided a dual bill, the Stogies taking the opener, 4-3, and the Ducks the night cap, 4-0. Wheeling scored three runs in the sixth to tie the first game, and then settled everything with a run in the seventh after McCaskill and Stravacos singled.

JOHN VAN RYN, ALLISON WIN

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, the ninth seeded player, today opened the fifty-third Newport Casino tennis touranment with an easy second round victory over his townsman, Nelson Pell, 6-0, 6-2.

Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., last week's Longwood Bowl winner, got off to an impressive start by eliminating Clarence A. D. Finn, of New York, without losing a single game.

Sidney Wood, of New York, Davis Cup singles player, opened his domestic season by defeating C. H. Beasley, of New York, 6-2, 6-4, in the first round.

Top-seeded Francis X. Shields, of New York, who shared the Davis Cup singles assignments with Wood, started the defense of his Casino title with a 6-3, 6-3 second round victory over H. Hunter Lott, of Philadelphia.

CHECKER TOURNEY ON

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Checker wizards of the nation were here today to vie throughout the next two weeks for the championship of the American Association, now held by Asa A. Long, of Toledo, O. More than 150 entrants are expected to compete for the honor.

Personalities in Softball

Johnny Pivak is one of the star outfielders with the Fort Black Community Club, which waged a great fight in the playoff series only to lose in the quarter-final round to the Weise Newsies. Bracket VII champions, in the Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament. The Blacks finished in a tie for the Bracket V leadership and Johnny Pivak lost the playoff game to the strong Commercial Garage team, which qualified for the semi-final round.

Harry Vanfossen has been playing a fine game in the outfield for the Elizabeth Produce team, which carried off the Bracket IV championship in the senior competition of the Sun-Telegraph tournament. He boasts one of the best throwing arms in the Monongahela Valley and his timely hitting has been a big help to the club. Although the Elizabeth team has been eliminated in the playoffs, it will play Thursday against the Commercial Garage team in an exhibition game at Washington Park. It is rated one of the strongest teams in Western Pennsylvania.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: THE GREATEST BIG GAME HUNTER—The most successful elephant killer of all time is W. D. M. Bell, whose "bag" includes 983 elephant bulls, 28 elephant cows, 25 lions, 16 leopards and 700 African buffalo. Bell, who is 54 years old, landed in Africa in 1900 and achieved this record in 16½ years. Only the elephant cows were shot for meat or in self-defense. The bulls were shot for ivory, of which the largest yield in a single day of shooting was 1,643 pounds. The hunter's yearly consumption in leather boots was 24 pairs, and the average distance covered was 12 miles for every killed elephant. A MILLION-DOLLAR MISTAKE—An ax is left or right-handed according to the side on which the cutting edge is ground. A New York scientist traveling in the South observed a left-handed Negro turpentine worker in the act of picking up a right-handed ax to gash some pine trees for turpentine. The Negro's mistake produced a cut slightly different from the one intended. In this small difference a method was discovered to make the trees yield more turpentine. The improvement added a million dollars' worth of revenue to the turpentine industry of the South. The American Institute of Chemists awarded its medal to the discoverer on May 7, 1934.

By PHIL GRABOWSKI
Softball Tournament Secretary

The Commercial Garage tossers are reposing today in the final round of the playoff series in the junior competition of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tourney, and they reached the coveted position without swinging a bat or tossing a ball.

Yesterday, they were booked to battle the Waverlys at McKelvey Park, but the latter team became lost in transit, failed to appear and the Commercials took the game via the forfeit route.

Manager Tony Tato's Commercials will oppose the Pioneers, of Carnegie, runners-up in Bracket II, for the West Penn championship next week. The Hill district lads won the Bracket II crown by defeating the Pioneers. The Carnegie team got into the finals by virtue of its victory over Calvary, winners in Bracket I.

Capt. Joe While will lead his Harris Reds against the Snubs A. C. outfit in an exhibition softball game on the Schenley High School Field this evening. Both teams have been playing independent games and meeting some of the strongest clubs in the city. The Snubs hold victories over E. J. Noftz, Commercials and Campbell Shamrocks.

Tomorrow, on the Peabody High School diamond, the Goldenson Vanities, champions of Bracket II, will encounter the Modern Food team, of East Pittsburgh, in a semi-final playoff series game in the girls' division.

Death Removes Former Big Leaguer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Death removed one of baseball's old timers, Capt. George E. Andrews, who succumbed to a heart attack. He was 75. He died yesterday.

Capt. Andrews, pioneer Florida developer, played baseball with Akron, O., in the Interstate League, going to the Philadelphia Nationals in 1884. The next year he went to Brooklyn with John Ward, and the following season appeared with the Cincinnati Reds.

Born at Painesville, O., he gained prominence during his late years as a yachting authority and sports writer.

Greenlee Field to Be Scene Of Softball Play Finals

The finals to determine the champions in the various classes and the senior champion which will represent Pittsburgh in the national tournament at Lincoln Field, Chicago, September 8-9-10, will be played at Greenlee Field Monday and Wednesday evenings of next week.

The decision to play the all-important eliminations in an enclosed park was made to give the followers of the teams in the successful tournament an opportunity to view the games in comfort from grandstand seats.

A doubleheader will be played each day and a nominal sum of 25 cents per ticket will be charged to defray expenses. As a special concession players on teams which played in the tournament but were eliminated will be admitted for 10 cents each. Special tickets will be sold to these registered players and may be obtained only at this office.

An advance sale of regular tickets also will be held at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The latter may be obtained at either the main office or the downtown office at Fifth avenue and Market street.

The sale will begin on Wednesday. Any unsold tickets will be disposed of at Greenlee Field on the days of the games.

SNYDER WINNER AT SHARON

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 13.—Deb Snyder, of Kent, O., won yesterday's 20-mile feature auto race at the local speedway and in addition, set a new track record for the distance, being clocked in 17:58. His victory climaxed an afternoon of thrills, including one spill and a fire.

Clifford Crosley, Wellsburg, W. Va., suffered a fractured arm and cuts about the head when his car crashed through the guard rail on the upper turn. He was able to leave the local hospital after receiving medical attention.

Windsor Lad Made St. Leger Favorite

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Windsor Lad, winner of the English Derby, was made a warm favorite today in the call-over of odds on the St. Leger, last of the season's five classics for 3-year-olds, which will be renewed for the one hundred and fifty-ninth time over a mile and three-quarters September 12.

The colt was called at 2 to 1, with Columbo, unbeaten until he met Windsor Lad in the Derby, a second choice at 4 to 1. Achtenan was 9 to 1, Umidwar 10 to 1 and Tiberius 100 to 6.

CIRCUIT ACES AT GOSHEN

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—This little Orange County town took over the harness horse situation today.

All the leading trotters and pacers of the country are stabled at W. H. Cane's God Time Park for the week's Grand Circuit meeting, opening today and climaxed by the ninth running of the Hambletonian, for 3-year-old trotters, on Wednesday.

The Hambletonian, richest stake of the harness horse world, will carry a purse of about $40,000 this year, compared with the record total of $73,451.32 for the first Hambletonian, which Guy McKinney won in 1926.

Emily Stokes, fleet daughter of the 1926 winner, Spencer, ruled an even-money choice today largely because of the showing this filly, owned by C. W. Phellis of New York, made in winning the National Stakes at Rockingham Park in straight heats recently. Also heavily supported were C. B. Schaffer's Muscletone from Lexington, Ky., and Henry H. Knight's Reynolda, from Chicago.

The feature of today's opening card was the Village stake for 2-year-old pacers.

run in the seventh on an infield error, and they made two safety tallies in the eighth.

CHILLYSAUCE

Larry French reports an interesting sidelight of his defeat at the hands of the Reds in the first game. Larry decided he'd stick only to taste a bitter pill when Billy Terry pitched three successive slow balls to the Waner boys to hold the losing run on third in the ninth.

Frankie Hart, to push Dr. Peary, Knox & Jerry affair down, had pitched the inning with a Charlie Root head full of Phenolax sacrifice. Meanwhile, the former apparently did not know the outfielder was batting with a stomach.

Tony labored up a couple of balls and retired the two clever batters. The pain in his arm could have no correlation. For Frankie saw Hart retire the shaver, both a few moments later and the reservist was reserved.

Eddie Morrow was circling in concert to gain the wonderment of the boys in front of the park, when the ball came to him. Eddie was a trifle late, however, to be had a prize in one of his hands and when he went through the fielding practice he muffled.

Eddie was sobbing in the dark recesses of the stands when the writer happened to pass by. Mayor Leopold Tony Mayor to McKeesport, Pa., stayed in the contest and wiped it with a banner.

Capt. Gus Suhr of the Pirates had an important date tomorrow night. Gus will go to wed just when the children of the baseball fraternity Tony Mayor as the Pittsburgh Recreation, through Playground Director Paul Doyle, formed a committee of Forbes Field, had arranged to have the popular captain visit with the youngsters.

Eddie was sobbing in the dark recesses of the stands when the writer happened to pass by. Mayor Leopold Tony Mayor to McKeesport, Pa., stayed in the contest and wiped it with a banner.

Capt. Gus Suhr of the Pirates had an important date tomorrow night. Gus will go to wed just when the children of the baseball fraternity Tony Mayor as the Pittsburgh Recreation, through Playground Director Paul Doyle, formed a committee of Forbes Field, had arranged to have the popular captain visit with the youngsters.

SURFACE CHAMPION

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Ira Hutchison, Kansas City star, today added the national championship of the inland amateur Michigan Trophy golf tournament to his collection. Hutchison defeated Dr. Jack Harris of Columbus, Ohio, yesterday morning by one up on the 36 hole route. He will meet Karl Kamrath, of Chicago, this afternoon.

DEAN BROTHERS VICTIMS AS CUBS GAIN

Associated Press

A brilliant recovery by the Chicago Cubs has revived interest in the National League race and left the Cubs with a good chance to stage another comeback in the running home stand against the East.

Five games behind the league-leading Giants after losing the first two games of a series to St. Louis, the Cubs regained a full game yesterday by beating the Cardinals 7 to 1 and 4 to 3 in a doubleheader, while New York's game with Boston was halted by rain. In addition the Cubs performed in one day a feat which only two other clubs accomplished all season. They beat both of the Dean brothers.

DEAN BOYS LOSE

Paul Dean, the younger, was the opening game victim as Billy and Babe Herman nicked him for a homer apiece in the fifth, and he failed to survive the next frame. Babe Herman got another circuit blow off Jess Haines in the ninth. Brother Dizzy waged a close battle against Pat Malone for seven innings of the afternoon but was blasted out in the eighth when Chicago put together a triple, two doubles and a single for four runs. It was his fifth defeat against 21 victories. Jim Collins salvaged his twenty-sixth homer from the defeat.

Only the Pirates and Phillies hold decisions over both Deans in addition to Chicago, which has beaten the brothers in five of the 11 games they have lost.

12 FOR TIGERS

Detroit's Tigers, who have won so many games by late rallies that it has developed into a habit, did the trick again in the tenth inning to prolong their winning streak to 12 games and increase their American League lead over the Yankees to 4½ games. The Cleveland Indians were the victims and the final score was 8 to 5.

The Yankees helped attract a record crowd at Boston but failed to get more than an even break with the Red Sox. While 46,700 fans looked on and about 20,000 more regretted their failure to arrive early enough to get into the park, Boston won the first game, 6-4, as Wes Ferrell pitched his tenth victory and started the deciding rally with a double in the eighth. New York came back to take the second game, 7-1, behind the seven-hit flinging of bespectacled Johnny Broaca.

BABE SAYS FAREWELL

The big turnout was inspired largely by Babe Ruth, who, according to his own announcement, was making his last appearance as a regular in the city where his big league career began.

George Earnshaw, working for the first $500 bonus he is to get for each victory over 10, pitched the White Sox into an even break with St. Louis in a double bill. After the Browns won the opener, 4-2, when Ray Pepper's eighth-inning triple overcame the effects of Al Simmons' homer, the Sox came back to give Earnshaw brilliant support and win the afterpiece, 3 to 2.

Washington and Philadelphia started to play a doubleheader, but finished with one seven-inning tie at 1 to 1 when rain ended their activities just after the A's had rapped Earl Whitehill for three singles and the tying run.

MADDEN'S PLAY BEATS POLICE

His recently injured leg very much O. K., so much so, in fact, that he was able to pile up seven goals, Sergt. U. S. (Old Sarge) Madden led the Fox Chapel polo team to a decisive 14-to-2 triumph over the County Police in a Western Pennsylvania Polo League game on the South Park field yesterday.

Madden recently suffered a painful leg hurt when he was struck by a ball. He was forced to get about with the aid of crutches for a time.

All other league games were cancelled yesterday, due to the soggy condition of the playing fields. This evening, Chartiers Heights and North Hills will attempt to play on the Rosslyn Farm field. Yesterday's lineup:

Fox Chapel (Coach) Price, 2.
Fox Chapel: No. 1, Kennedy; No. 2, Mellon; No. 3, Ward; No. 4, Phipps; back, Mellon.
Police: No. 1, Conroy; No. 2, Price; No. 3, Harris; No. 4, Gerry; back, Phillips.

Police: No. 1, Conroy; No. 2, Price; No. 3, Harris; No. 4, Gerry; back, Phillips.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY OF GREATER PITTSBURGH

U.S. CHAMBER HITS LABOR FIGURES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today challenged the latest American Federation of Labor unemployment figures as more than 3,000,000 too high.

The federation's July report estimated that 10,300,000 were out of work. The chamber said in its weekly Washington review there were less than 7,000,000 unemployed last month. The review said:

"Current exaggerations of the number of unemployed has been an unsettling influence."

The chamber's statement was reminiscent of differences over unemployment summaries during the Hoover administration, when the Democrats regularly disputed Republican estimates as too low.

William Green's comment on the federation's figures was that they showed industry had not done its part in the recovery program.

MORE EMPLOYED

The chamber answered by saying that "more than a million persons were added to payrolls of manufacturing establishments" during the year ended in July, and that "in fact the accomplishment was even larger than the gross figure indicates."

It said many of the tabulations were based on figures taken from old plants which are not advancing in their activities and employment so rapidly as many newer enterprises. The review said:

"As yet there is no way to compute the exact amount by which employment in manufacturing is understated, but that there is understatement there can be no doubt.

"If a well-known remark were to be paraphrased, it would be that what the country needs is not more statistics but better statistics."

ALWAYS UNEMPLOYED

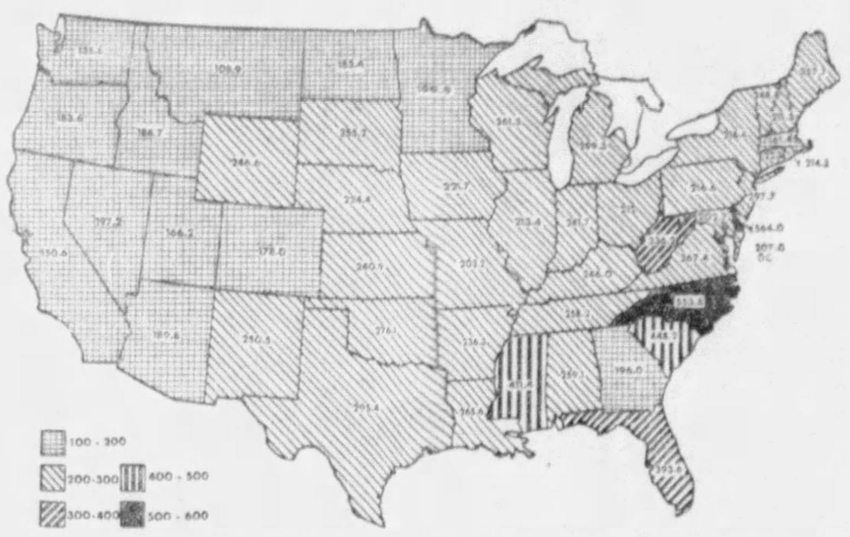
In his speech before the chamber's convention, President Henry I. Harriman estimated that 4,000,000 are out of work because of the depression, he said some 3,000,000 normally are unemployed in this country.

The chamber's review was more conservative than Harriman. At least 2,000,000, the chamber said were unemployed before the depression, leaving 5,000,000 out of work as a result of the crisis.

Increase in Local Taxation Hinders Revival in Building

RISE IN LOCAL TAXATION

ALL DATA SHOWN AS PER CENT INCREASE OF 1930 OVER 1913



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE

This chart shows the course of local taxation over a 17-year period, from 1913 to 1930. Some apology must be offered for the difficulty in securing more up-to-date figures for local taxation. However, the task of accumulating local reports is prodigious, and a general analysis of local taxation must usually await a period of years before it can become authentic.

The figures on the various states in the chart show that every property owner has known for years, viz., that local taxation has increased at an alarming rate. The data on which the chart is based has been adjusted to per capita payments, so that the total revenue collected by local governments has taken into account the increase in population.

It may be noted that not a single state in the Union shows an increase in the local tax burden as low as 100 per cent during this 17-year period.

First prize goes to the State of Montana which shows per capita increase of 108.9 per cent during this period.

The prize at the other end goes to the State of Delaware whose taxpaying citizens find that for every $100 in local taxes which they paid in 1913 they paid $664 in 1930. North Carolina presses hard upon the heels of Delaware for honors in this division, for its citizens had the privilege of paying $663.80 for every $100 which they paid in 1913.

The federal government at the present time is directing its attention to the stimulation of capital goods industries, and its success in this field will depend largely upon a revival in construction. There are several factors that account for the failure of this great industry to pick up and join the recovery procession. Certainly one of the most important in the continued depression of construction is the appalling burden of taxation which greets the property owner.

California Crude Oil Output Drops

California crude oil output in the week ended August 11 is estimated at 513,700 barrels daily average, against 500,100 barrels daily in the week preceding and 506,700 barrels daily in the like week of 1933.

Hog Prices Reach New High Level

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—A top of $5.60 was paid for hogs this morning, the best price since October, 1931, when the peak was $5.80.

Bituminous Coal Production Drops

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Soft coal production dropped more than three per cent in the week ended August 4, estimates of the Bureau of Mines disclose. The week's soft coal output was estimated at 5,815,000 tons, 205,000 tons less than the preceding week, comparing with 6,770,000 tons in the corresponding week of 1933.

Stocks of Rubber Higher in London

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Stocks of crude rubber in London on August 11 totaled 51,555 tons, an increase of 695 tons over preceding week. Liverpool stock totaled 55,681 tons, a gain of 214 tons.

Board of Trade Seat Sells Lower

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—A membership on the Chicago Board of Trade has been sold for $9,000, a decrease of $300 compared to the last previous sale.

BRITAIN SEES MONETARY ACCORD

By WYLIE KING
London Financial Times.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Are the United States, France and Britain secretly pursuing the long-term monetary, also commodity, price policy sketchily outlined in private talks at the economic conference in London and at various subsequent meetings of representatives, such as George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, and Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England?

It is difficult to believe. Certainly it is not publicly admitted. But the question is a constant subject of surmise in London financial circles.

AVOID INFLATION

President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau frequently make inflationary gestures, but they never dive headlong into the perilous foam. The Financial News today said:

"Largely from the timidity with which Roosevelt's boldly conceived plans are executed, they regularly tend to fall flat."

British authorities talk little, but persistently practice a policy indistinguishable from controlled inflation. Currency and note circulation was today the highest ever, at 392,800,00 pounds, against last year's 385,000,000 pounds.

SEE DEVALUATION

The bulk of the city is convinced that the United States intends to devalue the dollar to the 50 per cent limit, at which time, it is assumed, the pound sterling will be allowed to depreciate nearly as much, say to $5.05 or $5.10, against gold at $41.34 an ounce.

Then, simultaneously, or alternatively, after agreement at an international tariffs and war debts conference, it is thought France will give the lead to the gold bloc in a surprise devaluation of their currencies against gold.

Anyhow, Roosevelt's implication in his Wisconsin speech that the United States can play a depreciating currency card without other countries overtrumping whenever they think it is to their interest, is considered obvious political eyewash.

July Automobile Sales Increase

R. L. Polk & Co. reports July passenger car sales in 14 states, representing 14.91 per cent of the United States, totaled 46,215 units, against sales of 26,206 units in June and 27,690 in July, 1933. Truck and commercial car sales in 12 states totaled 6,917 units in July, against 6,549 in June and 5,465 in July, 1933.

REICH CLEARS MARK ORDER

International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—It was officially stated today that foreign tourists will not be affected by the government's registered mark decree. Only foreigners resident in Germany will no longer be granted registered marks, it was added.

Germany's raw zinc production in July was 5,900 tons, comparing with 5,618 tons in June, according to official statistics.

Soviet Russia will not attend the East German fair of August 19 "because of the small chances for profitable business deals."

It was officially announced that no more gold trophies will be awarded at German sport meets on account of the "serious gold situation."

AUTOIST BEATEN AFTER CRASH

Eighteen hours after George Murphy, 28, of 1343 Belasco street, was beaten by three men when he stopped his automobile to investigate an accident, he became ill in his home and was taken to South Side Hospital. There it was discovered he had suffered a fractured skull.

Murphy was driving in West Liberty avenue, at Cape May avenue, when another machine containing the three men cut in front of him and bumped a fender. Murphy was attacked when he left his machine to investigate the accident.

DISTRICT ENDS BANK WORK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, announced today that all national banks in the First Federal Reserve District comprising the states of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, which were unlicensed on March 16, 1933, have been completely disposed of.

Of the ninety-two banks in the First District unlicensed on March 16, 1933, thirty-nine were licensed without having reorganization plans developed by the Reorganization Division. Of the fifty-three banks handled by this Division, fifty-one were reorganized or acceptable assets sold to an existing bank and two were placed in liquidation through the appointment of a Receiver. Twenty-six banks were reorganized through a waiver by depositors and twenty-five through a Spokane sale of acceptable assets to a New Bank or an existing Institution.

MACHINE TRADE NET GAINS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Earnings of typical machinery manufacturers for the first six months of 1934 showed further evidence of recovery the department of commerce reported today.

Of 13 firms eight recorded gains and five losses, as compared with one gain and 12 losses by the same concerns for the first six months of 1933.

Losses reported for 1934 amounted to $1,577,000 and the eight firms showing gains reported a total of $3,379,000, a net gain of $1,802,000.

The same firms in 1933 showed a net loss of $6,276,000.

Tanker Rams Liner In Delaware River

LEWES, Del., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Anchored in a heavy fog while awaiting a Delaware river pilot, the S. S. Carillo, United Fruit Company liner, carrying 27 passengers from Guatemala, was rammed last midnight by the S. S. Western Sun, a tanker.

Neither ship was seriously damaged and both proceeded to port under their own power.

'POX' ON STONES STARTS PANIC

International News Service.

CALCUTTA, Aug. 13.—In probably the strangest religious demonstration in the history of India thousands of Hindus went on their knees in the streets of Calcutta today, invoking the aid of the Gods following a sensational scare that all stoneware was developing the smallpox.

Early this morning it was noticed that black spots had appeared on paving stones.

Recalling previous smallpox plagues, crowds began destroying paving blocks on which the black spots appeared and within an hour huge mobs appeared, blocking traffic.

Then some one noticed that the stone images of goddesses were similarly affected and hundreds of Hindus prostrated themselves in supplication before the temple idols.

The black spots were generally believed to be fungus growths which frequently attach themselves to stone in warm weather.

MOTHER'S ODD EXCUSE FAILS

At least Mary E. Smith's explanation was novel.

Arraigned in McKeesport Police Court today, she denied she sold moonshine and beer in her home at Strawberry street and Welser alley.

She said she had some on hand simply as a surprise party for a son who was returning from a Civilian Conservation Corps camp.

Nevertheless she was fined $25.

'Phantom' Gunman Shoots Ex-Convict

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Matthew Overnack, 28, a pardoned convict, today was near death from a bullet wound in the spine, inflicted by an "invisible" assailant on a South Philadelphia street corner.

Three alleged friends of Overnack told police they were standing on the opposite corner when shots rang out and Overnack slumped to the pavement. Residents said they saw Overnack fall but could not see the mysterious marksman.

Thousands Worship At Portland Shrine

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Thousands of devout pilgrims trekked to the shrine of Our Sorrowful Mother today to venerate the Mother of Christ during the 4-day celebration of the First Marian Congress of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Congress was formally opened here yesterday following a high mass celebrated by Alexis M. Cardinal Lepicier, O. S. M., here from Rome at the direction of the Vatican.

Church Dome Falls In Mexican Quake

Untermyer Urges Jews Ban Olympics

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(Universal-INS.)—Jewish athletes have been appealed to by Samuel Untermyer, president of the Non-Sectarian League to Champion Human Rights, to stay away from the 1936 Olympic games, to be held in Berlin.

Untermyer, whose appeal came on the heels of the publication in the Olympic News of an article by Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association, accepting the German invitation to the games, made his plea on the grounds that no Jew should accept Nazi hospitality. He said:

"Out of decent consideration for their race, it is unthinkable that any self-respecting Jew would accept the hospitality of a country that persists in so insulting, degrading and persecuting our people."

Bullfighter Killed Trying Comeback

MADRID, Aug. 13. — (AP.) — Sanchez Mejia, a star matador of other days, died today of injuries he received Saturday as he attempted a comeback in the bull ring at Manzanares.

Also seriously injured in the week-end's amusement was Juan Belmonte, the most famed of all bullfighters. He was gored twice in the ring at Santander. It was believed Belmonte would live.

PREXY REVISES LEAGUE CARD

Dormont originally was booked to appear at Olympia Park this evening against the Books in what would have been a pip of a ball game. Under the new lineup Bill Palzell takes his Homewooders to the lair of the defending champions. Homewood appears to be the only team in the league that has a chance to stop the triumphant march of the Books to another crown. If Dormont's protest over the use of Rhiny Kress by the Books had been upheld by President Sweeny, and the games in which Kress has appeared for Books tossed into the discard, then the race would have been a wide open affair.

Joe Beggs, who has been out in the minor leagues once this season, and who pitched some sterling ball for Homewood during the first half chase, will get the call to oppose the Books this evening.

Practically all of the old Bellevue club will appear in the Old Timers game at the Oliver High School grounds on Wednesday evening. The three Swetonic boys, Joe, Jim and Andy and Art Shaw, Cy Rheam, Lefty Westerwick, Jack Miller and Dave Jackson again will don their uniforms and play against the North Side Jednotas in a charity tilt.

The McKeesport Little Bues, of the Penn State Association, will square off against a former big league star and former Pirate Thursday night as they meet the House of David tossers in an exhibition game at Cycler Park. The bearded nine will have Earl Smith behind the bat. Mildred (Babe) Didrickson, famous girl athlete and former Olympic star, also is a member of the club.

The Black Sheep team won the second half championship of the Ormsby Section in the South Side Athletic Association Mushball League by defeating the Missions in the playoff game, 7-0. Both teams were tied with four victories and one defeat. Our Gang continued to lead in the Armstrong division with six victories and no reverses.

The Dormont-Mt. Lebanon team is to meet the Crawfords at the Dormont High School filed at 6:15 Wednesday evening, and will oppose the House of David team at the Washington School grounds Friday evening.

Kleinas carried off the Malders' Hill division championship with seven wins and one defeat. Jinx is setting the pace in the Sarah group.

Greensburg Back In League Lead

A mighty neat trick of hurling by Joe Davis, who kept the eight hits he granted Washington well scattered, enabled the Greensburg Redwings to regain first place in the Penn State Association yesterday.

Rain washed two of the three games from the card and prevented McKeesport from keeping pace with the Wings. The latter scored in the first inning on a double and a single to beat Washington 1 to 0. Bill Yocke, on the slab for the Generals, was almost as effective as Davis, giving up only five hits.

YANK BOOTERS WIN

SOPWITH SAILS WITH RIVAL

MATTAPOISETT, Mass., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—All hands had "an easy" time yesterday, except for Yankee's crew, as the New York Yacht Club halted its annual cruise for a Sabbath stopover.

The harbor was jammed with yachts of all sizes and rigs participating in the cruise, but only Yankee of the contenders for the defense of the America's Cup made sail and stood out on Buzzards Bay. She went out to test another mainsail.

Yankee left her anchorage only after a diver had gone down to make sure she had not been damaged when her centerboard struck on a shoal just before she finished yesterday's race from Newport. Weetamoe also struck, but apparently escaped damage.

T. O. M. Sopwith and his wife, who will sail with him as a member of the crew of the Endeavour, the British challenger, joined the cruise here in Vita, his big power yacht which accompanied the Endeavour on her Atlantic passage. He planned to sail aboard Rainbow today as Harold S. Vanderbilt's guest in a race between the cup boats in Buzzard's Bay.

Tomorrow the entire fleet will weigh anchor for Vineyard Haven, the next objective of the cruise.

Cohn and Smith Win Tennis Title

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Beating back the challenge of two Virginians, Sam Cohn and Aubrey Smith, both of Beckley, W. Va., yesterday won the doubles championship in the third annual Blue Grass tennis tournament.

They defeated Paul Pollard, of Lynchburg, Va., and Frankie Williams, of Roanoke, Va., 6-4, 6-3, in straight sets. Due to a late start, it was agreed that the match would be decided in three sets.

Equipoise to Race In Coast Classic

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Equipoise, second largest money winner of the turf, will be pointed for the proposed $100,000 Pacific Coast race at Santa Anita Park, just outside Los Angeles, next winter, as his next major objective, according to reports here.

The C. V. Whitney star, it was said, will run the balance of this season only in weight-for-age events, passing up all the handicaps.

Mussolini's Son Wins Motor Race

RICCIONE, Italy, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Vittorio Mussolini, son of Il Duce, won the motor gymkhana yesterday against 52 competitors. The gymkhana is a race conducted annually at the Riccione summer festival. Contestants are judged on their skill in handling cars at high speeds, their margin of safety and other qualifications.

STOCKS RALLY ON STRONG BUYING

Strong buying appeared in the United States government bonds, after Saturday's sharp recession, and the stock market rallied briskly. Grains declined a cent or more a bushel, as trading was resumed after being all but stopped by the full-limit drops on Saturday, but selling slackened. Cotton turned upward, and the dollar improved in foreign exchange dealings.

Considerable short covering developed in the stock market, notably in rails and utilities. American Telephone, on which dividend action is due Wednesday, rose 3 points, and similar gains appeared in Union Pacific, Santa Fe, United States Smelting and others. Issues up about 2 points or more included United States Steel, Goodyear, United States Rubber preferred, Armour preferred, Case, United States Gypsum, Cuban American Sugar preferred, du Pont, Howe Sound and others. There were numerous advances of a point or more in packing, rubber, non-ferrous metal, sugar, motor and other groups.

The strength of commodity stocks, along with the improvement in the dollar and in United States government bonds, reflected the still confused state of mind in the financial community over inflation prospects. Traders in stocks seemed to feel that commodity issues should benefit from the rising commodity prices, due to crop damage, production control and other factors, and at the same time offered a hedge against inflation. At the same time, further consideration of the silver program prompted foreign bears on the dollar to cover their short sales, and the levels reached in Saturday's decline of the United States government securities attracted considerable buying from investment institutions.

Weekend news of rains over the drought states was generally reassuring. Wall street felt that it indicated some mitigation of the severest conditions in the Middle West, although coming at a time when no general restoration of crop yields could be expected, so that higher prices were still inevitable. Furthermore, with only three weeks left until Labor Day, traders who felt that some autumn recovery in business was assured, decided to lighten their short commitments, or take constructive positions.

GRAIN VALUES IN NEW FALL

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Material new breaks in grain values took place early today notwithstanding that the Liverpool wheat market reflected only in part Saturday's severe downturns here. Heavy fresh liquidation of Chicago wheat holdings was witnessed.

Opening ¾ to 2 cents lower, December new 1.05½ to 1.06, Chicago wheat afterward held within the initial range. Corn started at 1 cent off to ⅛ cent up, and subsequently underwent a sharp general setback.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Raw sugar was quiet early today, and as no sales reported prices were unchanged at 3.32 for spots.

Futures opened at declines of 1 to 2 points under a renewal of commission house liquidation, which seemed to be influenced by the continued inactivity in the spot market. Trading, however, was on a of small proportions, with operators generally inclined to limit fresh commitments. September contracts were holding around 1.77, while March, after selling at 1.87, rallied to 1.88.

Refined sugar was unchanged. Refiners were listing at 4.75 for fine granulated, while second hands were still obtainable at 4.70.

SILVER PLAN OPENS TWO PATHS

By M. L. RAMSAY
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—President Roosevelt in nationalizing silver and turning out new paper money is shunning at least for the present a radical enlargement of "inflation" of the currency.

This was made plain as the "inside story" of his past and present moves on the chessboard of national and international finance, for two months past, was disclosed for the first time.

That story, rounded out by authoritative sources, revealed that the President ordered — without public disclosure of the order—issuance of silver-backed paper money last June, prior to enactment of the new silver purchase act.

It revealed that in issuing this money, up to the topmost lawful value of the silver backing it, the President and the Treasury had no freedom of choice.

RETARDS ISSUE

It revealed that the moment the freedom of choice became available, through the new act, the money issue, against silver thereafter acquired, was slowed down.

For the present, by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's statement, it will remain slowed down. It will take its pace from the cost of silver to the Treasury.

Up to June 14, five days before final enactment of the silver purchase act, the Treasury had on hand about 62,000,000 ounces of silver. Part of it had been in the Treasury for years. Close to 4,000,000 ounces was newly mined and recently acquired. The remainder, nearly 23,000,000 ounces, had been received from foreign governments as payments on their war debts.

These 62,000,000 ounces of silver, from all three sources, had cost the Treasury $46,900,000, or an average of 75.8 cents an ounce.

With unimportant exceptions, the Treasury had no authority to buy more silver.

ORDERS CURRENCY

The President and Morgenthau decided to "clean up" this 62,000,000 ounces of silver by issuing silver certificates against it. The President handed Morgenthau an order authorizing this issue of certificates, but the order was not made public until Friday night.

Under the only legal authority then existing, the amount of paper money issued against the 62,000,000 ounces of silver had to be equivalent to its full legal monetary value of $1.29 an ounce, rather than its cost of 75.8 cents an ounce.

The result is that the Treasury today was in process of issuing $80,000,000 of silver certificates against this 62,000,000 ounces of silver. On this cost basis the paper money issue would have been limited to slightly more than $45,000,000.

This cost basis, not available under the old law, became available with the approval of the silver purchase act on June 19. It became available as an option.

Under the act Morgenthau could either hold future issues of currency down to the cost basis, or he could step them up, at will, to the old basis of full monetary value of $1.29 an ounce.

RUNS AT LOW SPEED

In effect he could run the printing presses, turning out paper money backed by silver, at low speed or at high speed. He elected to run them at low speed, on the basis of the cost of the silver. He is still running them at low speed.

For the present, as his statement of Friday night said, he will continue to run them that way. Which way he runs them in future depends largely upon the President. But even the President's decision is subject to a multitude of factors.

Prominent among these factors are conditions in business and on the farms, the degree of scarcity of money and of credit, what share of world trade the United States gets in the near future, and how other nations deal with their money.

Another factor, vastly important, is whether prices move up or down or stand still. In general the President has sought to have them move up, but he has also sought to eliminate inequalities.

BUYS SILVER

Two days after passage of the new act the Treasury started buying more silver, and kept on buying up to this week. The exact quantity bought is undisclosed. It has been enough to push up silver prices, but not enough for a notable enlargement of currency.

Still another lot of silver, much larger in quantity and estimated at 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 ounces, will be hauled into the Treasury by the order of nationalization or seizure. This silver, with the recently purchased silver, will be made a basis for money.

Under the present policy of printing paper money against it at low speed (cost of silver) it can enlarge the currency by only $150,000,000 at the outside. Many estimate the enlargement at only $75,000,000.

Beyond that, enlargement can come in two ways. The issue policy can be changed, more than doubling the issue. More silver can be bought and made the basis for currency. No official indication has been given of major action along either line.

Pipe Companies Receive Orders

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The Republic Steel Corporation has received an order for 4,125 tons of welded gas pipe from subsidiaries of the American Light and Traction Company.

The Warren Foundry and Pipe Corporation has received an order for 300 tons of pipe from the Kings County Hospital, New York.

The United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company has received an order for 594 tons of cast iron pipe from Gilroy, Cal.

Congress Investigates Real Estate Bonds

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

OWNERS OF REAL ESTATE mortgage bonds may learn some new facts about misuse of their confidence within a few weeks.

A committee of the House of Representatives will start hearings at New York on real estate mortgage bond reorganization committees about September 1. Preliminary investigations have revealed a wealth of evidence which will be used at the hearings, according to Representative Adolph J. Sabath (Dem.), of Illinois, chairman of the committee.

Congressman Sabath has asserted that real estate bondholders throughout the country have been mulcted on a wholesale scale by reorganization committees. Losses have amounted to many millions of dollars, according to his statements.

Under present plans, the investigation will not confine its activities to New York, but will extend its studies to other cities, including Pittsburgh.

Committee Questions Thousands of Groups

THE CONGRESSIONAL committee is sending questionnaires to over 1,000 bondholders' protective committees. Each questionnaire requires answers covering about 30 angles of their activities. Those refusing to answer will find their records subpenaed, according to Congressman Sabath.

The importance of the investigation can be seen from the fact that estimates place real estate mortgage bondholders at over 7,000,000 persons. In many cases these bonds represent life savings and the holders, as a result of the depression, now find themselves on relief roles in extreme instances.

The purpose of the investigation is to determine to what extent bondholders' committees have engaged in misrepresentation or have assessed unfair charges against bondholders in managing or disposing of properties.

Real Estate Bonds Cause Great Fiasco

THE COLLAPSE of real estate mortgage bond financing represented the greatest and saddest fiascos of the depression era. Purchasers of the bonds did not think that they were speculating. They were not trying to get rich quick. They thought that they were placing their money safely with the expectation of getting a moderate but certain return. They were relying on such slogans as "Forty-five years without loss to any investor."

It was true that real estate mortgage bond financing had an excellent record in its early years. Money was loaned for construction of buildings on a conservative basis. Bonds were issued with mortgages as security. In the few cases of default, the issuing houses were able to keep up interest payments on the bonds until the properties were restored to a satisfactory operating basis.

But the post-war real estate boom changed all this. Property values rose with breathtaking rapidity. Competition between firms engaged in financing reached such a stage that bond issues usually represented the entire investment in the properties and sometimes more than the entire investment.

Crash Causes Many Defaults

It is well known that bondholders' protective committees may be operated in two ways—for the benefit of the bondholders or for the benefit of the members of the committees.

Many assertions have been made. Some have upheld the efficiency and honesty of these committees in the case of real estate securities. Some have charged abuses.

The investigation now getting under way should show holders of real estate bonds whether protective committees are protecting or whether bad practices have assumed a new form.

MRS. ANTONIO'S BURIAL HELD

International News Service.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—With none of her three small children present, the funeral of Mrs. Anna Antonio, 29, electrocuted for the murder of her husband, was held here today.

Mrs. Antonio's last wish—that she be buried beside her husband—was not carried out. She was placed in a grave in St. Anthony's cemetery.

The funeral service was held first from the Demarco Funeral home and later from St. Anthony's Church. The church was crowded and scores of floral pieces were draped about the casket.

Mrs. Antonio was electrocuted with Vincent Saetta and Sam Staracci for plotting the murder of her husband, Salvatore, a railroad worker, in order to collect a $5,300 life insurance.

Dream Leads to Girl Lost 5 Days in Woods

WINNIPEG, Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Most of the searchers who set out last week to find 3-year-old Florence Spence gave up hope when bear tracks were found in the vicinity of the child's mysterious disappearance, but not M. Blair, diamond drill setter of the Central Manitoba Mines, close friend of Tom Spence, Indian trapper and father of the missing girl.

Blair said a dream directed him to an isolated spot in the bush three miles from the tot's home, less than an hour he was on his way back with Florence in his arms.

At Wife's Sickbed After Racing Death

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—(INS.)—Winning a race against death, Aaron Dolgin, of Toledo, O., sat by the bedside of his stricken wife in Beth Israel Hospital here today. She suffered a heart attack aboard the liner Scythia en route from England to Boston.

Notified by radio of his wife's nearness to death Dolgin roared over the road by automobile reaching Boston in 20 hours, in time to meet the steamer at the wharf.

WOMAN SLAYER GETS LIFE TERM

READING, Pa., Aug. 13.—(AP.)—Preference for the electric chair was expressed today by Frances Hepse after she was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Dr. Paul R. Hess last January.

The 27-year-old slayer of the young physician said:

"I did nothing wrong. But if I did, then I should have been sent to the electric chair. Mrs. Antonio got that penalty the other day. Why didn't I? That way it's all over in a few minutes."

Her sentiments were expressed in the Sheriffs' office after she had heard Judge Forrest Shanaman pronounce sentence. Unrequited love and jealousy were ascribed as motives for the shooting.

Cast Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER XXI.

Jerome was a good boat-builder and knew precisely how to go about his job. His material was of the easiest sort to work and his tools good. The chicken house was stripped of alternating planks, which left it standing but freely ventilated.

Linda proved an able helper, but the work went slowly. The bench with its wood vise was in the storeroom cellar and the dory being built in the house, 50 yards away. The planks had to be carried back and forth for planing and fitting.

Besides, Jerome was the sort of craftsman for whom it is temperamentally impossible to do a slovenly job. He was no amateur, having grown up longshore and built small craft from boyhood. He was an artist as well as an artisan, and his joiner-work was precise.

Linda helped him in a state of admiration that had a more rapid growth than that of the perfectly well modeled and constructed dory. She had never thought of him as a skilled hand-worker. She had expected some sort of clumsy leaky home-made craft that might hopefully serve to ferry them over to the mainland with a good deal of baling. She had never counted on anything as trim and tight and shapely as now grew under her eyes.

Surprised at Work

"I'd never have believed you had it in you, Jerry," she said the second day, after he had cut out and fitted the stem piece and stern transom, and sprung the strips of planking that served as garboard strakes on the mold and nailed them in.

"Most of us have got something in us that it's good for us to get out."

"That's true enough," she agreed, and looked thoughtful.

The gorillas had not annoyed them. They made their usual calls, but did not linger after the accustomed sweets were given them. The Racketeer remained persona non grata. When he appeared on the edge of the jungle Jerome stopped work long enough to hurl something at him, with a few harsh orders to be off. All of the family seemed aware that some serious business was afoot that left no time for social amenities. This was just as well as the apes had shown . . . like all primitive natures when indulged . . . a disposition to become overfamiliar. Even Papa Gorilla seemed to feel that his rough behavior had cost him a loss of favor, and to accept the situation.

Workers are invariably tendered more respect than idlers. The purposeful endeavor was also good for the morale of Jerome and Linda. It strengthened their self-respect, and that for each other. Their physical conditions improved.

Dory Finished

Their early dread of the owner's return diminished in like ratio. After all, they could not be blamed for serving themselves from the resources at hand or for making an efficient effort to leave.

Before the building of the dory began they had been rapidly if unconsciously drifting into a mutual relationship that could only have ended in one way. But now the steady occupation acted as a tonic to their morale, lifting them out of the glamor of mere lotus eaters. They were growing more in love with each other as time went on, but this sentiment was acquiring dignity with its strength.

A week of steady painstaking work saw the dory finished. Even Jerome admitted that the job was good. It was then necessary to fashion oars, which he achieved by fitting blades into straight bamboo poles. Tholepins had been let into the dory's gunwales. Jerome also cut a bamboo mast and a yard on which to bend the big fine grass floor mats as a sail. He gave the dory a coat of paint.

"All we've got to do now is to drag her down to the beach and shove her in," he said. "Then you can keep her off a little while I make a few trips to load stores."

"And get some clothes, if any, out of the chests."

"Yes. I can capsize one or two and saw out the bottoms. That won't mutilate the carving and can be easily repaired."

"Why not do that now, to save time?"

"All right. Then we'll be all set."

This was in the middle of the afternoon. They were not tired because too splendidly condidly conditioned, but both felt the relaxation that comes from the satisfactory completion of a sustained and useful effort.

Linda said: "We ought to christen her. Let's have a little party. Just one little drink to celebrate."

Gorillas Stay Away

A thought striking her she asked: "What's happened to the gorilla family? They haven't been round today."

"Hope so. I've had a sneaking fear they might try to interfere with our getaway. Smash the boat, or something."

Jerome said, "They're used to us now and probably think by this time we own the place."

She looked thoughtful. If Jerome had been watching her just then he might have noticed that she glanced furtively at the far end of the plantation. But he had risen. He had forgotten all about the forbidden fruit.

"All right. I couldn't bear it if the Dueno were to blow in just after we'd helped ourselves to the only thing we didn't have to have."

Jerome went up the ledges he carried when going any distance from the house premises, on the off chance of trouble with the Racketeer. Such a weapon would have availed him nothing in a clash with Old Man Gorilla, who must have weighed close to 500 pounds. It would have been like a schoolboy attempting to defend himself with a toy hatchet from the attack of an infuriated Zulu warrior. But the Racketeer was a gangling youth of perhaps 200 pounds weight, and Jerome an athlete who tipped the beam at about 20 pounds less, so that the woodsman's ax might have put the odds in his favor. Also the Racketeer had shown himself to be mischievous but not murderous.

Sees No Vessel

Jerome went upp the ledges and made the round of the plateau far enough to get a view of the sea on all sides. No vessel could have escaped observation unless she were close in to the shore, sheltered from view by the fringe of palms.

None of the apes was visible as he passed the ruin, nor did he see any moufflin or other animals, but several brilliant pheasants (Argus he thought) boomed out of the bush as he pushed through. Also for the first time he found traces of pigs on the edge of the marsh. The island must contain about 10 square miles, he surmised, and its varied character would make it a perfect topical game preserve.

Returning, he came out on the clearing through a grove of oranges in full blossom, yet still bearing some of the ripe fruit. The air was drenched with the sweet perfume. He heard Linda singing from some invisible source not far away. She had a low-pitched throaty voice like unto a cello's. She was crooning: "And the moon comes over the mountain."

Then she came in sight from behind a comguaht bush and Jerome received a fresh shock of the series so far delivered on this enchanted isle. Linda had dressed herself for the party, just as Eve might have. She looked like a very beautiful blonde Polynesian girl bedecked for some gala occasion. Her costuming was entirely floral, though the leather surplice showed under the short skirt that she had quickly woven from tendrils of the bougainvillage with bright notes from more brilliant flowers worked in.

Looks Like Bride

He did so, and emerged refreshed.

"You have a bridal look that's not quite in order for a christening," he said.

"Well, a boat christening is sort of a wedding ceremony, Jerry. A marriage with the sea."

"That comes later . . . and plenty of hard work between. Every time I turn my back you slip deeper into the Eve motif. It's high time we got out of here before I flop into the demoralized Adam role." . . .

They went inside. There was a big earthen bowl on the center table and some cups beside it. Linda said: "Drink some of this, Jerry."

He drank thirstily. The day had been more than usually hot and even now with the shadows lengthening the air was heavy. The dory filled half the interior, and Jerome looked at his handicraft moodily.

"This isn't christening the boat, Linda."

"No, let's do that. I'll splash some on her bow . . ." She filled a cup and dashed the contents against the stout stem of the dory. "I christen thee . . . Lillith . . ."

There was a moment of silence. Then Jerome said dryly: "Eve would have been quicker to paint."

"It's delicious . . . but queer. There's something I don't seem to recognize . . . and that's what gives it such a . . . well, not a kick exactly, but a sort of exotic flavor. What is it?"

"So that's it," Jerome said. "We must be careful. There's too much responsibility." He refilled his glass.

Jerome's Eve

Linda waited until he had emptied it. Then she said:

"Jerry, there isn't one drop of spirits of any sort in that drink. Not even the champagne. I don't think we'll need it after all. This is better."

He set down his cup. "What's that you were telling me about the forbidden fruit? Linda, is this . . . it?"

"How all right?"

"The fruit dropped . . ."

"What fruit?"

"The Forbidden Fruit . . . I caught it like a football."

"You caught it?"

"I saw what was happening and got underneath. When it fell I caught it in my hands. It was soft but firm, I hurried back to the house. I couldn't wait to taste the fruit. I could feel the juice swashing round inside so I cut it open over this bowl. There was about a quart. It had the most heavenly flavor."

"Then why mix it with anything?"

"I didn't. I knew you'd be cross and wouldn't taste it if I told you."

"I wonder if that's how Eve put it over on Adam," Jerome said curtly.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Only a few days more, fellows!

This week's contest ends Thursday night. That means that your letter must reach Junior Patrol headquarters in the Sun-Telegraph Building before that time.

What are your ideas about washing your face and neck? That is the contest subject, and we are expecting some mighty good letters. If you don't like to wash your face and neck, tell us why not. But we surely hope that you do like to wash your face and neck. And that your letters will tell us why and how you like to do it.

Rules for the contest are as easy as they can be. Don't write your letters more than 100 words long. You must be a Junior Patrol member to compete. Send your contest letters addressed to the Junior Patrol Contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Prizes are still $2.50, $1.50 and $1.

Almost every day we hear of some nice way somebody thinks of to help others—just the kind of things we want Junior Patrol members to do, too.

For instance, we know a man who has been out of work for several years. Formerly, he was a truck driver. He has built himself a little house along the river bank, and there he lives quite comfortably.

But this spring he got the idea that the river right outside his door would be a good place to swim. With the help of some friends of his, he built a beach of fine sand and gravel, built a diving board on an old raft, and built a pier out into the water with old lumber. Now hundreds of children from all over this district go there to swim.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

Business Begins

Daily Short Short-Story

By LAURA B. M'KIMMIE

Exactly 15 minutes to 9 Barney Fleck opened the door to Collins, Inc.

He pressed the electric switch on the wall just inside the door, leaned swiftly sideways and scooped up a bundle of mail from the soft carpet.

On the glass panel of the door in front of which Barney had stopped was one word "President," and he paused before this symbol of Mr. Collins' overwhelming superiority as a man pauses before insurmountable obstacles.

Tossing the bundle of mail to a chair he went over to Miss Hildebrandt's desk and touched it gently. A notebook lay in a wire basket on the corner of the desk, a rubber band slipped around the used pages, separating them, like the past, from the unfilled portion. A pencil was thrust under the rubber band, and the boy ran his forefinger back and forth along the smooth surface of the pencil. Then, suddenly, sheepishly, he bent over and kissed it.

He turned back to his own desk, which stood diffidently just inside the door.

Then he went to the boss' desk and from a lower drawer—a catch-all for a man's office paraphernalia—he fished a length of cheesecloth. He ran the gauze back and forth across the desk, lifting out of its path with his free hand a picture of a woman and two children, all three smiling happily at something beyond the silver frame; a walnut letter tray, and a block of onyx pierced by two black-and-gold pens.

He had no more than replaced the cloth in the drawer when the door opened and his sensitive body seemed to quiver, to sway toward the young woman who had just hurried in.

On the way to the office he had thought of all the ways he could speak to her, but what he said now was: "Hello, Miss Hildebrandt."

"Oh, hello there, Barney."

She turned and looked not at him, humbly standing there in his new hat, but at the boss' desk. It did not please her. It did not please her at all. She frowned and came over to where he stood; and he watched, resentfully, while she straightened the letter tray; brought the inkstand into perfect alignment with the desk pad, and tested the two pens on a scrap of paper. Her fingers avoided touching the photograph. "She's plumb crazy about him," thought Barney. She reached over and brought the smiling group closer to the desk pad.

"Hadn't you better start on the mail?" she said.

He knew she was wishing he would go on about his business so that she might perform this rite alone. But he stood his ground like a stubborn child who refuses to be pushed aside.

She loosened the blotter from the four brown clasps and examined the other side. The ink had soaked through. Taking a fresh square from the drawer, where Barney had put the dust cloth, she fitted it into the clasps.

"I put that blotter on just yesterday," he argued.

No matter. The blotter was spotted. She flicked an atom of lint from the desk's perfection. Barney went to his own desk.

Just then Mr. Collins entered. He walked with the padded, slowly rhythmical grace that so many large men have. He carried a flat package in his hand and his hat was pushed negligently to the back of his head. Examining him covertly, Barney was conscious of a dull sense of hopelessness.

Miss Hildebrandt, across her typewriter, smiled a shy, welcoming "you've-come-how-extraordinarily-nice" little smile and said "Good morning." The boy's greeting followed reluctantly, as if for two pins he wouldn't say "Good morning" at all.

Mr. Collins did not speak; he barely nodded, just bent his head an instant. With a careless movement that Barney knew he could never achieve he tossed his hat to the window sill and sat down at his desk. He pushed aside, quite heedlessly, the things that were there; opened the package he had brought with him and drew out a photograph. It was a picture of a grave, level-browed woman and a boy and girl intent upon a book. He held the picture beside the framed one, comparing the two groups. He examined them carefully, feature by feature, unable seemingly to decide which he liked the better—the serious or the smiling woman. The whole world might have depended upon his choice.

The boy's lips twisted into a little grin of satisfaction and his glance fled across the office to Miss Hildebrandt, his mind saying, "That ought to hold you."

She was not looking at Mr. Collins. She was looking instead at her typewriter, looking intently as if her down-gazing eyes might never lift. And the curve of her mouth was restrained, more restrained than it was before.

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear, Sympathetic Aunt Bella:

With all your superficial glitter and pat answers, I'm afraid you are at bottom a very shallow woman totally unfitted to conduct a q. and a. department. You may know which fork to use and the height of the Washington Monument, but have you any word of helpful advice for the millions who are now wandering the streets not knowing where to turn?

Are You a Good Packer?

Strange thing about that search for Miss Agnes Tufverson in Europe. She had married a Balkan slicker who is supposed to have been a trifle wheeky.

Anyway, America asked Europe to search for the missing girl. They started casually looking over sun porches on the Riviera.

Not finding her basking in the sunshine, they next tried frisking the breakfast alcoves in the Alps. A good detective is a man who can find a whole potato in an Irish stew.

There was no Miss Tufverson around. That got everybody skittish and, under proddings from our home rippers, the [illegible] in Europe stepped up the tempo.

They started opening up baggage in old exhausted railway stations. And, to their amazement, they solved a lot of their own mysterious disappearances. Most every trunks they cracked proved to hold the body of a lovely lady.

Five or six mysteries were unearthed the first week. Seems that a lovable European cannot start on a journey without first packing his wife in a trunk.

That's what we call good, clean fun.

Europe may chuckle over our American gangsters. But it seems to be an all-year-round sport in Europe. Still, it may not be really murder. It may be economy. A man with only the price of one trip to the seashore may say to the good wife, "One of us has got to get into the trunk."

We are not speaking harshly of Europe, even though a man does pack the helpmate away in camphor balls and lavender, do not condemn him without first hearing his side of the story.

When launching a journey, we all know that the wife's clothes take up most of the room in the community chest. Probably the exasperated and long-suffering hubbies suddenly yell, "Well, if you want all that space in the trunk you might as well have all of it."

And with those few well-chosen words they tie the wife up and into the brass-cornered packing case she goes. Down comes the all-weather top, around goes the straps and click goes the locks. She just lost a game of hide-and-seek.

Then the husband checks the trunk and receives a brass medal for his daily good deed. Being modest and unassuming, he does not wear that medal on his chest. But, on all his future trips he confines his baggage to an extra pair of sox and a pink tooth brush.

England's Threat

The Talk of Heavier Shipping Subsidies May Strengthen Our Maritime Program.

Englishmen apparently cannot renounce the feeling that Britannia should rule the waves—by general consent.

There was a long period when indeed she did. No nation could dispute her naval supremacy, and her merchant marine dominated the carrying trade of the world.

Those times are no more, however. Conditions have changed. But Great Britain cannot reconcile herself to the change.

Every now and then a deep throaty growl comes from the British lion as he marks with jealous concern the progress of England's commercial rivals on the sea, and the passing of that maritime ascendancy which was so long a source of British pride and wealth.

No longer can England build better ships than other nations, or faster ships. No longer has she a monopoly of the "know how" of ocean commerce and overseas trade.

No longer are the immense subsidies, with which, for a time, she sought to stem the decline of her shipping, exclusively an English resource.

Other nations now have the requisite wealth to copy her support and encouragement of her merchant marine.

Old Englind resents this matching of her policies and imitation of her ways.

The illogic of her resentment apparently does not dawn upon her. In her irritability she even goes to the point of threatening the world with a rivalry in subsidies—a battle of purses, as it were—of national treasuries.

The London Mail, not long ago, quoted Walter Runciman, a member of the present cabinet and president of the Board of Trade, as announcing in Parliament the purpose of England to use shipping subsidies on an enlarged scale to induce foreign countries to abandon or reduce theirs.

He made it clear he expected foreign countries would be more willing to curtail their shipping subsidies now that Britain was "arming herself"—in other words, preparing to loosen up and out-subsidize the subsidies of other nations.

Runciman, who has a talent for impolitic speech which must frequently embarrass the ministry of which he is a member, went on to say:

"I don't want to use subsidy as a weapon. It is a means to an end. It would be better to call it a lever than a weapon, but it will show those foreign countries that we mean business."

Very well, Mr. Runciman, have it so! Lay on—spend well—and cursed be he who first goes broke!

For one of "those foreign countries," to whom Mr. Runciman refers, we think we can speak.

The United States will certainly not be deterred in its enlightened policy to support its merchant marine, by the threat of the British government to support its own marine by the same policy.

As a matter of fact, it suplies a very desirable validation to America's program, and may have a beneficial effect for us, in silencing ignorant and disloyal efforts, now showing themselves here and there, to interrupt and whitttle down this wise domestic policy, so indispensable to the support of American shipping and its legitimate place upon the seas.

Pittsburgh's 27 Hills

They Could Be Used to Advantage in a Program Of Beautification.

Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston has to his credit an achievement which most Pittsburghers no doubt have sometimes thought of performing. He has climbed Gazzam Hill—"that great, bald, brown, ugly knob in the heart of the city which faces you on the left about Soho as you go out Fifth avenue, Forbes street, or the Boulevard of the Allies."

Mr. Johnston had a fine view from the top of the hill. But he laments that our hills are growing barer and bleaker each year. Some of them, he says, have been almost literally forgotten, and with every storm, because of lack of vegetation, drainage and sewerage, tons of earth are washed down the hillsides into the streets below.

This neglect of the hills is deplorable, because they could be made a valuable asset. Greater Pittsburgh has 27 hills, and there is not one of them that could not be used to advantage in a landscaping program to beautify the city.

Why Were Permits Given?

The Charge That 1,500 Racketeers Have Been Licensed to Carry Pistols Calls for Inquiry.

It is shocking to learn that 5,000 Pittsburghers have applied for and been granted official permission to carry pistols during the last two years. What a commentary on the state of law and order! A stranger, learning of our numerous pistol toters, might suppose this was a frontier town.

But still more shocking is Acting Police Supt. Jacob Dorsey's charge that 1,500 of the pistol permits were issued to men of bad reputation — criminals, racketeers and ward heelers with no visible means of support.

Dorsey has started to revoke the permits issued to men of unsavory character, which is commendable.

But something more should be done about it. The Police Research Commission should summon the police superintendents who issued the permits, confront them with Dorsey's charge, and demand an explanation.

Read American Books

Speak American English

Too much of the old-fashioned idea that American language and literature are lesser sisters of the language and literature of our "mother country," Great Britain, remains in the courses of study of our colleges.

Teachers at Hunter College are to be commended for their effort to give American literature a more prominent place in the college curriculum.

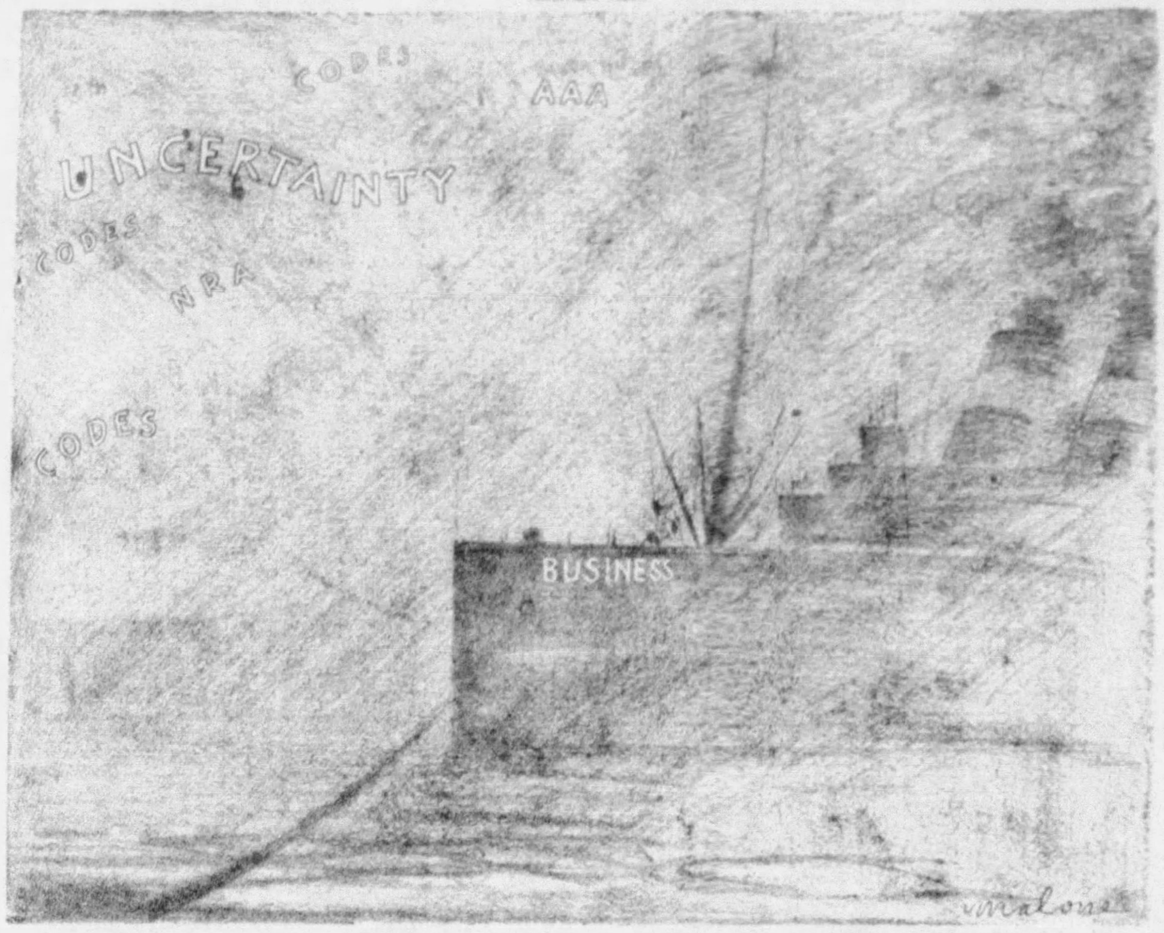
College students should have a chance to learn the fact that current American literature is far more vital and interesting than current English literature.

Radio broadcasting companies would do well, moreover, to take a tip from their English cousins, who insist that speakers use "the King's English." In this country our speakers should use our own American language instead of aping "the King's English."

Our radio system—the largest and most powerful on earth—is, whether we recognize the fact or not, an instrument by which millions of foreigners judge us.

These foreigners should hear the American language on American broadcasts, just as our students should learn American literature in our schools.

Fog Bound



Bureaucrats continue to blame businessmen for not going ahead and restoring prosperity.

In view of all the schemes the bureaucrats are trying, their pretense would be humorous if facts were not so grim.

For business now is fog bound in uncertainty. Will there be MORE experiments—or fewer? Will there be MORE regimentation—or less? Will there be MORE nagging and "cracking down," MORE scolding and denunciation, or not? Will the profit motive, which is the mainspring of business enterprise, continue to be assailed as if it were something discreditable?

Until business knows the answer to these questions how can business go ahead?

As William Randolph Hearst said on July 1 in a signed editorial:

"The Administration has tried state socialism, Communism, extortions, confiscation, military regimentation, continual business disturbance and industrial discouragement . . .

"But when the Administration has realized that if we are to have a boom business must bring it; when the Administration has realized that if we are to bring back prosperity our business leaders must bring it back; and when the Administration will decide TO LET BUSINESS ALONE so it can bring prosperity back, we will then have good times again."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

You Can Believe in Yourself

Every day it's harder to write this column. For what can I say? What can I say that will mean anything?

Straight before me—each time I sit down—staring at me across this typewriter—is that darkening wall of Faces. Angry Faces. Bewildered Faces. Rebellious Faces. faces of a world caught in panic. YOUR face among them. What can I say to those Faces? What can I say to YOU?

What can I say that will be sincere and sound—that will help that gnawing need which goes on and on, under the laughter and excitement, the tantrums and tears?

I know what that need is. I've been poor, too, out of work, frightened, furious. I've stood on a street corner and watched rich, comfortable, complacent people strut by . . . and thought of my sick boy . . . and tasted bitterness like salt along my lips. I've slept on park benches and the baked earth of deserts, not knowing what the next day would bring. I know that gnawing need for some answer—some hope. But what can I say?

Something funny? Something pretty? Funny words and pretty words are an insult to desperate people. Even the laziest, dumbest, most indifferent of those Faces knows that he needs something more than that. Something more real than words, deeper than wisecracks . . . something strong and clean and true to which a frightened person can cling—believe in—work for . . . something that wage cuts and strikes and riots can't destroy. BUT WHAT? WHAT CAN ANY OF US HOLD TO THESE DAYS?

That's a terrible question. Those Faces are all asking it. You're asking it—I'm asking it. Every time I sit down to this typewriter I wish I knew the answer. Oftener and oftener, lately, I sit here all night, waiting for the answer—

This morning, just before dawn, it seemed to come. As plainly as though I could touch you, I saw you . . . waiting as I was waiting . . . feeling, as I so often do, that everything had come to an end.

Suddenly, in that clear, still light which comes just before the sunrise, I saw—for a flash—the answer. I saw that there is something which hasn't been destroyed, which can never be destroyed. Something you can always believe in.

You could always believe in yourself.

Not in that Self the world sees . . . that Bill Jones or Sally Smith Self . . . that bundle of personal notions and mannerisms you've acquired through your family, school, church, political party, social position, job. You can't believe in that Self. That Self isn't trustworthy—or lasting. It changes with every circumstance. The flattery, or the betrayal, of one person can completely change that Self.

But there is something in you which doesn't change . . . which isn't affected by the favor or falsity of other people, or even your own weakness . . . Which doesn't depend on position or power or money. And that is your own secret dream of Beauty.

What sort of beauty? That depends on you. Each man has a different idea.

We carry within our own hearts—each one of us—an answer for our hunger, a healing for our heart.

No matter what happens to us, no matter how others mess up our lives, or mess up themselves—there is something which will never fail us, which cannot be destroyed, which will always make life worth the living.

Hold fast to your own dream of Beauty. Believe in it. Make the most of it. Withdraw within it. Always—whatever comes — you will find it waiting . . . a quiet, cool garden, walled against the filth and blood stains of a rioting world.

AT ODDS ON DANCING

By Winifred Black

The man and his wife were divorced this morning.

This afternoon they are going down into the country together to spend a few days with a mutual friend.

There is plenty of room in the mutual friend's house. There is the big bedroom with the old-fashioned honeysuckle at the window ond twin beds. There is the big front room with the big double bed, and there are two single rooms connected with a bath.

The mutual friend telephoned to me about it and I said to her: "What do you want to do, help them to stay divorced or bring them together again?"

I told her that for my part I would put them in the two single rooms with the connecting bath, with the roses at one window and the yellow jasmine at the other. And there is a moon, and two of the ranch hands are Mexicans who play the guitar and sing all kinds of crooning songs. And if the two Mexicans should bring their guitars to the terrace when the moon is full and everything is very quiet and you can scent the apricots ripening in the orchards—well, if they are still divorced I shouldn't try to bring about a reconciliation.

There is no terrible quarrel between the man and his divorced wife.

There is no "other man" and there's never been the slightest hint of "another woman."

But the man hates dancing and the theater bores him to death. He can't bear parties and he likes to read aloud from the books he is reading, and the books he reads weigh a ton apiece, more or less, and they are all about ancient man, or whither are we drifting.

The woman has to dance—she just has to dance or die. And she loves to tie her head in a scarlet handkerchief and put curtain rings in her ears and snatch the silver tray off the dining room sideboard and do a Salome—just like that! And she loves the theater and is a perfect fiend for parties—beach parties, with mussels steaming in a big pot and somebody singing:

"Oh, ain't you lovin' that sweet abalone.
That sweet salt abalone—we-e-ll."

And when she reads she reads the "Passionate Bride" or "Hot Love and Cold Regret." But the man and the woman cannot endure each other one hour longer so she is going one way and he's going the other—she with her black hair and her black eyes and her batik smocks and he with his grizzled hair and his tired blue eyes and his cynical smile.

You can't blame them very much for that, can you?

Can you figure it out? I can't.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

How to Be a Spinster

So many girls claim to scorn matrimony, these days, and to sigh for the "free, free" life of single-blessedness that it may not be out of order to suggest a few simple rules as a guide to spinsterhood.

* * *

All that a girl need to do in order to insure herself against marriage, is to make all the mistakes that her maiden aunts made, plus a few which modern women have added to the list.

First—be sure to cultivate a POSE. Any pose will do—Greta Garbo, Haughty Hannah, Gushing Gert or Icy Isabel. A pose is as flimsy as cellophane, as obvious as a black eye and as boring as the fifteenth repetition of a stale joke. Nothing will destroy a girl's "It" so quickly as the self-consciousness which accompanies a pose.

* * *

Second, always assert yourself. Every very young girl feels that she simply MUST express herself—whether or not she has anything interesting to express. It is only after years have mellowed her that she discovers that no man loves a woman for her "opinions," but only in spite of them.

Third, don't fail to assume a cynical attitude. This will gain you a reputation for ultra-sophistication—and will frighten off any man. It is a woman's favorite way of cutting her throat with her own tongue; since it is much more flattering to let a man think you a trusting little moron than to let him know that his line is not getting by.

Fourth, always be the life of the party! Never fail to be there with a snappy comeback or a scintillating wisecrack. Being "funny" is still traditionally a man's prerogative, and is endurable in a woman only when she is on the stage or in a story book. An eternally wise-cracking woman simply strikes a man dead—but not with admiration.

Fifth, never give him a dull moment. Or a quiet moment! Talkativeness is a weakness of most women; and a little marathon-talker is a deadly thing. Many a beautiful and brilliant girl has talked herself right out of a good husband and into eternal spinsterhood.

Sixth, always take a man seriously. Terribly seriously! You can get almost anything you want in this world, by going AFTER it in deadly earnest—except a MAN! The winner in love is always the one to whom the game is least important. That is why man has always had the "love-control" since the world began. There is no surer way to drive a man off than by letting him know that you take him seriously—before he has asked you to "take him" at all.

These are the six most common and familiar ways by which girls have managed to escape matrimony since Eve was a flapper. But, in these days of non-marrying men and intensive competition, it is so EASY to be a spinster, that any one of them, if conscientiously practised, will scare the men away and make a girl marriage-proof.

Will Rogers Says:

Will Rogers

TOKIO, Aug. 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Had dinner and long chat with Roosevelt in Honolulu and he gave me practically same advice that Calvin Coolidge gave Dwight Morrow on Mexico. The President told me, "Will, don't jump on Japan. Just keep them from jumping on us!" Arrived Saturday. Everything peaceful and fine. They want a bigger navy and I think I will let 'em have it for they are going to build it anyway.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Wise Words

Life is half spent before we know what it is to live.

Never trust him whom you have wronged.

Tryant custom makes a slave of reason.

To reprove a fool is but lost labor.

The chamber of sickness is the chapel of devotion.

Roosevelt and Farley Seek Insurgent Support

By James T. Williams, Jr.

SO FAR as President Roosevelt's addresses go, politics is for the time being adjourned. He is emphasizing the devastation wrought by the drought. He is making it evident to his audiences that he believes the national emergency, which he proclaimed when he entered the White House, still exists.

Altogether different in tone and terms is the political chairman, Postmaster General Farley. In state after state Mr. Farley, in his speeches, has emphasized the amount of relief money which his party is spending in that area—speeches which have given rise to the Republican rejoinder that any party ought to be able to sweep the Congressional elections which has at its disposal the largest campaign fund in history.

Believed Working Towards Same Goal

ON THE surface the strategy of the President and his chief politician appears to be in conflict, but it will probably soon appear that they have a common objective. This is the retention within the Democratic ranks of the maximum number of Republican insurgents who left their party in 1932 to vote against Hoover or for Roosevelt. The excuse offered at the time by many of these voters was that the country was in the midst of a great emergency, and that to wage effective war on the depression party politics should be forgotten.

In the congressional campaign now on Mr. Roosevelt, as the titular leader of the party in power, is doing his best to encourage his Republican supporters to believe that the emergency is still on and that they should continue to follow his leadership until the country enters again the promised land of prosperity. He is leaving to Mr. Farley the political harangues that appeal to the thick-and-thin Democrats who vote the straight ticket year after year with Tammany regularity.

If the Roosevelt strategy succeeds this year, and there is every indication that the Democrats will increase their majority in the Senate and not lose many seats in the House, the way will be cleared for an intensive and country-wide campaign during the next two years to make permanent converts of the millions of Republicans who left their party in 1932 to vote against Mr. Hoover by voting for Mr. Roosevelt.

Meantime, President Roosevelt is availing himself of every opportunity to encourage the re-election to the Senate of those progressive Senators who left their party two years ago to support him.

He is encouraging them and their followers to give permanent allegiance to the Democratic party by filling minority vacancies on bi-partisan commissions with Republicans whom they recommend. He is encouraging the Democrats in a number of states to throw their support to the progressive Republican candidate for the Senate, provided that candidate supported him in 1932.

Republicans Are Being Weakened

HIS strategy is weakening the Republican party all over the country. It is preventing Republicans from exercising any influence, even as a minority party, on the course of the administration. It is encouraging Republicans who were for Roosevelt in 1932 to remain with him in 1934 in the hope that by 1936 they will be ready to cast in their lot permanently with the Democratic party.

President Roosevelt is not content to look forward merely to a re-election for a second term. Other presidents, both Republican and Democratic, have achieved that honor. He is believed to cherish the larger ambition of building up the Democratic party of the country, not for the duration of the emergency, but for the years of prosperity that it is hoped are just ahead.

If the President succeeds in this ambition, he will have a high place in history not only as a popular leader, but as one of the cleverest politicians who ever attained the White House. He will have done what Woodrow Wilson failed to do—leave behind him when he completes his second term a Democratic party that is no longer a minority party except in emergencies but a normal majority party of the country over.

The next step in this strategic campaign is to encourage the election to both Houses of the next Congress of as many Roosevelt Republican Senators and Representatives as possible.

This the administration is now doing upon the plea, that the emergency still prevails and that voters should adjourn politics and "stand by the President" in the war on the depression all

Human Side of the News

Henry VIII Established the Church of England 400 Years Ago—Other Important Centennials

By Edwin C. Hill

THIS year of 1934 is a year of remarkably interesting centenaries, bi-and tri-centennials and quadricentenaries. Digging back through Frank H. Vizetelly's "Standard Dictionary" and the department which records the history of the world by dates, one comes upon events,, rounding up their centuries in this year of grace which makes pictures, which stir the imagination.

It was just 400 years ago that Hernando Cortez and his mailed Conquistadores arrived upon their great Spanish war horses in Lower California. It was just 400 years ago that Jacques Cartier raised the French flag over Canadian soil. Four centuries ago this year Henry VIII, King of England and Defender of the Faith, broke away from the old faith which had given him his religious title had set up a faith of his own, the Church of England.

Here are anniversaries of blazing events which changed the history of the world. Three and a half centuries ago this year Sir Walter Raleigh received from the fair hand of Queen Bess a charter authorizing him to establish colonies in the land which he was to name Virginia; and Maryland was founded just 300 years ago, and is enthusiastically celebrating the fact.

Benjamin Franklin printed his first book in Philadelphia just 200 years ago; and 150 years back, this year, Columbia University came into being, from old King's College. One hundred and thirty years ago two American statesmen who had hated each other for years, were rowed in skiffs across the Hudson River, climbed to the plateau at Weehawken and leveled pistols. One fell dying, our first Secretary of the Treasury, Alexander Hamilton. The other walked away to engage in one of the most fantastic conspiracies ever to be born on American soil. His name was Aaron Burr—Burr the Unlucky—a fine soldier, a great lawyer but a most unsuccessful politician.

Bobbie Burns Born 200 Years Ago

ROMNEY, the great English painter, and Bobbie Burns, the Scottish poet, were born 200 years ago. The War of 1812 ended 120 years ago, though Andrew Jackson, fighting the Battle of New Orleans and having no notion what was going on among the British and American peacemakers at Paris, was giving the Redcoats one of the worst lickings o their lives. New York's first bank opened its doors exactly a century and a half ago and is still doing business.

Great names appear among these anniversary dates in Mr. Vizetelly's "Standard History of the World by Dates." Abraham Lincoln, the Illinois rail splitter and presidential martyr, first saw the light of day in an humble log house in Harden County, Kentucky, 125 years ago, and in that very year appeared on earth one of the greatest of American writers, the ill-fated Edgar Allan Poe, whose original home in New York is scarcely noted by the thousands of motorists who pass it every day bound north along the Grand Concourse from Manhattan.

The birthday centenaries are equally interesting. James McNeil Whistler, whose "Mother" has just been shown, by the courtesy of France's great art museum, the Louvre, in 40 large cities of the United States, came into the world in 1834. So did Chauncey M. Depew, railroad magnate, counselor of the Vanderbilt family and witty contemporary of Mark Twain; Gen. Horace Porter and Joseph H. Choate.

One hundred years ago, too, saw the first appearance on earth of the man whose name is revered at Harvard, Charles W. Eliot, of an old and distinguished New England family. Lafayette died 100 years ago and so did Charles Lamb, author of 'Elia" and of so much else in the way of wit and wisdom.

Just 90 years ago there flashed along a slim and vibrating strand of copper wire the first telegraphic message ever sent, and 70 years ago we put on the dollar "In God We Trust." Perhaps a little trust is actually required with the dollar devalued to 59 cents or thereabouts, but the Congress of 70 years ago had no such notions.

Metternich Died 75 Years Ago

A NOTABLE list of names appears in the roster of those who got through with life 75 years ago, for the list includes the names of Prince Metternich, the great Austrian diplomat who reigned supreme in the congress of nations which followed the downfall of Napoleon in 1815, and who made the celebrated epigram, of pecuiar interest in these days: "If there were no Austria it would be necessary to create one"; Thomas De Quincey, whose description of the flight of the Tartar tribes from Russian bondage, and across the Asiastic steppes to eventual safety in China, is one of the finest pieces of literature in the English language; Rufus Choate, progenitor of a line of great lawyers; Washington Irving, New York's great man a century ago, who made the hills and dales of the Hudson forever celebrated with his tales of Rip Van Winkle and the Headless Horseman; William H. Prescott, the historian whose story of the conquest of Mexico by Cortez and the conquest of Peru by Pizarro remains a twin classic, comparable only with Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," and, not the least of all in dramatic interest, hot-headed old John Brown, the abolitionist, arrested at Harper's Ferry, Virginia, and hanged by the neck until dead.

Names and dates are not lifeless things when they are read with a full mind, with imagination to reconstruct the pictures, the majesti tableaux, of which they were a part.
